

McNamara Knows No Leaks of U. S. Military Secrets

Says American Personnel Not Involved in Security Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today "I know of no leaks" of U. S. military plans or information on current weapons in recently uncovered Swedish and British security cases.

"I know of no compromise of U. S. military plans," McNamara told a news conference.

"I know of no association of U. S. military personnel in release of classified information to non-U. S. sources."

The Pentagon chief said further

he knows of "no compromise of our current weapons systems."

McNamara was asked about the possible U. S. security implications of disclosures in Sweden and Britain, and whether the United States is taking any special steps as a result.

No special action is being taken, McNamara said, noting that there is a constant review of security measures.

There have been recent reports that Col. Stig Wennerstrom, a Swedish military attache in Washington in the mid-1950's, obtained vital U. S. intelligence information and passed it on to the Russians.

McNamara acknowledged that Wennerstrom might have obtained weapons information but noted that the Swedish colonel left the United States in 1957.

The strong implication in this, together with McNamara's stress on the term current weapons systems, is that any information Wennerstrom might have obtained in the 1950's is by now outdated.

In his first general news conference since late February, McNamara also made these points:

Nuclear test ban — he said "all responsible leaders" in the defense Department believe it would be against the interests of the United States to permit further spread of nuclear weapons. An enforceable test ban would help prevent that proliferation," he said.

TFX — The Defense Secretary side-stepped reporters' invitations to comment on possible motivations in a Senate committee's investigation of the choice of General Dynamics Corp. over the Boeing Co. to develop the TFX fighter plane.

He said he has read 4,420 pages of committee testimony and "I see nothing to change my view."

Riviera Area Shaken By Three Earthquakes

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Three strong earthquakes rumbled across northwest Italy and the Italian and French Riviera coasts early today, sending thousands of pajama-clad tourists and residents fleeing to open ground.

A number of persons fainted from fright, but there were no reports of deaths or injuries.

12 Executed For Roles in Syrian Revolt

Populace Warned To Stay Inside Homes or be Shot

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Maj. Gen. Amin Hafez, the Syrian army strong man, announced today 12 persons implicated in an uprising Thursday against Syria's Ba'athist Socialist government have been tried and executed.

Radio Damascus broadcast Hafez's statement after a new curfew was clamped on the entire country and Syrians were warned to stay inside or be shot. The revolt had seemed to have pro-Nasser overtones.

A colonel identified as Hisham Shabib, five noncommissioned officers and four civilians were tried by a court — martial formed by the National Revolutionary Council and quickly executed, the radio said. All the soldiers were from the army signal corps.

Court Still Meeting

Hafez, who is deputy military governor, interior minister, deputy premier, defense minister and army chief of staff, warned that disturbers of the peace must be punished. He said the court was still in session.

The executions were the first.

Khrushchev Says He Wants All Nuclear Testing Halted

Offers to Permit Western Inspection of Military Installations in Russia

BY PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev expressed optimism today about the chances for a Big Three agreement in current negotiations on a limited nuclear test ban and said he would like to see outlawing of all such tests, including those underground.

The Soviet leader reiterated in a Kremlin speech that he wanted an East-West nonaggression pact.

He did not insist that it be tied to the treaty being negotiated here to forbid nuclear test blasts in the air, outer space and under water.

This would seem to indicate that Khrushchev might be receptive to a countersuggestion made by President Kennedy through his special envoy, W. Averell Harriman, that the issue be handled through nonaggression declarations.

Military Inspection

At the same time, Khrushchev again announced he was ready to permit Western inspection of vital military installations inside the Soviet Union as safeguard against concentrations for a surprise attack.

This was offered as a device for helping to ease world tensions and was not directly connected with the test ban treaty.

Speaking of the U.S., British and Russian test ban talks in Moscow, Khrushchev said:

"We are under the impression that there is hope now of achieving agreement on the banning of nuclear tests in the atmosphere, cosmic space and under water if, of course, there are no special changes in the positions of the American and British representatives."

"We would like to achieve such an agreement that would include the banning of all tests, including underground tests as well."

Detection Means

"It has been demonstrated by science and technique that the banning of all tests, including underground ones, can be controlled with the help of national technical means of detection which are at the disposal of nations now. But the representatives of the United States and England still insist on the necessity of international inspection. They do not want to give up their aspirations, which, in reality, have nothing to do with the cessation of nuclear tests."

"Why and what for is this being done? In order to have the chance to carry out intelligence work."

"The picture is quite clear: Apparently, we will not reach agreement on the ban of underground nuclear tests at the present time. Nevertheless, the Soviet government considers that if an agreement is achieved on a ban of nuclear tests in the atmosphere, it will be a great step forward."

'Outagamie's Air Potential 4 Times Greater Than Oshkosh'

Statement by State Consultant Comes at CAB Airport Hearing

BY JAY REED
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUSAU — An airport consultant for the State Aeronautics Commission repeated here today that a new regional airport in Outagamie County will generate nearly four times greater traffic volume than would a regional airport at Oshkosh.

Robert Brice told the Civil Aeronautics Board regional airport hearing that he "stands by my judgment" in the assessment of the passenger potential at Appleton.

Brice was subject to strenuous cross-examination by Robert Lester, special counsel for Winnebago County who attempted to break down Brice's analysis of the situation.

Brice said improved service and the proximity to a greater reservoir of traveling population were the primary reasons for his judgment concerning a new Outagamie County airport.

State Would Pay

It also was emphasized this morning that the state of Wisconsin undoubtedly will participate in the construction of any highway interchanges which might become necessary in the event Outagamie County's new airport receives regional designation.

The question of state participation was brought up by hearing examiner Edward T. Stodola. The state would share, he was told, in such construction if it were needed in Appleton or in Oshkosh, if Winnebago County received regional port designation.

The CAB hearing, now nearing the end of the second week, was scheduled to receive testimony from Appleton and Outagamie County witnesses today. They had not been called, however, when the hearing recessed for a noon lunch.

Wausau Problem

Thursday's session was highlighted by questions forwarded from Wausau and Stevens Point. The communities wanted to know whether to continue operating and financing their present airport if the CAB decides that a new regional airport should be constructed near Mosinee.

The questions were forwarded to the Federal Aviation Agency in Washington for a decision.

In one other action Thursday, Stodola ordered a survey of all cities involved in the investigation to determine how many persons would drive to Milwaukee or Madison to obtain onward air transportation rather than use nearby airports.

The survey will be conducted at the conclusion of the present airport hearings.

Talks on NATO Sub Fleet Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is determined to start talks soon with its allies on the technical and legal problems of the proposed Polaris-equipped surface fleet for the Atlantic alliance.

The talks, officials said, will be held in Washington next month or in September.

The aim is to clear the way for countries which want to participate to commit themselves before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Ministerial Council meets in Paris in December.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball had a long conference Thursday with the West German and Italian charges d'affaire. He called in the diplomats to arrange for talks on the multilateral force. They will meet again next week.

Rocky May be In Floor Fight

Defeat Predicted on Civil Rights Issue at Governors' Meeting

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The chairman of the National Governor's Conference predicts that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York will be defeated in a bid for a showdown on the civil rights issue during the conference, which opens this weekend.

Albert D. Rosellini, the Democratic governor of Washington, said Thursday that Rockefeller would lead a hot floor fight for a strong statement on civil rights.

"But we'll be ready for anything that comes up," Rosellini said.

Rockefeller, who was considered a front-runner for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination, is believed by many to have lost some support following his remarks and the gathering strength of the movement backing Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

The New York governor issued a statement Sunday blasting the right wing of the Republican party and insisting that it must take a strong stand on civil rights.

Meanwhile, a Miami Negro said the civil rights issue will be kept in the spotlight with small, but carefully aimed racial demonstrations during the governor's conference.

Albert Moore, head of the Miami Congress of Racial Equality, said that the main targets will be two staunch segregationists, Govs. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and George C. Wallace of Alabama.

Police Halt Negro Demonstrations At Chicago's Board of Education

CHICAGO (AP) — A nine-day, around-the-clock civil rights sit-in demonstration in the Chicago Board of Education offices has been stopped by police.

Ten white and Negro demonstrators, who had refused to leave a conference room where the sit-in was conducted, were arrested Thursday on charges of trespass and disorderly conduct.

Rail Report Given To Kennedy Today

Will be Sent to Congress for Legislation to Block Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special six-member fact-finding committee delivered to President Kennedy today its report on the facts and issues in the railway work rules dispute.

The report is to be sent to Congress Monday, along with Kennedy's proposals for legislation to block a nationwide rail strike.

The committee, headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, entered Kennedy's office without making any comment.

It completed the report Thursday night, with help from a staff of Labor and Commerce department aides.

The President probably will take the report with him for study at Hyannis Port, Mass., over the weekend. He plans to have his recommendations ready for presentation to Congress Monday.

The President, Wirtz and congressional leaders have said they hope some agreement would be arrived at before legislation is necessary to break the union-management deadlock. But there has been no indication of any behind-the-scenes negotiations.

Kennedy Request

At Kennedy's request the carriers agreed to hold off instituting new work rules—designed to eliminate eventually some 60,000 rail jobs deemed unnecessary by management—until July 29. Similarly, the unions agreed not to take any strike action until that time.

That gives Congress just one week to mull over any possible legislative remedies Kennedy may suggest. All indications are that the most likely legislative approach would be compulsory arbitration.

A draft of the report was shown to the nation's largest rail carriers and five operating unions who are involved in the work rules dispute.

Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds said the union delegates found the report to be "factually accurate." And J. E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the carriers, said he couldn't be critical of the fact-finding panel's efforts.

He said he thought the members "tried to do a good job." Some revisions were offered by each side, but all were of a minor nature, Reynolds indicated.

Reuther Urges Strong Civil Rights Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter P. Reuther urged Congress today to strengthen President Kennedy's civil rights program.

Among other things, he suggested direct payment of damages to persons discriminated against in public facilities.

"Not only the patron but the public-spirited proprietor will benefit from an enforceable public accommodations measure," Reuther told a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Reuther, president of the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers, said the President's proposals provided "a strong first step" towards guaranteeing "all Americans equality in law and equality in fact."

He told the congressmen in his prepared statement:

"Do More"

"Your committee cannot do less than he has asked; we urge it to do more."

Among other proposals which Reuther said the group should add to the President's seven-point civil rights package were:

1. A federal fair employment practices commission;

2. Federal voting registrars;

Chinese Hear Blunt Challenge From Nikita

Warns Nuclear War Could Destroy All of Mankind

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev declared today a new world war is not necessary to build communism or speed up revolution. He said a nuclear war could destroy mankind and even those who survived might "envy the dead."

The Soviet leader laid down the blunt challenge to his Chinese Communist opponents — who believe revolutionary wars are inevitable — at a Kremlin friendship rally for visiting Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar.

As he spoke his aides were fighting the argument out with Chinese delegates at rapidly-collapsing peace talks at a suburban villa.

War Unnecessary

Khrushchev told 6,000 wildly applauding persons at the rally that "a world war is necessary neither for the building of the socialism nor communism, nor for the acceleration of the world revolution."

He said that "the superiority of the forces of socialism, peace and democracy over the forces of imperialism, reaction and aggression is growing."

Without specifying how, Khrush-

Aldermen Hear Explanation of Pilot Plant

NEENAH — Officials of the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission Thursday agreed with members of the two city councils to seek a legal extension in the time required for selection of a bid for construction of a $23,000 sewerage treatment pilot plant in order to give the councils time to meet officially and appropriate money for the project.

Bergstrom Gets Theda Clark Board Post

Trustees Re-Elect All Officers at Annual Meeting

NEENAH — Nathan H. Bergstrom, chairman of the board of the Bergstrom Paper Co., has been re-elected chairman of the board of Theda Clark Memorial Hospital by the hospital trustees.

Bergstrom Catlin

Other officers, all re-elected, are John B. Catlin, vice chairman; Ambrose Owen, secretary; and Charles H. Sage, treasurer.

Stanley Severson, secretary of the George Banta Co., Inc., was elected as a new trustee. The board now includes Russell C. Flom, Arthur C. Haselow, John R. Kimberly, Owen and Sage, whose terms expire in 1964; Severson, Donald C. Shepard Jr., Donald A. Snyder and William M. Wright, whose terms expire in 1965; James E. Asmuth, E. William Aylward, George Banta III, Bergstrom and Catlin, whose terms expire in 1966, and Leo E. Crov, inactive trustee.

Severson was born in Neenah and educated in Neenah public schools, graduating from Neenah High School in 1930. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Lawrence College in 1934. He was married to Dorothy Brown of Neenah in 1937 and has two children, Mrs. Donald Emerich of Neenah 20, 316A W. Robbery Suspect To Plead July 29

OSHKOSH — Bond was continued at $10,000 by County Judge James Sitter Thursday who ordered Ronald Ray Williams, 23, Downey, Calif., bound over to plead July 29 to charges of armed robbery and car theft.

Preliminary hearing on the charges was held Wednesday and Thursday before Judge Sitter. Williams is charged with using a knife to force the night clerk at the Valley Inn in Neenah, where he worked, to give him money from the hotel safe and also of forcing Louis Becker, the night clerk, to drive away with him in Becker's car.

Williams was arrested later in California and was returned to Wisconsin early this month.

plant before taking steps to put up money needed to build it.

Cite Saving

Most appeared satisfied following the meeting that the plant will be worthwhile and save the city money in the long run, as outlined by commissioner E. E. DenDooven.

DenDooven explained the pilot plant could save both cities a considerable amount of money if built. It would be abandoned after about three months operation.

Purpose of the plant would be to set up secondary treatment requirements for sewerage in the Twin Cities, which contains a large percentage of industrial wastes.

Once treatment methods are determined, the joint cities would build a plant costing approximately $1,800,000.

The State of Wisconsin has ordered the municipalities to develop a secondary treatment process. A primary process is now used.

DenDooven said the present plant will remove from 60 to 70 per cent of suspended solids in waste products. The secondary treatment process is expected to remove 0 to 95 per cent of suspended solids and 90 to 95 per cent of dissolved materials.

DenDooven noted that other Wisconsin cities have used the process with success but that none of the municipalities have the large percentage of industrial waste materials as do the Twin Cities.

He said a pilot plant is necessary in order to determine what will be needed to purify the industrial wastes as well as domestic wastes.

Salvage $10,000

DenDooven said the commission expects to salvage approximately $10,000 of the plant equipment when the project is abandoned.

Total cost of the project is $23,000, with each municipality paying $11,500. Equipment for the plant will cost $15,727 with the balance of the $23,000 generally in pipeline and bookups.

DenDooven said, "The $1,800,000 plant, if built, would satisfy Twin City needs through 1985," he added.

Members of the Neenah and Menasha councils, of which approximately half of each were present at the meeting, indicated satisfaction with DenDooven's explanation of needs for the plant and indicated they will appropriate the necessary money for building it.

The plant is expected to be completed in approximately 75 days after the equipment is ordered.

Winnipeg County police said Schroeder had torn down about 125 feet of fence by breaking off the fence poles at their concrete bases with his car. Tire marks showed he would head for one post, break it off and then drive toward the next fence post.

He also tore several large circles on the cemetery lawn with the tires from his car. Police were notified of the incident at 8:06 a.m. today by the caretaker.

Schroeder had lost a license plate at the scene and police used it to trace him.

23 Winnebago Elm Disease Cases Known

Oshkosh Area Hit Hardest; Some in Rural Twin Cities

es of Dutch Elm Disease in Winnebago county have been confirmed by the State Department of Agriculture laboratory at Madison, Donald J. Tripp, farm management agent for the county, said today.

The majority are in the Oshkosh area with several isolated cases in Menasha and the Town of Neenah. Nine additional trees are being tested at the Wisconsin Dutch Elm Disease Laboratory for positive identification of Dutch Elm Disease.

City and village surveys and the training of municipal personnel in Dutch elm disease detection has been completed in the county by Larry Fenton of the state Department of Agriculture in conjunction with the county extension office. Training sessions were held in Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Omro and Winnebago.

Dutch Elm Disease is a fungus disease of elm trees and is carried principally by the European bark beetle, Tripp said. The external symptoms are the brown discoloration of leaves in the upper area of a tree and the distinctive dark brown streaking under the bark.

These symptoms are basically the same as those of several other elm diseases and a positive identification of the disease can only be made with a laboratory test.

Residents are encouraged to report elm trees showing these symptoms to the person in charge of such detection for their community. They are: Oshkosh, Robert Baker, city forester at the city hall; Neenah, Wayne Bryan, public works director, at the city hall; Menasha, Harry Kargus, park superintendent; Winnebago, Edward Elhke, public works department; Omro, Max Bower, and Winchester, James Yost.

Residents of rural areas in the county are to call the county agent's office at the courthouse to report suspicious trees. Whenever possible, they should bring four wood cuttings approximately a half inch in diameter and four inches in length to the county agent's office.

Anyone having elm wood or trees on their property can do their part in holding down the incidence of Dutch elm disease through sanitation, Tripp continued. Do not allow dead elm wood to remain near healthy trees as the bark beetle continues its life cycle and multiplies in population under the bark of dead and unhealthy elm wood, he urged.

It is further recommended that positive Dutch elm diseased trees be removed.

Members attending the meeting Thursday also learned that stage two of the three-stage construction plan for the shelter has been completed.

Stage two included the roofing in of the building, exterior painting and the installation of the furnace, Bachmann said.

Stage three will include the finishing of the interior, the completion of the animal pens and runs, plumbing and other finishing work.

The work on stage three is expected to be completed by the end of the month.

American Humane Association

Animal Welfare Unit Seeks Affiliation

NEENAH — The board of directors of the Animal Welfare League Thursday evening voted to apply for membership in the American Humane Association, according to Harold Bachmann, board member.

A field representative of the association, Kenneth McGovern, Denver, Colo., recently visited the league and inspected the league's small animal shelter on County Trunk G south of Neenah near Highway 41.

He reportedly was "very pleased" with the league's work so far and especially with the league's shelter, which is being constructed with funds raised through private donations.

Members attending the meeting Thursday also learned that stage two of the three-stage construction plan for the shelter has been completed.

Menasha Mayor Okays Police Bike Purchase

MENASHA — Mayor John Klein this morning ended a conflict between council members and himself by signing a purchase order for a $1,664.90 three-wheel cycle to be used by the Menasha Police department. The money will come from the city's contingency fund.

Purchase of the vehicle had been faced with a mayoral veto since Tuesday night's council meeting.

The mayor had objected to the funds being taken from the contingency fund, asking instead to have the money come out of next year's budget.

This morning he signed the purchase order after stating that the police department "does need a new bike."

By signing the purchase order the mayor avoided his second veto in as many weeks. A veto to a council bill that would have had the city hire additional crossing guards was upheld by the council Tuesday. It was the first time the mayor used his veto powers during two terms of office.

Hootenanny Planned For Downtown Neenah

NEENAH — There'll be folk singing aplenty next Wednesday night in the Neenah downtown business district as the Twin Cities open activities for the fourth annual Prospector Days. The "hootenanny" is scheduled for 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday on a hay rack stage in the "korrall" east of the National Manufacturers Bank.

One of the groups which will appear is the Mad Hatters, four girls from Appleton High School. They are Ede and Lynn Kellogg.

Other acts also will be booked. At the same time the giant, 600-pound steer will be cooking on the rotisseries in the pit area next to the National Manufacturers Bank. The steer barbecue attracted much attention last year. By Thursday night the steer will be cooked and there'll be a barbecue dinner.

Merchandising activities in the Prospector Days will get underway with sidewalk sales in all five business areas of the Twin Cities Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Approval of grants of $241,800 for seven projects in six Wisconsin areas was announced Wednesday by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Two of the projects are in Minocqua. The others are in Sturgeon Bay, Elcho, Holway township in Taylor County, Knox Mills in Price County and Meadow Valley in Juneau County. The grants were made under the federal Accelerated Public Works program for aid economically distressed areas.

Minocqua will receive $62,000 to help replace streets, curbs and the sidewalks and $40,000 as half the cost of a library and police department building.

Sturgeon Bay was granted $105,000 for a dock costing $220,000. Elcho will receive $20,500 for a community building. Holway will receive $38,800 to help defray the cost of rebuilding one mile of town road.

Knox Mills $2,500 as half payment of a new basement and foundation walls for the town hall, and Meadow Valley $8,000 for reconstruction of town roads.

County Trunk G Work Will Begin Monday

OSHKOSH — Winnebago County Highway crews Monday will begin reconstruction of County Trunk G in the Town of Neenah, between County Trunk A and U.S. 41, a distance of 1.2 miles.

The road will be widened to 22 feet and given a stone base and blacktop surface. Shoulders and ditches also will be improved.

The road had been a three-rod road and an extra rod had been purchased by the county to widen the road to a four-rod road.

By signing the purchase order the mayor avoided his second veto in as many weeks. A veto to a council bill that would have had the city hire additional crossing guards was upheld by the council Tuesday. It was the first time the mayor used his veto powers during two terms of office.

Tara Graham and Ann McMahon. Their basic repertoire is folk songs but they add "singalongs" when appearing before older people and "singalongs" will be part of the program Wednesday night. A Neenah group, the Islanders, also will appear. Phil Dutcher and Fred Thompson provide their own version of song and patter.

Other acts also will be booked. At the same time the giant, 600-pound steer will be cooking on the rotisseries in the pit area next to the National Manufacturers Bank. The steer barbecue attracted much attention last year. By Thursday night the steer will be cooked and there'll be a barbecue dinner.

Merchandising activities in the Prospector Days will get underway with sidewalk sales in all five business areas of the Twin Cities Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Approval of grants of $241,800 for seven projects in six Wisconsin areas was announced Wednesday by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Two of the projects are in Minocqua. The others are in Sturgeon Bay, Elcho, Holway township in Taylor County, Knox Mills in Price County and Meadow Valley in Juneau County. The grants were made under the federal Accelerated Public Works program for aid economically distressed areas.

Minocqua will receive $62,000 to help replace streets, curbs and the sidewalks and $40,000 as half the cost of a library and police department building.

Sturgeon Bay was granted $105,000 for a dock costing $220,000. Elcho will receive $20,500 for a community building. Holway will receive $38,800 to help defray the cost of rebuilding one mile of town road.

Knox Mills $2,500 as half payment of a new basement and foundation walls for the town hall, and Meadow Valley $8,000 for reconstruction of town roads.

County Trunk G Work Will Begin Monday

OSHKOSH — Winnebago County Highway crews Monday will begin reconstruction of County Trunk G in the Town of Neenah, between County Trunk A and U.S. 41, a distance of 1.2 miles.

Over Depressed Areas Bill

Bitter, Sarcastic Debate Erupts Between Illinois' Two Senators

BY JAMES MCCARTNEY
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — A bitterly sarcastic debate featuring the two U.S. senators from Illinois — Sen. Everett Dirksen (R) and Sen. Paul Douglas (D) — erupted during the Senate fight over depressed areas legislation.

It was the first time in a dozen years of side-by-side service in the Senate that the two have argued nose to nose in public.

Dirksen, the conservative, and Douglas, the avowed liberal, have rarely agreed on anything — but they have always previously managed to ignore one another politely, at times even chivalrously.

This time — within the limits of Senate rules forbidding senators from making disparaging remarks about one another on the floor — they let fly.

Waves a Finger
At one point Dirksen became so angry that he waved a finger under Douglas' nose and declared heatedly:

"I know my facts. "I do not have to sit at the feet of the learned professor from the University of Chicago in order to marshal my logic and my argument." Douglas formerly was a professor at the University of Chicago.

Douglas, in turn, lampooned Dirksen's colorful style of oratory. "It is always interesting to hear his magnificent baritone voice rising and falling with the embellishments of rhetoric," Douglas said.

"It brings back the days when I used to be in the galleries listening to the Shakespearean actors. E. H. Sothern and Robert Mantell, who made the 'tank towns' for many years and who, I am sure, started the speaking style which my junior colleague has copied so well."

Pointed Reminder
Douglas' reference to Dirksen as a "junior colleague" was a pointed reminder that Douglas has served in the Senate two years longer than Dirksen.

It all started after Douglas delivered a 1½ hour speech supporting the depressed areas legislation.

In the course of it he drew an unflattering comparison between senators he said had voted to help big business by establishing the Export-Import Bank but refused, he said, to help smaller businesses through help for depressed areas.

He insisted on putting the Senate vote on the Export-Import Bank into the record and Dirksen's name showed up as one of those who voted to establish the bank.

This was too much for Dirksen. "I listened with rather rapt and riveted attention," he said, "to my distinguished colleague as he ventilated what he thought were the merits of the bill."

"In the course of those remarks he fairly fulminated with an effervescence and an incandescence which I have scarcely known to be equaled . . . but why did he not tell the whole story?"

Huge Success
Dirksen went on to say that the Export-Import Bank was a huge success, operated economically,

$175 Damages Result From Two-Car Crash

LITTLE CHUTE — An estimated $175 damage was done to two vehicles as a result of two-car crash in front of 504 S. Grand Ave., at 3 45 p.m. Wednesday.

Clintonville Woman at White House Meeting

Mrs. Harold Weiland Reports on Racial Problems Discussed With the President

CLINTONVILLE — Mrs. Harold Weiland, 107 Elm St., president of the AFL-CIO National Auxiliaries, has returned to Clintonville after participating in a conference Tuesday in Washington, D.C. with President John F. Kennedy.

President Kennedy called the conference of leaders of women's organizations from throughout the country to discuss aspects of the nation's civil rights problem in which women's organizations play an important role.

The President met with about 250 leaders of 100 women's organizations in the East Room of the White House.

The President greeted the women by assuring them they represented "a good deal of power." He said that he had called them together because the civil rights issue had increased in tempo in the last few weeks.

"This nation was founded," President Kennedy said, "on the principles that all men are created equal and the rights of every man are diminished when the rights of one man is threatened. "Therefore, I am asking for your help in making it easier for us to move ahead and to provide the kind of equality of treatment which we want for ourselves."

Mr. Kennedy then outlined his five point program and asked the women to assist in promoting this program.

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy was then introduced and he took over the meeting.

Meet Cabinet
Following discussion, the meeting was turned over to Vice President Lyndon Johnson and later adjourned to the Rose Garden. The women were introduced to Cabinet members.

The meeting was then adjourned until 8:15 p.m. at the interdepartmental Auditorium with Mrs. Douglas McAfee Horton, former president of Wellesley College, and Mrs. Esther Peterson, assistant secretary of labor, where a permanent committee was established.

Mrs. Weiland said, on her return home, "The meeting was very stimulating and the message of the President met with real enthusiasm. The group was gravely aware of the urgency for action on civil and human rights."

"The auxiliaries of the AFL-CIO are dedicated to the principle of equality of opportunity for all people regardless of race, creed, ancestry. We firmly believe that until America fulfills its promises of democracy and liberty, we cannot claim we are really free in America."

"Our auxiliaries are dedicated to promote and defend the human rights of all Americans, and after this inspirational meeting, we will step up our program as outlined by our President."

Xavier Band, Vocal Ensemble Schedule Concert

A concert of light summer music will be presented by the Xavier High School summer band and vocal ensemble at 7:30 p.m. today in the outdoor court at Xavier. In case of rain, the free concert will be moved to the school gymnasium.

About 40 new freshmen will make their debut with the band. Experienced band members have spent the summer teaching the freshmen and summer band members at St. Joseph Catholic Grade School.

Francis Scholtz, director of both bands, said the teaching, started this summer on an experimental basis, has proved beneficial both to the young teachers and to their pupils.

The concert program will include:

Wind Ensemble
Summer Suite, Leroy Anderson
First Swedish Rhapsody, Erik Liden
Drumbeat Jamboree, Erik Liden
Shore Drum Solists, Robert DeBruin
(Directed by Harry Huen)

Swing Low, Sweet Chariot, arranged by Robert

The Weyauwega Fire Department tried out its latest piece of fire fighting apparatus at a recent drill. The 8-foot long nozzle called a fire stick, has a sharp point and can penetrate walls and ceilings. In the event of a barn fire it can be shoved into a hat to spray water on an interior fire. Shown demonstrating the fire stick are Wilber Hintz assistant fire chief, in white coat, Don Doede and Dan Buchholtz, captain. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Armies Held at Bay

For 10 Years Ribbon Has Marked Shaky Line of Korean Armistice

BY ROBERT EUNSON

PANMUNJOM (AP) — A delicate white ribbon, strung up rather whimsically from post to post across the 151-mile Korean front 10 years ago this month, separates two mighty battle-ready armies.

There has been no war in Korea since July 27, 1953. There has been no real peace either during the "longest armistice."

Even though the guns are still at Pork Chop Hill, Heartbreak Ridge, Old Baldy and a decade has passed since the last Sabre streaked to MIG Alley, the situation at Panmunjom is still a touchy one.

Ribbon Warning
The inch-wide ribbon, hooked to the barbed wire marking the southern boundary of the demilitarized zone, warns troops of the United Nations Command that one step more to the north could mean stepping on a mine or rotting half to death in a stinking prison.

A pathway about three feet wide is kept clear so the ribbon can be spotted easily. To the north, 350,000 troops serving under the red star of the Korea People's Army rest in their foxholes or train in the field. An equal number of United States Army and 1st Army troops of the Republic of Korea guard their battle positions south of the demilitarized zone.

Here at Panmunjom, inside the demilitarized zone (DMZ), agencies created by the military armistice supervise the truce terms. Within the joint security area, a circle carved into "no man's land," 800 meters in diameter, uniforms are seen from the Korea People's Army and the Chinese People's Volunteers as well as the 18 members of the United Nations who sent troops to "contain the Communist threat" here between 1950 and 1953.

Hostile Exchange
Every day on this hillside Communist representatives from Kaesong and United Nations representatives from Seoul exchange information in an atmosphere of bemused hostility.

The Military Armistice Commission is made up of five general officers from each side. Then there's the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission, consisting of representatives from Sweden, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and Poland. They meet at least once a week.

Hot Line
Duty officers from each side meet daily, except Sundays and holidays, to exchange information on the number of troops arriving or departing. A hot telephone line connects their offices if there is need for instant communication.

Each side is allowed 35 security officers inside the area. The Communists have taken to swearing at the U.N. MPs in English. Although the UNC guards haven't learned profanity in Korean, they push when the Communist guards push or strike should the Communist guards strike.

Tiffs among the guards at Panmunjom aren't daily occurrences, but the past decade has produced some bruised knuckles and bloodied noses at times.

170 Meetings
Usually the sessions of the Armistice Commission are conducted coolly and efficiently. There have been more than 170 meetings, to settle differences growing out of the agreement.

Maj. Gen. George H. Cloud, a taciturn Marine with iron-gray hair and the build of a light heavyweight boxer, is the 24th American general or admiral to talk to the Reds at Panmunjom.

A steward in the Methodist Church, unhurrying and soft-spoken, Cloud, 56, is the exact opposite of his blustery, arrogant counterpart, Maj. Gen. Chong Hwan Chang of North Korea.

Bisecting Line

The security area lies across the center of the demilitarized zone and the actual line of demarcation bisects the conference table.

It was summer in Korea. Farmers were out weeding their rice crops in neat plots.

Suddenly the neat fields gave way to a jungle-like area 4,000 meters wide.

This is the demilitarized zone, patrolled daily by 1,000 civil police from each side, but otherwise given back to nature.

Cassius Spends Hour Heckling Sonny Liston

Eight-Count Rule To be in Effect For Title Clash

BY BOB MEYERS
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—It appears you can take or leave Cassius Clay, but you can't get rid of him.
Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston agreed to this today after an unscheduled and quite unsolicited visit by capricious Cassius to the Liston training camp Thursday.
If nothing else, it did offer some comedy relief from the bore of routine training as Liston and ex-champion Floyd Patterson neared the end of the grind for Monday night's title rematch.
Cassius spent a better part of an hour heckling the awesome champ—from a safe distance, of course.
Sonny for the most part took it in half amusement, mixed with other detachments.

At one point Cassius and Liston flexed their muscles in a threatening gesture at close range, and some of the more glibly thought they might actually come to blows.
Pushed Them Back
But a Liston handler stepped in and pushed them back with the same labor it would take to separate a pair of wet towels on a clothesline.
Thus far, Cassius hasn't annoyed Patterson.
Liston's manager, Jack Nilon, disclosed that negotiations for a Sonny-Cassius title fight have gone so far as to pin down a possible site and date—New York, Sept. 28.
This is naturally dependent on the 4-1 favorite, Liston, whipping Floyd.
Sonny speaks of another one-round knockout but he is working assiduously for the Patterson return go—and so is Floyd.
Today the Nevada Boxing Commission met to discuss rules, secretly decide on ring officials and decide particularly whether the three-knockdown rule will be waived or applied.
The mandatory eight-count in a round definitely will be in effect, said Executive Secretary Jim Deskin.
If both the eight-count and the three-knockdown rules are used, Patterson gets a break. As he himself has said, he can bob up and down from the canvas like a yo-yo.
Liston's situation is different. He never has been on the deck. Usually both rules are waived in title fights, but may be in force for safety measures in view of the recent ring injuries and fatalities.
Color Movies
Visiting boxing writers were shown privately color movies which never were shown before in this country of the knockout in Chicago last Sept. 25.
Many at ringside, as well as in the closed circuit theatres, never really saw what happened—the latter group because of camera angles. These films show that Patterson took a right uppercut some 30 seconds before the roar began to crumble. It was this blow that Patterson says started his downfall.
In the final series, Liston landed two lefts off Patterson's right temple, the first one sending him lurching onto the ropes. Liston missed or glanced a right off the head and then landed a devastating side arm left—not a true hook—that lifted and dumped him on the floor. Patterson was counted out in 2 minutes, 6 seconds.

Twins Defeat Yankees, 9-3; Orioles Win

Mejias gave Radatz more of a cushion with homers in the ninth and the big reliever was made the winner as Boston's most effective pitcher.

Dailey protected right-hander Camilo Pascual's first victory since June 12 by holding the Yanks hitless the last three innings—and Rich Rollins made it a romp for the Twins with some late bombing. He smacked a two-run homer in the seventh and a three-run double in the eighth.

Pascual, whose ailing back had limited him to three innings of pitching since he had last won, left in the sixth with the Twins ahead 4-3. Jim Roland and Jim Perry finished up that inning, then Dailey came on for the 37th time this year and allowed one Yankee base runner the rest of the way—on a walk.

Terry Is Loser
Minnesota got its first four runs off Ralph Terry, the Yanks' 23rd game winner of last year who now is 9-10. Elston Howard homered off Pascual, now 10-5.

Miller, a workhorse who has pitched in 43 of the Orioles' 96 games, evened his record at 4-4 with the aid of key hitting by John Orsino and Gaines.
The Tigers rallied Mike McCormick and Dick Hall for a 5-0 lead in the first three innings. Baltimore pecked away for a tie with single runs in five straight innings starting with the fourth, then Billy Bruton tripled in a run off Miller in the last of the eighth for a 6-5 Detroit edge.

But Orsino homered in the ninth, re-tying it. Gaines socked his two-run pinch double batting for Miller in the 11th, and George Brunel held off the Tigers in their last turn at bat. Rookie Bill Paul was the loser.

"And, of course, I don't drink or smoke which helps."

Hollywood, it develops, still beckons. "I had to break my contract to come back to my school supply business," Knafelc revealed. "My problem now is to decide whether I want to have a Hollywood career or stay in business."

The former "has good possibilities," he said. "There's a good future there. I was guaranteed some big money in the commercial field. They even offered my kids an opportunity to work in commercials. There's good money in that for kids."

"But first things first," Gary concluded with a grin. "Right now I've got to make the ball club."

Mastodon Marv Fleming, the huge rookie end from Utah, was a casualty of yesterday's drills. The 6-5, 240-pound Los Angeles resident who had just eluded Hank Gremminger, pulled a high muscle in pursuing a 50-yard Bart Starr pass in the morning session.

Pulls Up Lame

Fleming, who pulled up lame as he strained for the ball, later noted by way of explanation, "that was a deep one. We were running short patterns and that was the first long one."

Dismissing the injury with a shrug of the shoulders, he insisted, "It'll come along."

As a result of his disability, Fleming was employed at center in the afternoon drills. "It's the first time I've ever played center," Marv, an end through-out his collegiate career, confessed. Shaking his head with a smile, he appended "Are you listening, Jim Ringo?" "You've got to think there."

Packer Patter — The 60-man squad was decreased by one Thursday afternoon when Louis Retton, a promising halfback from Villanova, checked out of camp of his own volition.

Could the Packers be grooming a secret weapon? A goodly number of railbirds, among others, were somewhat startled to see Jim Taylor, taking a handoff on the final "play" of the afternoon, wheel to his right, stop and fire a 40-yard pass to flanker Bob Jeter.

"Taylor's 'bomb,'" it might be added, was right on target, but the ball slipped through Jeter's hands. A bit chesly about the whole thing, Taylor later chuckled, "I was so wide open, it was funny." Nothing it was the first time I've thrown from a set play since I've been here," the 5-year veteran revealed. "I never threw a pass in college but I did in high school. I was the fullback there, but it was the single wing and I called the plays."

Later, "Mr. Fullback" returned to the dressing room with the youngest "visitor" to see the Packers' gleaming new quarters thus far — it was James Taylor Jr., who will be eight months old Aug. 1 and bears more than a passing resemblance to his famous father.

Cradled in J. Taylor Sr.'s burly left arm, he attempted to sip a soft drink from a paper cup, a project which was not a complete success. Packer Publicist Tom Miller, marveling at the trim silhouette Dave Hanner is sporting, informed the 12-year veteran,

The Braves had scored their runs in the second, starting the inning with a walk for Joe Torre. A throwing error by Rodgers, who was trying to get Torre at second, allowed Gene Oliver to get to first on a fielder's choice. A hunt by Denis Menke filled the bases.

Del Crandall singled in the runs, as once more Milwaukee's catchers contributed to the run production.

Clongor took the loss and is now 6-6. Cub started Larry Jackson posted his 11th victory in 18 decisions but needed and got help in the ninth from Lindy McDaniel.

After Jackson gave up a leadoff single to Torre, McDaniel lumbered from the bullpen for the 33rd time. He needed just 10 pitches to retire the side, getting Oliver to hit into a double play and Menke to ground out.

The Braves returned home to face the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers tonight, Bob Hendley, 5-5, opposing Don Drysdale 11-10.

U. S. Track Squad Oozing Confidence For Russian Meet

Coach Payton Jordan Offers To Score on Soviet Terms

BY JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — With their bridges across the Moscow river behind them, the American track and field team advances on giant Lenin Stadium Saturday and Sunday aiming for its greatest victory in the series against the Soviet squad.

The coach, Payton Jordan of Stanford, and the athletes themselves, have systematically demolished any excuses they might need after the meet.

"No injuries, no ailments," said Jordan. "We are ready to roll. And this team is so powerful it scares me sometimes."

The athletes are oozing confidence. Broad jumper Ralph Boston is an example. The Tennessee State long leaper flatly predicts that both he and Darrell Horn of Pilot Rock, Ore., will trim the Soviet world record holder Igor Ter-Ovanesyan.

"I don't care if Darrell wins or I win," said Boston. "This is a team effort."

Jim Beatty, the Los Angeles distance star who re-injured his right leg Wednesday and feared he couldn't run, appears ready in the 1500 meters.

"I didn't come all this way to watch," he said.

The American girls have gotten into the act.

"I might go 5-10," said high jumper Eleanor Montgomery, the 16-year-old Pan-American winner from Cleveland. Lean, angular Eleanor is the best American bet for a surprise victory.

"If it stays warm like it has been, these kids are liable to think they're in California, and then look out," said Jordan. So he even likes the weather.

A solid exponent of positive thinking, Jordan has even offered to score the meet on Russian terms, by combining the men's and women's scores.

The Russians have always done that, anyway, which gave them the edge in the four previous meetings dating back to 1958.

There was no meet in the 1960 Olympic year, but there will be one in Los Angeles next year.

Officially the meets are segregated by sexes. The American men have always won, as have the Russian girls.

Last year, at Palo Alto, the men's score was 128-107—highest U.S. point total to date—and the women's 66-41, with the Russians ahead.

The Americans are expecting to take the six races up to 5,000 meters, both hurdles and the two relays on the track. They plan to win at least the broad jump, pole vault, discus and shot, and hope for the hammer throw.

Pair of Young Women Lead National Open

Mary Mills and Miss Creed Both Card 2-Under-Par

CINCINNATI (AP)—A girl with an ailing back and one who weighs in at only 95 pounds led the field today into the second round of the 1963 women's National Open Golf Tournament.

They are Mary Mills, a 23-year-old blonde from Gulf Hills, Miss., and Clifford Ann Creed, a tiny 24-year-old brunette from Alexandria, La., each had a 2-under-par 71 Thursday over the Kenwood Country Club's 6,444 yards of hilly terrain.

Far back in the field and threatened with elimination after today's round was defending champion Mrs. Muriel Lindstrom of Sutton, Mass. Mrs. Lindstrom, who hasn't been playing regularly, had a 10-over-par 83.

It appeared it would take a two-day total of around 161 to survive the halfway mark cut in the field. Only the 40 low scorers and ties will be eligible for Saturday's final 36 holes.

The tournament, with a $9,000 purse, will pay $2,000 to the winner.

NEW LONDON—Manawa dominated New London 5-4 in American Legion play here Wednesday night.

Manawa hit safely in every inning but the ninth off New London pitchers. Jim Buschke went the distance on the mound for Manawa and struck out 10 hitters. John Hedtke took the loss.

New London scored three runs in the fifth inning to tie the score on singles by John Hedtke, Arin Herminath, Dave Dernbach and a triple by John Moriarty. Both teams scored single runs in the sixth inning. Jim Buschke blasted a triple in the seventh, driving in Mike Brown with the winning run.

New London made a strong bid for the win in the ninth when the bases were loaded with only one out, but Buschke managed to put the fire out.

Dodgers Keep 6 1/2-Game Lead

San Francisco clung to its one-game edge over the fifth place Reds by coming from behind to nip the New York Mets 6-5 and Philadelphia trounced Houston 6-1.

Mauri Wills, back in his Most Valuable Player form of last year, drove in four runs with a single and double. The Dodgers hammered loser Earl Francis and four relievers for 14 hits but actually it was five unearned runs in a big sixth inning that proved to be the difference. Ron Fairly's high pop fly in front of the plate, misplayed by catcher Jim Pagan, opened the gates.

The Mets overcame a 4-0 San Francisco lead, going ahead on Joe Hicks' three-run homer in the seventh, but run-scoring singles by pinch hitter Felipe Alou and Harvey Kuenn produced the tying and winning Giant runs. Juan Marichal blanked the Mets in the eighth and ninth innings to receive credit for his 15th victory. It was only the Giants' third victory in the last 11 games.

Gene Freese, recalled from San Diego a week ago, drove in four tallies with a single and a two-run homer to spark the Reds' victory over the Cards. It was the third baseman's first homer since 1961. He fractured an ankle in spring training last year and was sidelined virtually all season.

John Roemer went all the way, limiting the Colts to three hits for his first major league victory as the Phillies won their ninth in the last 12 games to climb to the .500 mark at 47-47. Don Demeter and Don Hnak hit two-run homers.

Butch's, Powers Score 1-Run Victories in Softball Tournament

Shamrock, Banta's, Jitter's and Joe's Also Triumph

THURSDAY'S RESULTS
Butch's VFW 3, Dew Drop Inn 2.
Shamrock Bar 4, Adler Brau 4.
Banta's 10, Northside 10.
Jitter's and Joe's 10, Club Oasis 1.
Powers Pub 2, Subway Bar 1.

Tonight's Games:
7:05 p.m.—Banta's vs. Butch's.
7:10 p.m.—Rill vs. West Side Lanes.
8:15 p.m.—Club Ravens vs. Oscar's Tavern.
9:30 p.m.—Shamrock vs. Swan Club.

Butch's VFW and Powers Pub squeezed into the second round of play in the 17th annual Fox Valley Softball tournament at Telulah Park Thursday night.

Powers' Jack Connen lifted a sacrifice fly in the first inning of the fifth and final game of the evening, to send home the run that meant the margin of victory over Subway Bar. The score was 2-1.

Butch's VFW defeated the Dew Drop Inn, 3-2. Shamrock Bar downed Adler Brau, 6-4; Banta's defeated Northside, 10-5; and Jitter's and Joe's topped Club Oasis, 10-1, in other first-round games.

Four second round tilts will be played tonight. Remaining second round games are on tap for Saturday morning and afternoon. Quarter-final action begins Saturday, at 5:45 p. m.

Loses 1-Bitter

Jerry Hawley hurled the victory for Powers, while Les Dietzen suffered the loss despite allowing just one hit.

Cloyd Thede also lost for Dew Drop after allowing only one hit. Bill Gartzke cracked three hits in the Dew Drop attack and John Kennedy was the winning hurler.

Claude These homered for Dew Drop.

Jim Steger pounded two hits in leading Shamrock past Adler Brau. John DeYoung scattered three hits in gaining the mound decision.

Len Adams hurled the Banta's victory with Arlyn Burt getting the loss. Jim Gauthier belted three hits for Banta and Adams and Pete Peterson added two apiece.

Tom Malchow's three hits led Jitter's and Joe's attack while Doug Wiatrowski allowed just two hits in winning. Don Rumlou was the loser.

Soil Area Supervisors Tour Lake, Farm Lands

District Conservationists Meet In Stockbridge, Hear Reports

long tour of Lake Winnebago on a field trip of the Stockbridge, Winnebago watershed as part of their summer meeting here Thursday.

Raymond Ecker, president of the watershed group, welcomed the 75 guests and explained the conservation practices carried out by the group over the last five years.

Other speakers were Orrin Meyer, Calumet County agent; Bruno Zuccolo, Calumet County water conservationist; and Oscar Kossman, chairman of Calumet County Agriculture Committee.

Experimented Trawls

The supervisors were divided into two groups. About half took aquatic tours in three State Conservation Department trawlers and the others took the field trip by bus to erosion control farms and recreational areas in the county.

Two of the vessels trawled with fine mesh experimental trawls used to determine abundance, growth rates and survival of fish species in Lake Winnebago.

The field trip consisted of stops at farms in the Stockbridge Winnebago Watershed, at the Ecker farm to see a pond under construction for recreational use and a visit to a 400-year-old cottonwood tree.

Other Stops

Other stops were the Wilmer Schulz woodlot and maple syrup operation farm in the Town of Harrison and High Cliff and Calumet County parks.

At High Cliff, manager John Franzen conducted a tour of the park with stops at the Chief Red Bird statue, the swimming beach and the marina.

At Calumet County park, the history, ski slope, camping facilities and 50,000 tree plantation activities carried out by Calumet County 4-H members were explained.

International Flavor

International flavor was added to the afternoon field trip when Mrs. Kusum Nair, New Delhi, India, joined the tour.

Mrs. Nair, author of "Blossoms in the Dust", a book on India's rural economy, is doing agricultural research work in this country on a grant. She will spend this week in Manitowoc and Waupaca counties.

Guides for the tours were Meyer; Ron Herman, county forester; Gordon Priegel, Oshkosh; Roderick Bahr, game management, New Holstein; Paul Schulz, Plymouth, district fish manager; and Zuccolo.

Police Look for Armed Robber

Shawano Tavern Owner Loses $140, Watch to Gunman

Post-Crescent News Service
SHAWANO — Police are searching for a man who robbed a Shawano tavern owner of $140 and a watch early this morning.

Bud Hupt, owner of Stan and Bud's Bar, Shawano, was forced into a car after he closed the tavern early this morning and was left tied in a ditch along a rural road after being robbed.

Hupt told Shawano Police Chief Harold Pingel that he locked the tavern and was walking to his car when a small, thin man about 30 to 35 years old shoved a revolver into his side.

The man ordered the tavern owner to get into Hupt's car and told him to drive to Shawano Lake. Near the Gunner Tavern, Hupt was told to stop the car and ordered to lie down in a ditch.

The thief then took $140 from Hupt's wallet and his chrome-plated watch and tied the bar owner in the ditch. Hupt's car was found later in the parking lot of the Bilmay Hotel.

Police are checking for the driver of a 1957 car which was seen at the Grosskopf filling station a short time before Hupt said the robbery occurred. The driver had inquired of the attendant on how to get to Antigo.

The Shawano County sheriff's office said later this morning that a break-in was reported at the Red Owl store in Wittenberg. It was not determined whether the two incidents were related.

Heart Association Names Gift Head

William Schroeder, 1104 S. Walden Ave., Appleton, has been re-appointed memorial gifts chairman for the Wisconsin Heart Association in Outagamie County, according to Dr. Raymond L. Rice, Milwaukee, WHA president.

Schroeder will accept memorial gifts honoring a relative or friend who has died of heart disease. He said the memorial contributions are used to help find the causes and cures of heart disease through research, professional, and public education, and for community service projects such as rheumatic fever clinics.

Schroeder said more than $1450.00 in contributions were made during the past year from county residents.

To make a memorial gift, Schroeder said, the donor need only send a contribution and specify the name and address of the family to whom a memorial card will be sent. The donor will receive an acknowledgement receipt for income tax purposes.

Memorial contributions can be sent to Schroeder at 1104 S. Walden Ave., Appleton.

Bues Asks Greater Inspection of Jobs

Director Says Policy Needed To Assure Specifications Are Met

The City of Appleton does not have enough inspectors on construction jobs to be sure work is meeting specifications, and this fact encourages low bidders who count on cutting corners to seek the work, Director of Public Works Robert Bues told the Board of Public Works Tuesday.

The board discussed the effectiveness of prequalifications statements from contractors and on-the-job inspection in protecting the city. It took no action and plans further discussion at its next meeting.

The city is required by state law to take bids on projects costing over $1,000 and to accept the "lowest responsible bidder." Board of Public Works policy requires a statement of financial responsibility from contractors before they submit bids. Aldermen have questioned the value of this "prequalification" requirement since the statements are not checked.

Six Inspectors

To ensure high quality work, Bues said the city should prepare plans and specifications that are clear enough to show what is expected, should enforce these specifications with good inspection and should require bonds guaranteeing the work for one year (as is done now.)

Bues raised the possibility of including in the contract a requirement that the contractor pay all costs of inspection.

The number of city inspectors has been doubled this year to a total of six as a result of the increased number of city construction projects. Work on 13 major city projects is underway, in addition to routine work such as driveways and sidewalks.

At best we probably are giving only 50 per cent inspection, Bues said today. Many cities have 100 per cent inspection and permit no work to be done unless an inspector is present, he noted.

It would be to the city's advantage to step up the degree of inspection, but 100 per cent inspection is not needed here, the public works director said. Certain critical phases of the work, such as paving and pipelaying, should have a higher degree of inspection than others, he added.

It is an economic matter, he said, and as a city becomes larger and the volume of its work is greater, it can justify having full time inspection.

Bues said he also would like to have city inspectors available to check on all construction work by utilities.

The board of public works approved the preliminary plans and specifications for the proposed Albert Einstein Junior High School without discussion.

Appleton Council Okays Rezoning Of Doctors Park Residential Area

Property-Owners Object to Commercial, Light Manufacturing Classifications

The Appleton common council Wednesday approved rezoning of six lots owned by the Doctors Park group to commercial and light manufacturing, over the protests of neighboring property owners.

Carl Zuelzke, Appleton real estate broker and building contractor whose home is near Doctors Park, was spokesman for the protesting property owners.

The rezoning will devalue the surrounding residential property, Zuelzke said. He said it was not fair to let the doctors buy land in a residential district and have it rezoned, rather than buy higher priced land in a commercial district.

Four of the six lots were rezoned from two family residential district, and two lots were rezoned from multiple family residential district. The lots are located between Longview Drive and the service road east of Doctors Park.

No Additional Plans Dr. George P. Nichols, spokesman for Professional Park Inc., which owns Doctors Park, said no definite plans have been made for building on the six additional lots.

Ald. Clifford Radder (16th) asked if this would be the end of the rezoning or if another request will come to the council next year. Dr. Nichols said the corporation does not own any additional property.

Franklin Nehs, attorney for Professional Park Inc., explained that three buildings, each with offices for three doctors, and a pharmacy have been built at Doctors Park. Two more buildings, each with offices for four doctors, are now under construction, and another building for three doctors is planned for construction in 1964, he said. The corporation includes 17 doctors.

$500,000 Investment When these buildings are completed, the corporation will have an investment near $500,000 in land and buildings, he said.

Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stillings (7th) said the city planning commission considered the requested rezoning to be "consistent zoning." The change was granted by a vote of 14 ayes and 3 "present."

The council approved another protested zone change in the Schaefer Park Plat and adjacent areas from single family residential district to heavy industry, commercial and light manufacturing, multiple family residential and two family residential districts.

Circled By Industry Atty. Everett Stecker told the council his clients, Mr and Mrs. Herman Strohl, 2063 E. Newberry St., objected to the change because their home will be a "residential island" surrounded by a heavy industry district.

Mrs. Stillings noted that no opposition to the rezoning had been expressed at the public hearing held by the city planning commission.

Zone changes approved after no protests were made at public hearings were six lots in the Kenview Heights Plat on the east side of N. Mason Street between W. Hawes and W. Grant streets from single family to multiple family residential district, and two lots on the south side of Gunn Street west of Walter Avenue in Newberry's Addition from single family to multiple family residential district.

Stumpf noted the city is continually getting requests to go out of the city limits with its services, including such services as the fire department as well as sewer and water mains. "This should be stopped," he said.

In other action on the report of the street and sanitation committee, the council:

—Approved a recommendation that the plan commission be requested to take "positive aggressive action" to designate and acquire right-of-way to permit construction of a sanitary interceptor sewer across the Baetz farm to Colony Oaks Subdivision.

—Approved a recommendation to revamp the intersection of Walter and Telulah avenues and Newberry Street, with the work to be placed on the 1964 program. The estimated cost is $1,560.

—Authorized members of the street and sanitation committee and representatives of the engineering division to witness a demonstration of slurry seal coating at Wauloma Tuesday at city expense.

Annexation or No Services, Council Says

East Ballard Road Property Must be Added Within Year

The Appleton city council served notice Wednesday that it does not intend to provide city services to outlying areas without a definite commitment on annexation to the city.

The council okayed agreements permitting property owners on the east side of Ballard Road to connect to the city sanitary sewer and water mains, but with the stipulation that this property be annexed to the city within one year.

Ald. Robert J. Stumpf (9th) suggested withholding the services until the area is annexed. "They can live like country folks and enjoy city services, and I think this is wrong," he said. "If they're going to annex in a year or so, let's wait until then to provide the services."

Seek Annexation

Mayor Clarence Mitchell explained the Ballard Road residents had petitioned for annexation about 18 months ago. The council asked them to wait until paving of the road was completed, because the city would lose about $20,000 in state aids if the area was annexed before the work was done, he said.

The sewer and water laterals have been installed to the property lines, he said. The property owners are willing to go along with annexation and will put money in escrow to cover the special assessments, he added.

Stumpf noted the city is continually getting requests to go out of the city limits with its services, including such services as the fire department as well as sewer and water mains. "This should be stopped," he said.

Oconto Asks Approval To Extend Existing Breakwater Into Bay

MADISON — The City of Oconto has notified the Public Service Commission of its plan to construct a breakwater in Green Bay.

The project will be an extension of an existing north breakwater along the Oconto River to protect the channel from the Oconto river to the deep water of the bay. The commission said it will hold a public hearing on the project at the Oconto city hall Aug. 7. State approval is required for the structure.

Actor Ed Wynn Recalls Stage Debut in 1902

Former Comic Plays Aged Blind Aram in 'Greatest Story'

HOLLYWOOD — Ed Wynn, the grand old man of show business, took considerable delight in practicing how to walk like a frail and aged blind man for his role in the George Stevens' production of "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

"This is where I came in," said Ed Wynn Wynn. "My career of 60 years in the theater has come to a full cycle."

Erect and alert at 77, Wynn recalled with amusement that he first started acting back in 1902 with the Thurber-Nashley Repertory Company at Norwich, Conn.

"My debut was in a play called 'American Grit.' I was 16 at the time, but they cast me in the role of a 75-year-old minister. Nearly all of my preparation as an actor dealt with adopting the walk of a frail, old man."

Wynn's performances to date in "The Greatest Story Ever Told," as Old Aram, the blind man who gains sight through faith in Jesus, has evoked outright praise from his co-workers.

As a dramatic actor, George Stevens said of Wynn, the one-time top comedian: "He can't do anything wrong."

"The Greatest Story Ever Told," filmed in Cinemascope and Technicolor, will be released by United Artists in late 1964.

To Your Good Health Cystic Fibrosis of Pancreas Is Dangerous

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about cystic fibrosis of the pancreas. Can anything be done for it? — D. R. M.

Cystic fibrosis is a mean and baffling disease that has been known only for the last two decades or thereabouts.

It usually affects the pancreas, but involves other parts of the body as well.

It occurs about once in every 2,000 or 3,000 people, apparently on a hereditary basis. If both parents happen to be "carriers" of the trait, the chances are one in four that a child will have it.

Little Known Because the disease has been recognized for such a relatively short time, there are a great many things we do not know about it. Does it, perhaps, exist in mild form more frequently than we suppose? How much can we do to combat it? Can we prevent it? We don't know.

It is a disorder affecting the glands which excrete fluids such as mucus, sweat and digestive enzymes. The patient has difficulty in digesting food (the products "Lonely Hours," is a neat suspense yarn, with a gimmick for digestion). Often the lungs of an all-female cast, except for a and air passages are clogged with a sticky phlegm. Infections

(flu, pneumonia or others) are hence a potential threat. Since so far we have no way of doing much about the underlying glandular disorder and thus curing the disease, we have to attack it by abating the symptoms: the difficulty in absorbing nutrition; in the hampered breathing; in the constant risk of infection.

Combat Congestion Carefully-chosen diets, antibiotics to ward off infection, and various medications to combat congestion in breathing are examples of such measures.

With new methods available, we can thwart the various complications much more successfully. Many children with the disease are not going through school and growing up.

However, there is no point in mincing words. Cystic fibrosis is dangerous, and that is why very great effort is being made to learn more about it. The disease is not contagious.

Aene is one of the most terrible problems of growing up. If you are afflicted with this aggravation, or if you have children who are, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Post-Crescent for a copy of his helpful and comforting booklet, "Aene — The Teen-Age Problem." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the meaning when the urine is clear like water? I am under the impression that I am not getting rid of the poison in my body. When I arise in the morning it has a natural color but after about six hours it is clear for the rest of the day. — E. M.

Why don't we file your question under the heading of excess worry? The color varies with a number of factors. In the morning it is more concentrated. After your morning coffee, and water or other fluids during the day, it becomes more dilute and lighter in color. The nitrogen wastes are being carried away as required. You'll notice a difference in hot summer weather, because again the urine is more concentrated. Why? Because so much more moisture is lost by perspiration. The opposite tends to be true in

Gov. Reynolds Signs Bill to Establish TB, Heart Clinics

A bill establishing public health state where local authorities have dispensaries for persons suffer not provided such facilities. The law, considered to be an important step toward the eradication of tuberculosis, was signed by Governor John W. Reynolds. The law provides for the setting up of dispensaries to service out-patients suffering from TB or who are suspect of having TB. The clinics would be set up in existing county TB sanatorium facilities. If such facilities do not exist, any county or combined counties serving a population of not less than 25,000 may establish such a service. The State Board of Health is authorized to establish dispensaries in areas of the winter because we perspire less and the urine is lighter in color. Note to Mrs. J. B.: When an 8-year-old child stammers, he should have some professional attention. Nervous tension seems the likeliest cause; I would investigate that before resorting to speech therapy. Little Chance State Will Get More I-Roads

Statement May Kill Hope for Highway Through Fox Valley

WASHINGTON — Wisconsin's congressional delegation was told Thursday by Rex M. Whitton, federal highway administrator, there is little chance of Wisconsin getting any more mileage for the Interstate Highway System.

Officials from Wisconsin in January backed a proposal that called for an additional 465 miles of interstate highway. The proposed network, which would have required $350 million in federal funds, would have extended from Milwaukee north through the Fox River Valley to Green Bay, Wausau, Hurley and the Duluth-Superior region.

The original resolution was prepared by Congressmen Melvin Laird, (R-Marshfield) and Henry Reuss, (D-Milwaukee). It was approved unanimously by the Wisconsin Good Roads Association.

The Wisconsin delegation has decided to continue efforts to get an additional 9.5 miles of the system in Milwaukee County.

Whitton said present policy is to allocate no more mileage in the system. He said that had been given an opportunity to present the policy for two years. Asked

Trustees Elect Menasha Man to Insurance Post

William E. Buchanan, 345 Lake Road, Menasha, president of Appleton Wire Works, has been re-elected to the board of trustees of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Elected to fulfill the unexpired term of Conrad A. Elvehjem, University of Wisconsin president who died July 27, 1962, was Oscar G. Mayer Jr., Madison.

Others re-elected to the board for four-year terms are Cyrus L. Philipp, Milwaukee; Harry J. Harwick, Rochester, Minn.; John O'Melveny, Los Angeles; Stanley C. Allyn, Dayton, Ohio; Donald C. Slicker, Milwaukee; Robert E. Dineen, Milwaukee; Charles D. Gelatt, LaCrosse; and Henry C. Moore, Beloit.

The company's home offices are in Milwaukee.

how West Virginia was granted an additional 125 miles several months ago, Whitton said "I would rather not comment."

Whitton said both he and Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges earlier this year turned down a request from Wisconsin Gov. John W. Reynolds for the addition because it was not realistic.

Rep. Laird, delegation co-chairman with Sen. Gaylord Nelson, said the Wisconsin members will send another letter to Hodges asking that when more mileage allocations are made, Wisconsin be given an opportunity to present its case.

Supreme Court Soon to Face Tough Case

Validity of Florida
Law on Adultery

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The doctrine of "equal rights" is about to give the Supreme Court of the United States one of the toughest cases it has ever had to decide. It may be unpleasant to read about — though perhaps not as lurid as the British sex scandals — but the evolution of constitutional law is so important nowadays that the principles involved cannot be ignored in a free press.

Lawrence

The case in question was decided just a few weeks ago by a unanimous opinion of the seven judges of the Supreme Court of the state of Florida. It dealt with a state law which describes a moderate punishment when the crime of adultery has been committed by two white persons or by two Negro persons. Another provision of the same law, however, provides a much more severe punishment when the crime involves acts of one Negro and one white person together. In other words, the "integration" is punished much more severely than when the races are completely separated.

On the surface, this would appear to be a plain case of discrimination against integration as such. The Supreme Court of the state of Florida, however, took an entirely different view and sarcastically made reference to the probability that its decision would be overruled by the Supreme Court of the United States. The case by the Florida Supreme Court was decided on May 1, 1963, and a rehearing was denied on May 30, 1963. So the only chance for reversal lies in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Court Opinion

The Florida state Supreme Court in its opinion said:

"The appellants seek adjudication of their right to engage in integrated illicit cohabitation upon the same terms as are imposed upon the segregated lapse. But, as was admitted by counsel in argument, this appeal is a mere way station on the route to the United States Supreme Court where defendants hope that, in the light of supposed social and political advances they may find legal endorsement of their ambitions."

Precedent

"This court is obligated by the sound rule of state decisions and the precedent of the well written decision in Pace, supra. The federal constitution, as it was when construed by the United States Supreme Court in that case, is quite adequate but if the new-found concept of social justice has out-dated the law of the land as therein announced and by way of consequence, some new law is necessary, it must be enacted by legislative process or some other court must write it."

The decision which was relied on by the high court of Florida was rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1883 and has never been reversed. In that case—Pace v. Alabama—the Supreme Court upheld an Alabama law which prohibits interracial marriage or adultery, and declined to rule that there was not "equal protection of the law" when a more severe penalty was imposed in the case of misbehavior by a mixed couple than for the same offense when committed by persons of the same race. The Supreme Court of the United States, in discussing the two provisions of the Alabama laws, said:

"The two sections of the code cited are entirely consistent. The one prescribes, generally, a punishment for an offense committed between persons of different sexes; the other prescribes punishment for an offense which can only be committed where the two sexes are of different races. There is in neither section any discrimination against either race."

Alabama Laws
It is clear, however, that the laws of the state of Alabama and of the state of Florida still make distinctions between the two kinds of offenses, and these distinctions are based upon race. This is the main reason why the case will doubtless be a perplexing one for the highest court in the land.

Laird Says Anti-Bias Clause Misinterpreted

Says Firm Shouldn't be Criticized
For Not 'Importing' Negro Workers

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Federal government will turn some parts of Wisconsin into economically depressed areas if it hesitates to award contracts to firms located in these areas merely because they do not employ Negroes, Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Marshfield) said today.

Angered at a report that a Fox River Valley firm was required to go into a lengthy explanation of why there were no Negroes on its payroll before a government agency would sign a contract awarded under the competitive bidding system, Laird said "such bureaucracy is ridiculous."

"There are only a handful of Negroes in the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Congressional districts," the congressman said. "What are our industries supposed to do to get a government contract—import some Negroes, presumably against their will, from some other part of the state?"

Stupid Action
He said questioning a firm lo-

While, on the one hand, punishments are equally applied to a white and a colored person, the fact remains that the statutes make a distinction between the two races. This, according to current decisions of the Supreme Court, is a violation of the letter and the spirit of the Fourteenth Amendment.

All these problems may seem technical, but they will come up for consideration again and again, especially if the mythical dwelling known as "Mrs. Murphy's boarding house" now should be subject to a federal "civil rights" law passed by Congress. In recent discussions of the proposed legislation dealing with "civil rights" in hotels and rooming houses, a Senator who favors such laws remarked:

"The important thing is to see to it that the Negro is able to eat with the white and to sleep in whites' motels and hotels without being discriminated against because of his race."

ated in an all-white community about the lack of Negroes in its employ not only was stupid, but was also contrary to the "intent" of the fair employment clause in government contracts.

"The fair employment clause assures a qualified applicant for a job with a company handling government contracts that he will not be discriminated against because of race, color or creed," Laird explained.

"This clause does not constitute a guarantee for jobs for Negroes in a community where no Negroes live. Neither does it make the hiring of Negroes a pre-requisite for obtaining a government contract."

Board Will Adjourn

COMBINED LOCK — Because of a conflict with the annual Kimberly School District meeting, the village board of review will adjourn its meeting Monday until July 29, Village Clerk Irene Versteegen said Thursday.

Today in History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, July 19, the 200th day of 1963. There are 165 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1848, the first woman's rights convention in the United States was held at Seneca Falls, N.Y. The movement was formally instituted as a national question under leadership of Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

On this date
In 1775, the Fifth Indiana War in Maine began when Indians launched their first attack on St. George and New Castle.

In 1845, New York City was the scene of a fire which destroyed

348 buildings at a loss of $6 million.

In 1918, the German army began its retreat across the Marne during World War I.

In 1940, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the two-ocean Navy bill.

In 1955, the Railway Express Agency retired its last electric delivery truck.

Ten years ago... Communist negotiators announced their readiness to resume fullscale talks aimed at completing arrangements for a Korean armistice.

Five years ago... Through Red Cross efforts, nine U.S. Army men were released by East German after being held for six weeks when their helicopter landed in Communist territory by error.

One year ago... All 26 persons aboard were killed in the crash of a United Arab Republic Comet jetliner near Bangkok in Thailand.

Used for a Game of Tag

BY CAPPY DICK

Today's project is a funny one. It's a walking carton.

Of course, the carton really doesn't walk. You do the walking, but you are wearing the carton.

Use shoulder cords and the sight can be funny indeed. Nevertheless, there's a good tag game in which all the players wear cartons. Furthermore the cartons are actually useful in carrying things, such as groceries and other packages.

To make a walking carton, get a corrugated box that is at least 12 inches wide, 12 inches long and 12 inches high (Figure 1.) A bigger one will be suitable.

Remove the top flaps. Cut two holes in the bottom (Figure 2) big enough to put your feet and legs through. Attach a pair of shoulder cords as in Figure 3.

Put your feet and legs through the carton, place the straps over your shoulders and you are ready for the laughs your appearance will create incidentally, this can be a lot of fun at a party, if everybody puts on a walking carton.

All Wear Cartons

For the tag game one player, who wears no carton, is "it." All the other players wear cartons. Running in one of these boxes isn't easy because the freedom of leg movement is considerably reduced. So all "it" has to do to tag a player is toss a stick into his carton. That player becomes "it." He steps out of his carton and loans it to the other player.

Assembly Debate On Budget Bill Set

Major Areas of Conflict Are Sales Levy Extensions, Cuts In Proposal Okayed by Senate

MADISON (AP)—The State Assembly was left alone today with its budget-tax problems while the Senate elected to take time off. Formal debate on the latest Republican version of a budget-tax bill was to begin late this afternoon. Major areas of conflict are proposed extensions of the sales tax and reductions in the budget already approved by the Senate.

Radicals Now Appear Victors In Argentina

Party Gained About 25 Per Cent of Votes Cast July 7

BY ISAAC A. LEVI

BIENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Dr. Arturo Illia high man in the July 7 elections, appears certain of enough electoral college votes to elect him president of Argentina.

Illia, Peoples Radical Party received about 25 per cent of the popular vote. But the 169 seats his party won in the electoral college tell 70 short of the half-plus one majority needed to make him president.

The 476-seat college will meet July 31 to elect a president.

The country doctor from Cordoba Province has been conducting some horse trading with other parties for the additional necessary votes. He seems assured of 73 Illia candidacies has met with no substantial opposition from any of the other 22 parties.

Deposed President Arturo Frondizi's Intangibles Radical party, which won 109 electoral college votes, has split.

One faction offered to back Illia if he dropped his running mate Carlos Perette, and accepted an intangibles as vice president. Illia rejected the proposal.

Parties Silent

The other faction and former provisional President Pedro E. Aramburu's two-party coalition have remained silent.

Illia, 62, has been concentrating on winning votes from the small, er parties, some of which have a strong following in the provinces. He appears to have rallied the Conservative Federation of Center Parties—with 36 seats—to his side by offering to back a conservative for governor of Mendoza Province.

By repeating campaign promises to annual development contracts with foreign oil companies and break relations with the International Monetary Fund he has wooed the left-wing Christian Democrats and the Argentine Socialists. Together they hold 37 electoral votes.

All three parties still have to ratify their leaders' decisions to support Illia. But his party strategists are sure he will get the votes.

Mexico and the United States announced Thursday an agreement to settle the Chamizal affair. The Rio Grande river changed its course in 1864 and Mexico claimed land north of the new channel, to the old channel, an area named El Shamizal. The Rio Grande is to be re-routed in a concrete-lined channel bringing an increase of 437 acres in Mexico's national territory. Mexico is to cede to the U. S. one-half of an area called Gordova Island which is not an island but an enclave of 386 undeveloped acres, jutting north of the river into El Paso, Tex. (AP Wirephoto)

Strip of Texas Land Given Back to Mexico

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—With acquired 3,750 residents, nearly mingled emotions, residents on all of Mexican descent, and 382 both sides of the border here buildings.

In common with the two heads of state, El Paso leaders applauded the international pact as long overdue in payment of a just claim.

Other Reaction

Not all the reaction was favorable. Some Chamizal residents don't want to see their homes cross the border and said they're dubious about obtaining fair compensation.

Tourists who cross the international bridges from El Paso to Juarez know the Chamizal strip as a largely drab section mingling $5,000 to $10,000 homes, shacks, apartments and business structures—office buildings, a public school, a meat packing plant and two stockyards.

U. S. Dist. Judge R. E. Thomas, 84, recalled trying to work out a Chamizal settlement while he was mayor of El Paso and later this district's congressman for 17 years.

"We wrestled with the Chamizal for 50 years," the jurist said, "and it would be an eyesore for another 100 years if we don't make a settlement now."

"I visualize the time when El Paso and Juarez will be the great twin cities of North America and there will be a tremendous development. I would like to see the agreement followed by a real drive to get rid of the slums, a fine beautification program and a great monumental free bridge."

No Great Surprise

There was no great surprise at the Chamizal plans, announced simultaneously by Presidents Kennedy and Lopez Mateos. They first talked about the matter in June of last year when Kennedy went to Mexico.

In addition to restoring 437 acres to Mexico, the settlement calls for rerouting the Rio Grande in a concreted channel to make it the border line again at all points here. This will cost an estimated $6 million and the two nations will split the cost.

Mexico, for its part, will cede to the United States half of an area named Cordova Island, an untenanted peninsula extending into this country. It contains 396 acres of pastures and fields.

Each government will turn over land and other property to the other free of private claim.

Rule Death of Negro Youth Justifiable

MARION, Ark. (AP)—The death of a 17-year-old Negro shot by a group of white citizens and sheriff's deputies after a woman said he molested her daughter was ruled justifiable homicide Thursday.

Coroner T. H. McGough, who conducted the inquest, said there was no testimony as to who fired the bullet which killed Andrew Lee Anderson of nearby Vincent, Ark., Wednesday.

The mother testified she saw a Negro molesting her eight-year-old daughter on a lawn near her home in Marion. She said he ran and she started driving down the street yelling for help.

Several white men and sheriff's deputies chased Anderson into a bean field, where he was shot in the leg with a high-powered rifle. The bullet severed an artery.

Sheriff Cecil Goodwin said Anderson halted several times and threw up his hands, but each time he ran again.

Marion is across the Mississippi River from Memphis, Tenn.

Espionage Case Against Seaman Goes to Jury

NEW YORK (AP)—The case of Navy Yeoman Nelson C. Drummond, accused of espionage, goes to the jury today.

Drummond could receive the death sentence.

This is Drummond's second trial. The first ended May 25 in a hung jury. Several jurors told newsmen the only holdout for acquittal was a Negro. The Negro juror told newsmen he believed the FBI framed Drummond.

The second jury, 10 men and two women, also has one Negro member.

Drummond testified that Soviet agents paid him up to $24,000 for documents that he said had been declassified and were not valuable. He also said the Soviets threatened him.

Drummond, 34, was arrested last Sept. 28 by FBI agents who caught him with two aides of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations outside a diner in Larchmont, N.Y. Drummond was stationed at the naval base in Newport, R.I.

Skiers Forced Out of Aussie Lodge by Fire

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Forty men and women skiers fled in their pajamas today from a blazing building into a raging snowstorm in the Mt. Kosciuszko area of Australia's southern Alps.

Barefooted skiers tried to fight the fire with buckets and hoses, but the Kosciuszko Alpine Club building was destroyed in 40 minutes. No one was injured.

The skiers were taken to nearby Charlotte Pass chalet.

The fire broke out in a two-story building which was being used as a ski lodge. The fire spread rapidly through the building, which was filled with skiers and their equipment.

The fire was caused by a faulty electrical wiring in the kitchen area.

The fire department arrived within 10 minutes, but the building was already too badly damaged to save.

Regulations Tightened On Shipment of Goods To European Markets

Austria Dropped From Barter Setup After Violating Contract

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. government has put a new lock on the barn door since 24 million bushels of American grain vanished in the sleight of hand of European trade.

The huge amounts of feed grain were destined for Austria but were last seen officially at West German ports.

Apparently the grain — purchased at a discount of 7.5 to 9 per cent — was diverted by the Austrian importing firms to more favorable markets in countries not eligible for the shipments, a violation of the contracts the importers had with the Agriculture Department.

Since discovery of the deal, the department has tightened its regulations requiring the buyers to prove the commodities reached their proper destination. The buyers must provide bonds to assure compliance.

Dropped from Program
Also, American officials in Vienna said Thursday that Austria has been dropped from the barter program involving industrial materials and surplus U. S. farm products pending clarification of what happened to the grain.

Barter deals involving surplus U. S. farm products are more or less sales deals. In the case of barter, the government gets paid in strategic materials instead of dollars and limits destination of the commodities to areas which otherwise would not buy the U. S. product.

In the case of the Austrian deals, which began in 1959, the department agreed with Austrian traders to sell them feed grains for strategic materials of equal value.

As the transactions went forward, the department provided the grain to the private concerns, which arranged for their shipment to German ports. The department in turn received payment in the strategic materials.

The department said it was supplied, as it had required, with documentary evidence the grain was shipped to the German ports for transport overland to Austria.

Since discovery of the deal, the department has tightened its regulations requiring the buyers to prove the commodities reached their proper destination. The buyers must provide bonds to assure compliance.

Steel Expects Order Hikes Next Month

Increases Would Guarantee Sizable Recovery in Fall

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Wait till next month is the cry in steel circles. This basic industry expects the current drop in new orders to be reversed by mid August.

Shipments will be tied to the declining orders that came with the conclusion of a new labor pact. So shipments probably will continue fairly slow till Labor Day. But the new orders should be picking up before that, guaranteeing a sizable fall recovery.

At least, this is the thinking among those steelmen who refuse to be disturbed by the drop from the admittedly somewhat feverish activity while labor negotiations were under way.

Some of the heavy ordering in late spring also might be traced to fear that a rail strike might disrupt shipments.

A drop in new orders was expected with removal of any threat of a steel strike and spreading belief that a rail strike would be avoided somehow.

And, steel men say, new orders have held up better than many expected. Certain steel products are still in strong demand.

Ahead of 1962 Figures

Steel consumption is running well ahead of year ago figures. This would mean that consumer stocks would be used up fairly fast and customers would be back with new orders much sooner than they were in 1962 when similar strike hedge ordering gave the industry an unusually fat period followed by an unusually lean one.

Optimism also is fed by good earnings during the last three months while production was stumbling and the new cost cutting equipment was coming into use.

A side line to this is that the new equipment and steel-making methods means that the break-even point has been lowered. The companies can go through the summer slack spell with less strain on the profit and loss ledger.

3 Killed in Road Accidents

Fourth Man Dies From Injuries of Crash Last Month

GREEN BAY — Accidents in Brown and Oconto counties Thursday along with the death of a Racine man injured in an accident a month ago, and of a Marshfield man in another crash, raised Wisconsin's highway toll for the year to 420, compared with 499 at this time a year ago.

Victim of a head-on collision south of De Pere Thursday afternoon was Edward Hoskens, 44, route 2, De Pere.

Edward Dallas, 60, Oconto, died Thursday night when his converted truck was hit from behind by a semi-trailer truck near Oconto.

Hoskens was killed about 2:45 p.m. Thursday when his car and a car driven by Ruth Kuhs, 51, collided on State 57 four miles south of De Pere.

Mrs. Kuhs received leg and foot fractures while her daughter Betty, 15, suffered a foot fracture.

Brown County police said the Kuhs auto was traveling north on 57 when it and the southbound Hoskens auto collided, demolishing the front ends of both cars.

Hoskens was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident.

Richard Kolbeck, 25, of Marshfield was killed Thursday when struck by a 10-ton tank truck as he worked with a crew setting forms for a concrete pavement on Highway 20 near Withee in Clark County community.

Roland Olson, 32, of Racine, died Thursday night of injuries received June 23 when his car overturned on a Racine street. He was a music teacher at Racine's Park High School.

Youth Fails to Produce Bill Of Sale; Jailed for 6 Weeks

CHILTON — Doyle P. Mitchell, 20, Manitowoc, spent a month and a half in Calumet County jail because he failed to show his attorney a bill of sale for an auto Mitchelltree was charged with stealing.

Mitchelltree was arrested June 8 on charges brought by the St. Albans Ramblers Corp., Forest Junction. The charge stated Mitchelltree had intentionally taken and retained possession of a 1957 convertible auto valued at $300.

Stock Market Drifts Lower

Dow Jones Average Off 3.04 at Noon, Now Reads 692.86

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to drift lower in quiet trading early this afternoon with foreign issues still off on balance, but some steady.

Confusion still reigned in Wall Street regarding President Kennedy's proposals for taxing of Americans on purchase of foreign securities.

Stock market experts described most of the damage to prices resulting from the Kennedy proposal as psychological.

Stock markets in Canada and overseas still were reacting — in some cases drastically — to the Kennedy proposals.

In New York, most losses of key stocks were slight, but a few sharp declines by blue chips dragged at the averages.

The Associated Press average of the 60 stocks at noon was down to a moderate loss of .5 at 266.3 with industrials off .9, rails off .4, and utilities off .2.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was down 3.04 to 692.86.

Among the big foreign stocks, Royal Dutch was under pressure, losing nearly a point. Unilever N. V. fell more than a point while its British counterpart, Unilever Ltd., edged to the upside.

A drop of more than 2 by Du Pont depressed the averages. Also influential in this respect were fractional losses by Jersey Standard, American Telephone, General Motor, U.S. Steel, Santa Fe, and Southern Pacific.

Jones & Laughlin reported higher earnings and gained a point. Virginia-Carolina Chemical spun off another 3 points.

Tobacco staged a moderate rally with Liggett & Myers up nearly a point.

IBM and Polaroid were off about 1 each.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed.

Corporate bonds were irregular. U.S. government bonds resumed their advance.

Compromise Milk Program Developed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A compromise milk program has been developed by milk producers and the Agriculture Department, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., told the Senate Thursday.

He said the program is aimed at retaining the higher prices paid to producers of liquid milk used by consumers if producers cut back on surplus milk used in manufactured dairy products. It would retain federal price supports and milk marketing orders and agreements.

Legislation based on the compromise was introduced by Proxmire. It was co-sponsored by Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., and Philip Hart, D-Mich.

Proxmire quoted Under Secretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy as saying the plan is acceptable to federal officials. The senator also said it had the support of Mike Norton of the Milk Producers Federation.

The new program, Proxmire said, meets requirements established by Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., who said he would not ask his Senate Agriculture Committee to act on such legislation until milk producers and the dairy industry had resolved their differences.

Calumet Farmer Has Unique Crop in State

Canary Grass Harvested by Rural Chilton Man, Gordon Aebischer, Pioneer Pacesetter in Industry

BY DON KAMPFER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

CHILTON — One of the most difficult and unique harvesting operations in the state is nearing completion.

The unusual crop is canary grass. The harvest setting is the Gordon Aebischer farm, route 4, Chilton, the home of Aebischer Seeds.

Aebischer is a pioneer and a pacesetter in the obscure industry. Thirty-two years ago he and a crew of seven men ventured into the sprawling marshland east of his farm. They hand-reaped about an acre of heads, threshed it and gleaned about 50 pounds of seed. Today Aebischer heads what is believed to be the largest self-contained canary grass seed operation in the country.

Seed from the tall, rank grass common to lowlands is perhaps the most difficult seed of all to harvest, according to Aebischer. It requires immediate attention and painstaking care during the harvesting operation.

A very limited tolerance when it is in the ripening stage makes canary grass the touchy crop that it is. The seed shells out as soon as the head is ripe, Aebischer explained. All of the pre-threshing handling must, therefore, be done during the very limited three to four day lapse between the time the top seeds of the grass head ripen and the ripening of the bottom seeds. Almost all of the fine grain seed would be lost by handling it after it has ripened.

Designs Equipment

At the first signs of ripening, a highly mechanized reaping process swings into operation. Almost all of Aebischer's harvesting and seed processing equipment is of his own design, much of it built by him in the farm shop.

His self-propelled reaper, which he designed and built in 1945, is the only one in operation in the country today, Aebischer said. The unit's power plant is a de-

There also will be a movie shown and refreshments served.

AMA Expresses Support for Safety Week

Farmers Urged To Check Homes By Medical Head

CHICAGO — The American Medical Association today expressed strong support for National Farm Safety Week, proclaimed by President Kennedy for the week of July 21-27.

"American physicians have long been in the forefront of a continuing campaign to help farmers maintain good health and avoid accidents," said Dr. Edward R. Annis, Miami, Fla., AMA president.

"Earlier this year the AMA sponsored the First National Congress on Rural Safety. The Congress brought together for the first time all organizations, both private and governmental, who are concerned with rural safety. Views were exchanged, the problem was clearly outlined, and state and local safety programs were endorsed," Dr. Annis said.

Therefore the AMA is most

Calumet 4-H Girls to Enter 14 Projects at State Fair

Nine 4-H seamstresses from Calumet County will have project work entered in State Fair competition. They will be taken to Milwaukee on Aug. 6 and will be judged on Aug. 7 and 8.

Because there are always several hundred state fair clothing entries, not all the garments will be on display. Garments are selected each day for the clothing exhibit windows in the Youth Building.

The fourteen garments made by nine girls were selected by judges on Style Revue Day recently. Those having exhibits at State Fair will include:

Nancy Peik, Irish Road 4-H Club; Margie Brantmeier, Sherwood Wide Awake 4-H Club; Mary Beth Brantmeier, Sherwood Wide Awake 4-H Club; Rosann Geiser, Pine Creek 4-H Club; Kathy Kochler, Chilton Tip Top 4-H Club; Betty Gruber, Irish Road 4-H Club; Marilyn Lintner, Chilton Tip Top 4-H Club; Debbie Brill, Young Americans 4-H Club and Ritelyn Krueger, Friendly Valley 4-H Club.

Rural Concerns Worried Over Power Charges

REA Administrator Says Rates Not in Line With Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Norman M. Clapp, administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA), reports that rural power cooperatives are concerned over the rates commercial power concerns are charging them for electric energy.

Writing in his agency's monthly magazine, "Rural Lines," the REA chief says local units financed by government loans now pay $100 million a year for such power. This compares with $37 million in 1950.

"Despite the tremendous increase in electric energy purchased, the average price paid to

State Century Farms to be Cited at Fair

Special recognition to farmers whose property has been held continuously within a family ownership for 100 years will be given at a special ceremony at the Wisconsin State Fair the week of Aug. 9-18.

In order to qualify, an application form must be filed with the State Fair Publicity Department not later than July 20.

Outagamie County Agricultural Agent John E. Powers states that it is impossible to determine who should be contacted and urges everyone eligible to contact the County Extension Office to obtain an application blank.

The requirements for the award are that the farm property must be owned by the family for 100 years. This can be determined by abstract of title, deeds or land patents. Title to the century property must be held by a blood relative of the original owner or a legally adopted child.

4-H Dairy Projects Good For Developing Skills

Proper Identification Is a Must In Progressive Breeding Program

BY COURTNEY SCHWERTZ

There is more to a 4-H dairy project than leading a calf around at the County Fair. A dairy project provides an excellent opportunity for young dairymen to learn many new skills.

Schwartz

Here are a couple of skills all Wisconsin dairymen should know and use. You can learn them with your first calf project.

Proper identification of purebred calves is a must and is very desirable for grade calves if followed. Ear tattooing, photographs and sketches, ear tags, and neck straps are the primary methods of identifying dairy calves.

The ear tattoo is perhaps the best method for identifying the calf when the calf is less than two weeks old. There is also less harm to the calf at this age. Clip the long hair inside the ear, wipe out the wax, and apply tattoo ink in the upper one-half of the ear. Then punch with a tattoo and rub ink into each mark. If properly done, the identifying mark will last for the life of the animal.

Photographs or sketches are a good way to identify a breed that has a color pattern. The color pattern of a calf never changes and is different for each animal.

Use Pictures

Closeup pictures will give better detail and you will need pictures of both sides of the calf.

For temporary identification, ear tags or neck straps with numbers on them can be used. These, however, are often lost and are not recommended for permanent identification. Tattoos, photographs and sketches are the best for permanent identification.

Another calf management skill that dairy project members should learn is dehorning. You'll find that dehorning is most easily done when the calf is less than two weeks old. There are a couple of methods a member can use. Caustic po-

Farm Offices Consolidated Move Streamlines Operations of Stockyards Unit

Nationwide consolidation of field offices of the Packers and Stockyards Division of the Agricultural Marketing Service, a major unit of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, was announced recently by USDA.

Purpose of the consolidation is to streamline operations of the P and S Division, according to S. R. Smith, administrator of AMC. The consolidation became effective July 1.

Eleven field offices will continue in their present location with expanded coverage areas, while four new offices are being established. Thirteen former field offices have been consolidated into the new structure.

Gilbert Hopper, Livestock Exchange Building, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, is supervisor of Illinois and Wisconsin. Lou Odom, Live Stock Exchange Building, National Stock Yards, Ill., is supervisor of a sub-office of the Chicago office.

Con Artists Increase Fraudulent Activities

Investigator Describes Practices 'Sharpies' Use on Unwary People

Warm weather, as usual, has brought with it an increase in the activities of the con artists who trick unwary customers and small businessmen into signing all sorts of phony credit contracts, trade acceptances and even blank checks.

"Although many operate all year around, it's always easier and nicer to get around when the weather is pleasant," warns Ray R. Pytel, trade practice investigator for the Wisconsin State Department of Agriculture. The department enforces various deceptive advertising, pricing, and unfair trade practice laws in Wisconsin.

Referral Sales Plan

One fraudulent practice, recently investigated by the Trade Practices Section, involved the giving away of "free" samples in which the homemaker was politely asked to sign a document certifying that she had received the items. The document turned out to be a contract for the purchase of cookware, and the unsuspecting victim was asked to pay a finance firm—even before the merchandise arrived.

Another scheme is the so called referral sales plan, whereby a customer earns credits toward purchase of some appliance or home improvement by exposing prospective customers to a slick pitch by a "fast closer." While a few persons have managed to earn free merchandise this way, others have been the loser.

Generally, it is necessary to make a purchase to be eligible for these "bird dog" credits—and the merchandise usually is overpriced. Under a State Department of Agriculture rule, all referral sales contracts are required to include the terms and details of such commissions, if a purchase is required.

Pytel points out that rural residents frequently are chosen for these schemes because it is difficult for them to check up on the salesman or his product. Small town merchants too, are often victims of the unscrupulous.

25 Cases

"For example," Pytel adds, "we have had at least 25 cases in which grocers, service station operators and other small businessmen, overcome by the glowing prospect of profit from a 'miracle paint' promotion, signed a 'trade acceptance,' and in some cases, blank checks, in order to get in on the 'gravy train.'"

"Once the papers were signed," continued Pytel, "the merchants had no recourse but to pay the amount of the 'contract,' which might be as high as $1,500, to the holder in due course." The paint was, at best, a worthless goo—delivered.

"Sure, the merchant could sue—but first the seller must be found, and finding these people is not the easiest job—collecting a judgment from them is even tougher and, involves the possibility of throwing good money after bad—since it is extremely difficult to collect from them."

Many persons do not realize that once the 'sharpie' has turned the trade acceptance, draft, note or other 'negotiable paper' over to the 'third party,' usually a bank or finance company, that it is collectible, regardless of any claims against the seller.

4-H Club Plans Annual Picnic

DARBOY — The annual club picnic was planned by the Ever Alert 4-H Club at its monthly meeting held recently at Holy Angels School hall. The Calumet County Park will be the location for the picnic to be held on July 21.

Michael Hopfensperger reported on 4-H Camp which he attended. The dress revue held recently at Hilbert High School was the subject of Ellen Hopfensperger's report. Margaret Jochman, of the Darboy Club, was chosen to enter her clothing at the State Fair.

Songs were led by Ann Spranger and Cheryl Mader. Lunch was served by Sandra Schieder, or other 'negotiable paper' over to the 'third party,' usually a bank or finance company, that it is collectible, regardless of any claims against the seller.

Soil Surveys Scheduled for Calumet County

Soil scientists from the U. S. Soil Conservation Service will be spotted throughout Calumet County during the rest of the summer. They will be making detailed soil surveys for farmers and others who have become cooperators with the Calumet County Soil and Water Conservation District. They will be probing for soil depth, type of soil, slope and degree of erosion or wetness of the various soils. These soil survey maps form the basis for working out a soil conservation plan later on.

Pond construction, ditching, land smoothing and building waterways has been the main construction activity during the last month. Wildlife ponds have been completed by Ray Ecker, Stockbridge, and Roger Ott and Roman Bruehm, Harrison. Many more are to be installed this summer. Waterways were recently built by Walton Frisch and George Rabe, New Holstein; Frank and Gib Ortlieb, Paul Schaefer and George Jost of Stockbridge.

Diversions were constructed by Ernie Franzen and Marvin Gernor of Stockbridge, Campbell Bros., Rantoul; and Elder Gilbertson, Woodville.

Concentration of Milk Production

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took the output of only 187,000 farmers to supply the fluid milk delivered last year to marketing areas occupied by about 93 million Americans.

These same farmers produced roughly 41 per cent of all the milk in the nation.

This heavy concentration of milk production by a relatively small percentage of farmers was reported by the Agriculture Department in a survey of a federal milk marketing program.

These farmers were located in 33 urban milk marketing areas that are regulated by the department under federal milk marketing orders.

4-H Members Attend Camp

Calumet County
Youths Complete Chute Lake Outing

CHILTON — Camp at Chute Lake, near Mountain, was attended by approximately one in every six 4-H club members in Calumet County at two camp sessions this month.

Camping period for boys was July 5 to 8, while the 4-H girls camped from July 9 to 12.

Activities for boys consisted of swimming, photography, song leadership and nature study. For the girls, it was boating, craft work, song and game leadership, dramatics, photography and nature study.

Calumet 4-H Leaders Leo Hanke and Mrs. Norman Gruber served as cooks for the groups.

Swimming instruction was under the direction of Mrs. Charles Gee and Pat Plaisted. Craft work was led by Joan Prochnow, Mrs. Joe Hanke and Nancy Peik. Nature study was conducted by Carol Engelhardt and Charles Gee.

Boys' counselors were Ron Steiner, Don Pfister and Bob Lodes. Girls' counselors were Margie Brantmeier, Debbie Brill, Carol Engelhardt, Margaret Jochmann, Arlys Reif and Sue Wettstein.

Grange to Meet

GREENVILLE — The South Greenville Grange will meet July 28 and will go to Lydon Grange, in Sheboygan County, July 29 for a dinner and to present an exchange program.

4-H Youths Spend Week in Exchange

DUNSEITH, N.D. — Thirty-eight Wisconsin 4-H youths arrived at International Peace Gardens near here on the first stop of a Wisconsin-Canadian farm youth exchange tour. International Peace Gardens are located on the border between North Dakota and the Canadian province of Manitoba.

Four-H boys and girls from Door, Dunn, Green, Kenosha, St. Croix, Shawano, Waushara and Polk counties left Wisconsin by bus Tuesday and will return July 17.

Thursday they attended the Canadian 4-H round-up where they met their host families from Northern Manitoba. The youths will spend one week living with Canadian farm families and taking note of agricultural practices there.

The Wisconsin-Canadian 4-H youth program is a mutual exchange initiated three years ago. Last year farm 4-H youths from Canada visited Wisconsin farm families in the same eight counties that are sending their 4-H youths to Canada this year.

Patricia Spielman, home economics agent in Waushara County, and Don Schoedel, Shawano County 4-H club agent, will serve as leader for the Wisconsin group.

Washington Farmers Offering Free Tours To City Dwellers

Urbanites who'd like to find out what life on a farm is really like can take a free, one-day fling at wheat farming in the state of Washington this summer.

The Insider's Newsletter, a national magazine, reports that the Washington Association of Wheat Growers is sponsoring a program of "wheat farm vacations" in order to acquaint city dwellers with the work of its members.

Visitors are expected to furnish their own transportation, but the best, including overnight accommodations, are provided with the compliments of the host-farm family.

Stays at one of the 1,000 participating farms can be arranged through local Chambers of Commerce in Washington or by writing to "Wheat Farm" in either Seattle or Ritzville.

Farm Safety Week

AMA Offers Safety Tips For Accident Prevention

It really isn't news to those who strive to help farmers learn how to live and work in rural areas to avoid accidents.

Inspection, Correction and Prevention are the three keynote themes of National Farm Safety Week. Farmers are urged to inspect their equipment, land, buildings, and the crops and farm animals and their own work habits and attitudes. They are urged to correct dangerous conditions and careless habits. By so doing, farmers can protect lives, their own and others.

Farm resident accidents cause 9,000 deaths and 800,000 disabling injuries every year. These statistics are appalling, because most of these deaths and injuries could have been prevented. And the statistics do not convey the grief, loneliness and pain involved in accidents.

Accidents don't just happen, they are caused. More than 90 per cent of all accidents involve some human failure — improper attitudes, carelessness, lack of attention to rules and regulations.

American physicians, particularly those who practice in rural areas, are well aware of the serious problem of farm accidents. Thus physicians, through their professional association, the AMA, have long been in the forefront of farm safety programs.

Farmer — once again your physician urges you to Inspect, Correct and Protect. It might save your life, or the life of one of your loved ones.

Crop Size in Wisconsin Below Par

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin's 1963 crops will not be as large as last year's because of lack of rain, the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service predicted Thursday.

While acreage for harvest is about the same as last year, the service said yields indicated by July 1 conditions are forecast at lower levels.

Rainfall since April 1 has been about two-thirds of average and because of light snow cover last winter dryness has become a problem, particularly in the southern part of the state.

Temporary relief came from rainfall over most of the state on July 12 and 13.

Ideal haying weather throughout the state allowed excellent quality first crop hay, but because of dryness mowed fields

200 Attend Fete At Knoespel Farm

Nearly 200 persons attended an open house at the Allen Knoespel farm at the Allen Knoespel farm in Calumet County, according to Orin Meyer, county agent.

The Knoespels displayed their cattle herd, the top Ayrshire herd in the state.

Main speaker at the meeting was Hugo Herzog, Chilton, who showed slides of Australia and the South Pacific islands.

are not coming back well and second crop may suffer severely.

Prospects on July 1 were for a oat crop two per cent smaller than last year's. Corn for grain is indicated at 107 million bushels slightly less than last year's crop. The corn was off to a fine, early planted start, but how much the present lack of moisture will affect production is still uncertain, the service said.

Sudangrass Good Crop Say UW Forage Experts

Friday, July 19, 1963 Appleton Post-Crescent 5

Sorghum Fast Growing Hot-Weather Crop, Withstands Dry Periods

Many Wisconsin farmers who were fortunate enough to plant sudangrass late this spring, are now wondering which grazing and harvesting techniques are best.

Sudangrass is a member of the sorghum family and, like other sorghums, is a fast growing hot-weather crop that can withstand dry weather better than most field crops.

University of Wisconsin forage specialists, Jesse School and Julian Sund, offer the following advice on harvesting practices. They say that sudangrass can be used for pasture, silage or green feeding and farmers can expect yields of three to four tons of dry matter per acre or about 10 to 12 tons of silage. It is usually ready for harvest about six weeks after seeding.

Under certain conditions, sudangrass may produce enough prussic acid to be dangerous to cattle or sheep. However, it is a reasonably safe forage crop if the recommended variety is used, short or stunted growth is avoided, and soil fertility is balanced, say the specialists.

Safe For Grazing

When the grass is 18 inches tall or taller, you can be relatively sure that it is safe for grazing. For best results, you should pasture sudangrass before it is fully headed out. Don't allow cattle to graze on the short regrowth. The forage specialists recommend dividing the field into three or four pastures and grazing rotationally.

Prolonged drought, cold or infertile soils, and fall frosts often produce a stunted forage crop that may be high in prussic acid. You should not graze cattle and sheep on this type of growth, say Scholl and Sund.

Many Wisconsin farmers have successfully used sudangrass for green feeding. You may use it for green feeding at any stage of growth above 18 inches. When using this harvesting technique, make sure that each load is fed immediately after chopping and be careful of nitrate poisoning. Prussic acid poisoning will likely occur if the chopped grass is not removed from the wagon within eight hours or less, say the specialists.

Calumet Fair Program Set By Directors

Directors of the Calumet County Fair completed fair programs and plans at a meeting recently.

Entry day for the fair will be Aug. 30, with Aug. 31 scheduled for judging and stock-car racing. The Grandstand attractions on Sunday, Sept. 1 will consist of horse pulling in the morning and Pee-wee racing in the afternoon.

The new county dairy queen will be presented Sunday night along with the county's outstanding cheesemaker.

Monday, Sept. 2, Labor Day, will have stock-car races in the afternoon. "Down River," a musical depicting Wisconsin's early lumberjacks, will be presented in the evening, following the County Dress Revue. Fireworks will mark the conclusion to the fair.

is especially severe if sudangrass is harvested after a rain that followed a prolonged drought. Wait five days after the rain before green feeding, grazing or making silage.

Good Silage

Sudangrass makes very good silage. For highest quality, you should harvest the crop when the seeds are at the milk to early-dough stage. The grass is about five to 10 per cent lower in feed value than corn.

Piper is the best variety available for Wisconsin farms because it is less poisonous to livestock, more productive and more resistant to diseases than other varieties. This is the only sudangrass variety recommended by the specialists.

Sudangrass is seldom used for hay because it is difficult to cure even in hot, dry weather.

Alfalfa Plots To be Studied In Calumet

Alfalfa plots will be studied at the George Schmitz farm in Calumet County at the second county alfalfa meeting Thursday.

At the May meeting, nearly 200 attended to compare the 16 strains planted side by side. At the time, both French strains and Wisconsin vernal appeared satisfactory, according to Calumet County agent Orrin Meyer. The first crop has been removed and a heavy dose of fertilizer has been applied crossways to the strips.

The plot was seeded in the spring of 1962. Strips of Ladino clover and orchard grass also were planted.

Rural Youth Day Set for Shawano

The annual Rural Youth Day will be held Wednesday, July 24, at the fairgrounds in Shawano. Registration will begin at 9:00 a. m.

Agricultural contests will include dairy, garden and crops, and woodworking and forestry. Those participating in the dairy judging contest must be ready to leave the grounds at 9 a. m. Transportation will be furnished to the county farm.

The county dress revue will begin at 9 a. m. Girls may enter any three classes in their division.

Judging classes for the girls will include foods, clothing, and home furnishings. Girls may judge any time during the day, but must be finished by 2 p. m.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the rural youth day activities.

Chain O'Lakes Club To Present Horse Show

WAUPACA — The Chain O'Lakes Saddle Club will present its third annual horse show Sunday, July 28, at the club grounds on the Old Road to King.

The show will include halter classes and children's events starting at 9:30 a.m. Afternoon action will begin at 1 p.m. with trophies, ribbons and prize money in the Western pleasure, balloon race, speed and action keyhole, stock horse reining, pole weaving, open barrel race, Australian pursuit, flag race, rescue race, western jumping ribbon race and scoop shovel.

Members of the club are providing refreshments and lunch on the grounds all day.

Soil Surveys Planned to Aid Outdoor Organizations

Soil surveys and interpretations of open areas in seven counties in southeastern Wisconsin will be completed by mid-1965, W. W. Russell, State Conservationist of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, announced.

Completion of the survey within three years is made possible by a cost-sharing agreement between the Southeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and the Soil Conservation Service, Russell said.

According to Vernon Geiger, Outagamie Soil Conservationist, approximately 10,000 acres of land will be surveyed in Outagamie County Soil & Water Conservation District this year.

The survey will provide an inventory of the soils, listing their unique characteristics, qualities and performances to a depth of several feet. The study will enable the Commission to adapt their planning to the soil patterns of the area, thereby avoiding the wastes and sorrows that have plagued land users in the past, Russell said.

Exact Knowledge

The survey is expected to provide the Commission with exact knowledge of the soils and make possible a host of precise predictions concerning agriculture and wildlife potentialities of the region, engineering properties of the soil, and possible park or open space use.

The survey information will provide engineers, both private and public, with interpretive information of value in making preliminary estimates of the suitability of soils for private sewage disposal facilities, agricultural and urban drainage systems, foundations for buildings and structures, including transportation facilities, water storage reservoirs and embankments.

Improve Habitats

Game and fish organizations and sportsmen groups will be assisted by the survey in finding ways for improving wildlife habitats.

County soils reports will be published as soon as possible after completion of the field surveys. They will contain the soil survey maps and interpretive data. They will be available for public use.

"DOC SAYS:

"YOUR COOPERATIVE PROTECTS YOUR INVESTMENT."

Membership in a dairy operating cooperative is more than an investment. It's your guarantee as a farmer that the milk your cows produce will have a market.

To protect such a market, your dairy plant must have sufficient volume to operate efficiently. It can't pay more for the milk than the fluid milk or its products can bring in income. With volume and efficient operation you have a market every day of the year.

Your Dairy Operating Cooperative, along with other Wisconsin operating cooperatives are your bargaining agents. You have a hand in determining the policies of your cooperative. Your capable manager and board of directors serve as your representatives to find the best possible markets with the highest dollar return for you.

Support your guaranteed market. Understand your cooperative's policies. Your best insurance for a good market for your milk is a strong, progressive cooperative.

Coming Sunday Navy Officer Misses Thresher

When the nuclear submarine Thresher was reported overdue, Navy Lt. Raymond A. McCoolle, sole surviving officer of her crew, was home with his wife, Barbara. She had suffered serious injury to her eyes, and he had been commanded to stay with her even though he had hoped to be present on what turned out to be the Thresher's last voyage.

Lt. McCoolle has wanted to be a submariner ever since he watched the Navy ships sail past the fishing vessels on which he helped his mother earn their living near Dover, N. H. Landlocked on an assignment in Ida

How McCoolle became a submariner and has met the inner remorse of not being with his ship on her final voyage makes a poignant story. It is related by him to reporter-writer Jack Ryan in the national magazine, Family Weekly, this Sunday, with your...

Cattle Breeder To Address County Meeting

Gene Nelson Will Discuss Holstein Dairying Topics

Gene Nelson, Union Grove, Wis., will discuss "Dairying with Holsteins" at the annual Outagamie County Holstein breeders twilight meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Nelson is a well-known Holstein breeder, a state and national officer in the Holstein - Friesian Association and a veteran judge of many state and national shows. This year's Holstein Twilight meeting will be held at the John Kelly farm located one-half mile south of Medina on County Highway M. At this farm breeders will see a 327 acre dairy farm operation consisting of 51 Holstein milk cows. Items of special interest at the farm will be his fly control program and a farm fish pond.

Other activities planned for the program will be a dairy cattle judging contest for men, women and youth, report on Outagamie County Holstein activities by county president, Cyril Letter, discussion of state and national Holstein activities by Vernon Olson, state Holstein fieldman, a demonstration on a dairy cattle milking system by Don Steege and a special dairy fly control demonstration. The program will end with a dairy lunch.

the planning committee, states that "This year's program is designed to bring breeders up to date on developments in the Holstein world and to provide an opportunity for an exchange of ideas among county breeders."

The two speakers and the special activities planned are hoped to be of interest to all Holstein breeders in Outagamie County. Weyenberg says that everyone interested in Holstein cattle is invited to attend.

Stockbridge Watershed Unit Offers Tour, 32 Participate in Program

STOCKBRIDGE — The Stockbridge Watershed Unit offered a tour Tuesday to study conservation practices in Potter Hay and Feed Mill was Calumet County. Orin Meyer, Calumet county agent, Bruno Zucchi, county soil conservationist, and Ron Herman, county forester, acted as guides. Thirty-two members took part.

Field drainage, tile and land-sloping being carried out on the new Stockbridge High School Athletic field were explained by Zucchi.

Forestry management was observed at the Wilmer Schulz farm route 1 Menasha, where a 25-acre woodlot has been managed, trees marked for harvest and maple syrup produced.

Keeping Close Records on Herd Beneficial to Breeder

Hilman Schroeder, Swine Breeder, Attests On-Farm Testing Program

SAUK CITY — About 10 years ago a young boy bought two bred sows and ventured into the purebred swine business. Today Hilman Schroeder raises over 500 purebred Yorkshires a year and is known throughout the state and the Midwest as an outstanding hog breeder.

Becoming a successful purebred hog breeder does not just happen. It takes years of hard work, some luck, and a lot of know-how. Much of Schroeder's know-how has been obtained through an organization called the Wisconsin Swine Selection Cooperative.

"Before I began keeping records on my swine herd, I was just a young kid, working hard and not really knowing what I was doing," Schroeder said. Today as a member of the cooperative, he does have records — files full of records — and he knows what he is doing.

Schroeder's herd today is based primarily on one of the two sows he bought as a member of the Prairie du Sac Future Farmers of America (FFA) Chapter. Her name was Princess Ann, and Schroeder speaks of her with fond admiration.

By keeping close records on his herd over the years, this young hog producer has made outstanding progress in improving his stock. The on-farm testing program Schroeder used in getting started provided him with information on litter size, rate of gain, and back fat.

"Records are a tool that help you make selections," Schroeder said. "You still have to use some judgment though. The important management programs and give additional information to the producer.

Hogs taken to the stations are tested for rate of gain, feed conversion, and carcass characteristics. These are important considerations when selecting breeding stock and can best be obtained under the uniform conditions of the testing stations.

Improvement Of Herd

Schroeder has also been able to improve his herd on the basis of this information. Since 1959, when he first sent hogs to the testing station, he has improved the average loin eye area of his herd from 4.2 square inches to 4.9 square inches. The average 180 day weight has increased from 225 pounds to about 245 pounds. The lean cut yield on hogs submitted for testing has also improved.

"I have managed to make slow but steady improvement since 1959," Schroeder said. But more important than the rate of improvement is the number of hogs in the herd that make efficient gains and yield good meaty carcasses.

"You can't sell one good boar 10 times," Schroeder said, "but if you have 10 good boars, you can make 10 sales." This has been one of his primary objectives — improving the entire herd so that there will be more good breeding stock available.

Schroeder will be the first to admit that the selection program has helped him, but he also realizes that the housewife who buys the pork chops in the store is the one the program is really aimed at helping. Most of the pork that eventually reaches the retail shelf is produced by the commercial hog producers and not by the purebred breeders. "This program is really designed to help the commercial hogmen," Schroeder said. "The commercial feeders have to know where they're at just like we do," he said.

On-Farm Program Best

Schroeder feels that the on-farm testing program is the most promising for the commercial hogmen. This will give them the necessary information they need for making replacement choices.

"There is no such thing as a best boar pig," Schroeder said. "There is only a best boar for each individual breeder. And to know which is the best boar for them, the commercial feeder must have records on his herd so that he can see where the weaknesses are," he said.

He urged the commercial feeders to buy more purebred stock that has been tested and proved in closely supervised tests like those conducted by the testing stations. Here is where you can find the boar pig with the traits that will improve your individual herd.

Start in Business

When I first got started in this business, I felt I was doing real well if I averaged eight pigs a litter. Now I average about 10 pigs a litter," he said. Schroeder has improved both litter size and litter weights through wise selection practices. In 1959 average weights on the eight pig litters were between 80 and 90 pounds. Today with an average of 10 pigs per litter, these same three week weights average 140 to 150 pounds.

In 1959, Schroeder felt that he needed more information on his swine herd than the on-farm testing program could provide. So he began sending a few of his hogs to the central testing stations. These stations are provided by the cooperative and supervised by specialists from the University of Wisconsin department of meat and animal science.

In this advanced program, two pigs from a litter are sent to one of the four testing stations located in the state. These stations provide controlled feeding and

Public Showings of Meat Products Set For Wisconsin Fair

Getting down to the meat of the matter will be a public showing in the Food Products Building of prized dressed and chilled beef, pork and lambs at the Wisconsin State Fair Aug. 9-18.

Part of the quality meat production program for the profit of livestock farmers, the refrigerated display will follow judging of livestock on the hoof and after slaughter. Entry deadlines are July 25 for beef, market lamb and market quality hog showmen.

Market lambs and steers on the hoof will be judged Aug. 11, quality lamb Aug. 12 and quality beef Aug. 14. Quality pork will be judged on the hoof Aug. 14 and exhibit Aug. 15.

Canary Grass Unique Crop In Wisconsin

pendable old Model A engine. The reaper travels over the canary grass fields clipping off the grass just below the heads. The machine also loads the heads onto a trailing wagon by means of a conveyor.

The unthreshed heads are then carted to the spacious Aebischer barn and piled on a drying floor. Here again the crop is delicate. The seed is oily and requires artificial drying to permit storage without spoilage or damage to its germination potential. Drying, however, must be done with unheated air. The seed is sensitive to heat and a low 105 degrees is its critical temperature.

To complete the drying of the unthreshed heads without heat damage, Aebischer built several powerful blower dryers, much like hay dryers but capable of far more air than the conventional hay dryer. He built his first dryer in 1946.

Once the heads are thoroughly dried — this requires about two or three days on the drying mow — they are run through a specially rebuilt threshing machine. The machine appears to be a conventional thresher but it has added cleaning equipment. A large fanning mill cleaning unit is also attached to the threshing machine and the seed goes through it all in one operation. All of the steps were designed by Aebischer.

New Drying Process

The mow drying process perfected by Aebischer marked a major departure in the canary grass harvesting methods. Prior to this, the crop was either combine harvested in the field or threshed "green" and the seed was then dried. Aebischer found the new method to be far more effective than either of the aforementioned.

In the early days he established many "firsts" in the obscure field. Then after he entered into the venture, he built a horse-drawn reaper by converting an old grain binder. This was when "green" threshing was the accepted harvest method. He built the first seed dryer in 1936, the same year he purchased the first combine sold in Wisconsin designed to harvest canary grass.

For his work in developing this phase of the seed industry, Aebischer was honored in 1954 as the Wisconsin Master Farmer.

He now harvests 180 acres of canary grass. The crop is as unpredictable as it is difficult, Aebischer commented. The yield ranges from nothing to 300 pounds an acre, he said, adding that the average yield is about 100 to 150 pounds an acre. The crop this year was hurt somewhat by the hot, dry weather, he said.

Certified Dealer

There are seed men in the state who have more acreage than Aebischer but none has the complete harvesting and processing equipment. Already a certified dealer handling corn and small grains, Aebischer undertook the canary grass seed marketing.

Canary grass is used primarily as a lowland hay and pasture crop. A new use evolved from the recent emphasis on land conservation and the fast-growing grass is now frequently used as a root crop to curb soil erosion.

The seed has no other commercial value such as vegetable oil, Aebischer stated. It has a toxic effect on birds, he said, pointing out that many sparrows die after overeating of the seed. Aebischer has also had a limited fatality incidence with chickens on his farm.

The seed's market area is far-flung. Aebischer has shipped seed as far west as Denver and he has markets along the Eastern seaboard.

Aebischer Is Inspecting Some of the fine grained canary grass seed grown and harvested on his farm east of Chilton.

The jury decided in favor of Bob Green, and the store owner appealed to the supreme court. Can the store owner be held liable in this case? Yes, said the court. The sale of a poisonous substance such as that in question, without the buyer being made aware of its dangerous character, and without the container being plainly labeled with the word "Poison," is expressly prohibited by statute. The law requiring proper labeling of poisons applies to manufacturers as well as retailers. A violation of this law amounts to negligence said Green. Disease Researchers Addressed by H. R. Bird

Has the stepped-up pace of living in the hen house made chickens more susceptible to certain virus diseases?

Probably not, according to a University of Wisconsin poultry researcher, but there is really not enough scientific evidence available to say for sure. H. R. Bird was addressing about 200 of the world's top virus disease researchers on the University of Wisconsin campus for the opening day of an international symposium on Newcastle disease virus.

The symposium continues through Wednesday.

Newcastle virus is a relatively new disease organism — identified in 1926 — affecting the respiratory system of chickens.

"Modern high density housing is said to place 'stress' on chickens, but who knows what chickens worry about? If they do, how does that affect their susceptibility to the virus?" Bird asked.

Bird was relating some of the dramatic changes that have occurred in poultry management since the turn of the century. Some researchers feel that the new management practices have altered the chicken's biological processes enough so that a once harmless organism might now cause disease.

Old Methods Bettered

"The combination of genetic selection and changes in environment has created a new animal — a faster growing and faster maturing animal with greater reproductive efficiency. The changes in environment since 1920 have provided much better nutrition for chickens and possibly for the viruses that attack them," Bird said.

In addition to nutrition changes since 1920 the researcher cited other environmental factors that have changed the biological processes of poultry. Some of these are mass medication, use of deep litter, confinement rearing of pullets, very large laying houses, laying cages, and artificial light.

However, Bird discounted most of these environmental changes since they occurred after the introduction and spread of the disease in this country. Other environmental changes occurred about the same time the disease was developing, but they could just be coincidental, Bird said.

Researchers know that artificial lighting and controlled lighting change the hormone-balance in poultry. But they do not know what effect this change has on the virus. Much more research must be done before the effects of environments on hostpathogen relationships can be determined, Bird said.

More Cattle on Feed Despite Price Drop In Winter, Spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Price declines during the winter and spring have not unduly discouraged cattle feeders.

The Agriculture Department reported that 11 per cent more cattle were on feed in 28 major feeding states July 1 than a year earlier. This feeding is to produce fat cattle for the quality slaughter market.

The number on feed July 1 was 6,830,000 compared with 6,135,000 a year earlier. Increases were shown in all weight groups with cattle weighing over 900 pounds up 17 per cent from July 1, 1962. In the north central region—the major feeding area of the country—all states except Missouri had more than a year ago. Missouri was down 1 per cent.

McNamara Knows No Leaks of U. S. Military Secrets

Says American Personnel Not Involved in Security Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today "I know of no leaks" of U. S. military plans or information on current weapons in recently uncovered Swedish and British security cases.

"I know of no compromise of U. S. military plans," McNamara told a news conference.

"I know of no association of U. S. military personnel in release of classified information to non-U. S. sources."

The Pentagon chief said further

he knows of "no compromise of our current weapons systems."

McNamara was asked about the possible U. S. security implications of disclosures in Sweden and Britain, and whether the United States is taking any special steps as a result.

No special action is being taken, McNamara said, noting that there is a constant review of security measures.

There have been recent reports that Col. Stig Wennerstrom, a Swedish military attaché in Washington in the mid-1950's, obtained vital U. S. intelligence information and passed it on to the Russians.

McNamara acknowledged that Wennerstrom might have obtained weapons information but noted that the Swedish colonel left the United States in 1957.

The strong implication in this, together with McNamara's stress on the term current weapons systems, is that any information Wennerstrom might have obtained in the 1950's is by now outdated.

In his first general news conference since late February, McNamara also made these points:

Nuclear test ban — he said "all responsible leaders" in the Defense Department believe it would be against the interests of the United States to permit further spread of nuclear weapons. An enforceable test ban would help prevent that proliferation," he said.

TFX — The Defense Secretary side-stepped reporters' invitations to comment on possible motivations in a Senate committee's investigation of the choice of General Dynamics Corp. over the Boeing Co. to develop the TFX fighter plane.

He said he has read 4,420 pages of committee testimony and "I see nothing to change my view."

Populace Warned To Stay Inside Homes or be Shot

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Maj. Gen. Amin Hafez, the Syrian army strong man, announced today 12 persons implicated in an uprising Thursday against Syria's Ba'athist Socialist government have been tried and executed.

Radio Damascus broadcast Hafez's statement after a new curfew was clamped on the entire country and Syrians were warned to stay inside or be shot. The revolt had seemed to have pro-Nasser overtones.

A colonel identified as Hisham Shabib, five noncommissioned officers and four civilians were tried by a court — martial formed by the National Revolutionary Council and quickly executed, the radio said. All the soldiers were from the army signal corps.

Court Still Meeting

Hafez, who is deputy military governor, interior minister, deputy premier, defense minister and army chief of staff, warned that disturbers of the peace must be punished. He said the court was still in session.

The executions were the first.

Will be Sent to Congress for Legislation to Block Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special six-member fact-finding committee delivered to President Kennedy today its report on the facts and issues in the railway work rules dispute.

The report is to be sent to Congress Monday, along with Kennedy's proposals for legislation to block a nationwide rail strike.

The committee, headed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, entered Kennedy's office without making any comment.

It completed the report Thursday night, with help from a staff of Labor and Commerce department aides.

The President probably will take the report with him for study at Hyannis Port, Mass., over the weekend. He plans to have his recommendations ready for presentation to Congress Monday.

The President, Wirtz and congressional leaders have said they hope some agreement would be arrived at before legislation is necessary to break the union-management deadlock. But there has been no indication of any behind-the-scenes negotiations.

Kennedy Request

At Kennedy's request the carriers agreed to hold off instituting new work rules—designed to eliminate eventually some 60,000 rail jobs deemed unnecessary by management—until July 29. Similarly, the unions agreed not to take any strike action until that time.

That gives Congress just one week to mull over any possible legislative remedies Kennedy may suggest. All indications are that the most likely legislative approach would be compulsory arbitration.

A draft of the report was shown to the nation's largest rail carriers and five operating unions who are involved in the work rules dispute.

Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds said the union delegates found the report to be "factually accurate." And J. E. Wolfe, chief negotiator for the carriers, said he couldn't be critical of the fact-finding panel's efforts.

He said he thought the members "tried to do a good job." Some revisions were offered by each side, but all were of a minor nature, Reynolds indicated.

Testifies in Washington

Reuther Urges Strong Civil Rights Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter P. Reuther urged Congress today to strengthen President Kennedy's civil rights program.

Among other things, he suggested direct payment of damages to persons discriminated against in public facilities.

"Not only the patron but the public-spirited proprietor will benefit from an enforceable public accommodations measure," Reuther told a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Reuther, president of the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers, said the President's proposals provided "a strong first step" towards guaranteeing "all Americans equality in law and equality in fact."

He told the congressmen in his prepared statement:

"Do More"

"Your committee cannot do less than he has asked: we urge it to do more."

Among other proposals which Reuther said the group should add to the President's seven-point civil rights package were:

1. A federal fair employment practices commission;

2. Federal voting registrars

Khrushchev Says He Wants All Nuclear Testing Halted

BY PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev expressed optimism today about the chances for a Big Three agreement in current negotiations on a limited nuclear test ban and said he would like to see outlawing of all such tests, including those underground.

The Soviet leader reiterated in a Kremlin speech that he wanted an East-West nonaggression pact.

He did not insist that it be tied to the treaty being negotiated here to forbid nuclear test blasts in the air, outer space and under water.

This would seem to indicate that Khrushchev might be receptive to a countersuggestion made by President Kennedy through his special envoy, W. Averell Harriman, that the issue be handled through nonaggression declarations.

Military Inspection

At the same time, Khrushchev again announced he was ready to permit Western inspection of vital military installations inside the Soviet Union as safeguard against concentrations for a surprise attack.

This was offered as a device for helping to ease world tensions and was not directly connected with the test ban treaty.

Speaking of the U.S., British and Russian test ban talks in Moscow, Khrushchev said:

"We are under the impression that there is hope now of achieving agreement on the banning of nuclear tests in the atmosphere, cosmic space and under water if, of course, there are no special changes in the positions of the American and British representatives."

"We would like to achieve such an agreement that would include the banning of all tests, including underground tests as well."

Detection Means

"It has been demonstrated by science and technique that the banning of all tests, including underground ones, can be controlled with the help of national technical means of detection which are at the disposal of nations now."

But the representatives of the United States and England still insist on the necessity of international inspection. They do not want to give up their aspirations which, in reality, have nothing to do with the cessation of nuclear tests.

"Why and what for is this being done? In order to have the chance to carry out intelligence work."

"The picture is quite clear: Apparently, we will not reach agreement on the ban of underground nuclear tests at the present time. Nevertheless, the Soviet government considers that if an agreement is achieved on a ban of nuclear tests in the atmosphere, it will be a step towards the cessation of nuclear tests."

Chinese Hear Blunt Challenge From Nikita

Warns Nuclear War Could Destroy All of Mankind

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev declared today a new world war is not necessary to build communism or speed up revolution. He said a nuclear war could destroy mankind and even those who survived might "envy the dead."

The Soviet leader laid down the blunt challenge to his Chinese Communist opponents — who believe revolutionary wars are inevitable — at a Kremlin friendship rally for visiting Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar.

As he spoke his aides were fighting the argument out with Chinese delegates at rapidly-collapsing peace talks at a suburban villa.

War Unnecessary

Khrushchev told 6,000 widely applauding persons at the rally that "a world war is necessary neither for the building of the socialism nor communism, nor for the acceleration of the world revolution."

He said that "the superiority of the forces of socialism, peace and democracy over the forces of imperialism, reaction and aggression is growing."

Without specifying how, Khrush-

'Outagamie's Air Potential 4 Times Greater Than Oshkosh'

Statement by State Consultant Comes at CAB Airport Hearing

BY JAY REED

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUSAU — An airport consultant for the State Aeronautics Commission repeated here today that a new regional airport in Outagamie County will generate nearly four times greater traffic volume than would a regional airport at Oshkosh.

Robert Brice told the Civil Aeronautics Board regional airport hearing that he "stands by my judgment" in the assessment of the passenger potential at Appleton.

Brice was subject to strenuous cross-examination by Robert Lester, special counsel for Winnebago County who attempted to break down Brice's analysis of the situation.

Brice said improved service and the proximity to a greater reservoir of traveling population were the primary reasons for his judgment concerning a new Outagamie County airport.

State Would Pay

It also was emphasized this morning that the state of Wisconsin undoubtedly will participate in the construction of any highway interchanges which might become necessary in the event Outagamie County's new airport receives regional designation.

The question of state participation was brought up by hearing examiner Edward T. Stodola. The state would share, he was told, in such construction if it were needed in Appleton or in Oshkosh, if Winnebago County received regional port designation.

The CAB hearing, now nearing the end of the second week, was scheduled to receive testimony from Appleton and Outagamie County witnesses today. They had not been called, however, when the hearing recessed for a noon lunch.

Wausau Problem

Thursday's session was highlighted by questions forwarded from Wausau and Stevens Point, technical and legal problems of the communities wanted to know the proposed Polaris-equipped surveillance fleet for the Atlantic alliance financing their present airport if, in fact, the CAB decides that a new regional airport should be constructed near Mosinee.

The questions were forwarded to the Federal Aviation Agency countries which want to participate in Washington for a decision.

In one other action Thursday, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization ordered a survey of all population's Ministerial Councils involved in the investigation, meetings in Paris in December.

Undersecretary of State George F. Marshall had a long conference Thursday with the West German ambassador, Hans E. J. Seebohm, to discuss the conclusion of the present airport hearings.

They will meet again next week.

Talks on NATO Sub Fleet Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is determined to start talks soon with its allies on the bid for a showdown on the civil rights issue during the conference which opens this weekend.

Albert D. Rosellini, the Democratic governor of Washington, said Thursday that Rockefeller would lead a hot floor fight for a strong statement on civil rights.

"But we'll be ready for anything that comes up," Rosellini said.

Rockefeller, who was considered a front-runner for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination, is believed by many to have lost some support following his marriage and the gathering strength of the movement backing Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

The New York governor issued a statement Sunday blasting the right wing of the Republican party and insisting that it must take a strong stand on civil rights.

Meanwhile, a Miami Negro said the civil rights issue will be kept in the spotlight with small, but carefully aimed racial demonstrations during the governor's conference.

Albert Moore, head of the Miami Congress of Racial Equality, said that the main targets will be two staunch segregationists, Govs. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and George C. Wallace of Alabama.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The chairman of the National Governors' Conference predicts that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York will be defeated in a bid for a showdown on the civil rights issue during the conference which opens this weekend.

Ten Protestors Arrested

Police Halt Negro Demonstrations At Chicago's Board of Education

CHICAGO (AP) — A nine-day, around-the-clock civil rights sit-in demonstration in the Chicago Board of Education offices has been stopped by police.

Ten white and Negro demonstrators, who had refused to leave a conference room where the sit-in was conducted, were arrested Thursday on charges of trespass and disorderly conduct.

Ushered Out

The Congress of Racial Equality, which had organized the protest against what CORE terms "facto school segregation resulting from drawing school attendance boundaries along neighborhood lines, promised another sit-in soon.

The 10 arrested, including three teen-age girls, were ushered out of the big downtown building through a basement exit.

About 20 other demonstrators, who had been marching in front of the building and were unaware that the sitters had been taken down a freight elevator, were arrested.

Police said three had refused to walk out of the offices and were carried to police cars.

They were removed at the request of Clair W. Roddewig, president of the Board of Education, who said: "The action borders on near anarchy and is disrupting the orderly processes of government."

Roddewig, who is president of the Association of Western Railways and had been in Washington in connection with the threatened railroad strike, learned upon his return Thursday of the violence outside the board offices Wednesday night.

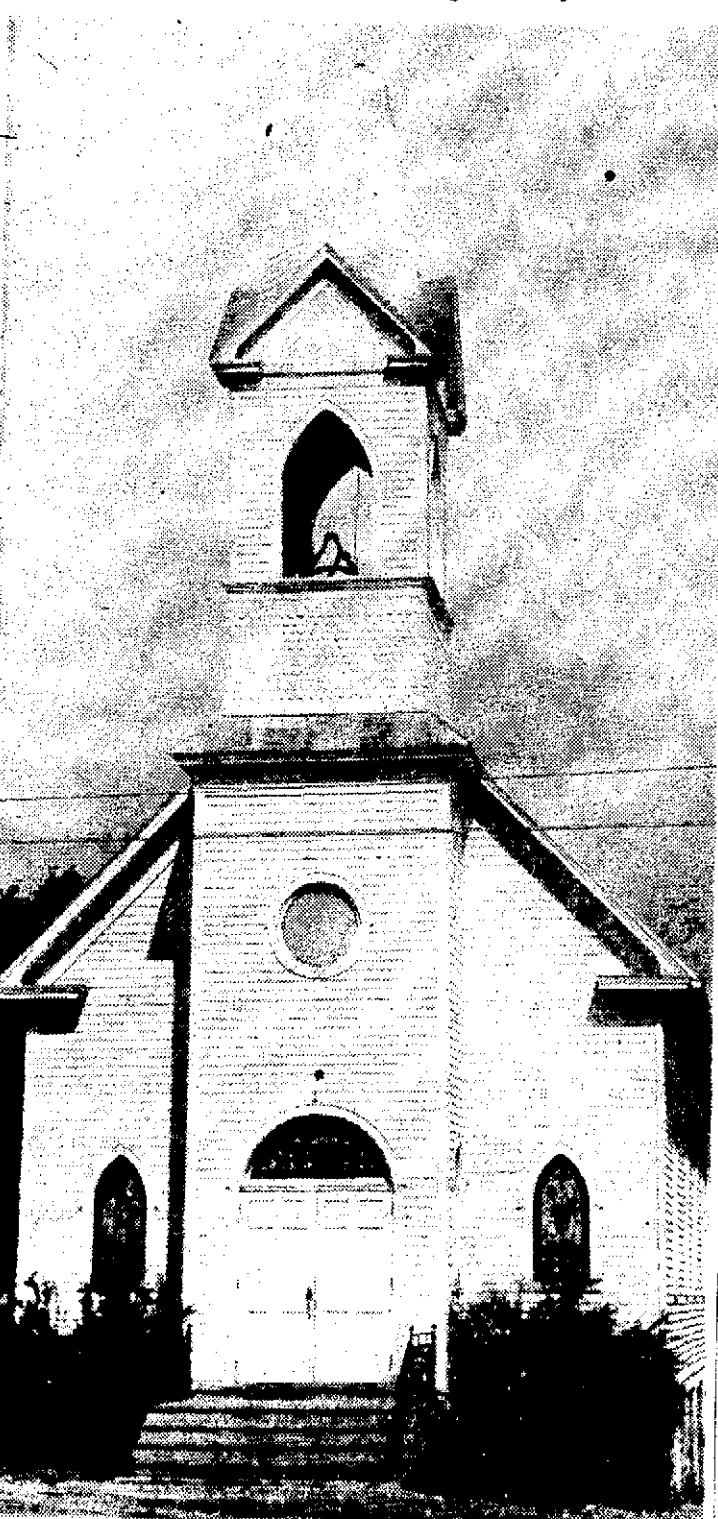

Demonstrators and police had clashed when some had attempted to re-enter the offices. Four policemen and a Negro girl, 10, suffered minor injuries. Three demonstrators were arrested.

Clintonville Woman at White House Meeting

Mrs. Harold Weiland Reports on Racial Problems Discussed With the President

CLINTONVILLE — Mrs. Harold Weiland, 107 Elm St., president of the AFL-CIO National Auxiliaries, has returned to Clintonville after participating in a conference Tuesday in Washington, D.C. with President John F. Kennedy.

President Kennedy called the conference of leaders of women's organizations from throughout the country to discuss aspects of the nation's civil rights problem in which women's organizations play an important role.

The President met with about 250 leaders of 100 women's organizations in the East Room of the White House.

The President greeted the women by assuring them they represented "a good deal of power."

He said that he had called them together because the civil rights issue had increased in tempo in the last few weeks.

Make It Easier

"This nation was founded," President Kennedy said, "on the principles that all men are created equal and the rights of every man are diminished when the rights of one man are threatened.

"Therefore, I am asking for your help in making it easier for us to move ahead and to provide the kind of equality of treatment which we want for ourselves."

Mr. Kennedy then outlined his five point program and asked the women to assist in promoting this program.

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy was then introduced and he took over the meeting.

Meet Cabinet

Following discussion, the meeting was turned over to Vice President Lyndon Johnson and later adjourned to the Rose Garden. The women were introduced to Cabinet members.

The meeting was then adjourned

Bergstrom Co. Notes Decline in Earnings

NEENAH — A decline in sales for the first half of 1963 in comparison with the first half of 1962 was reported today by officials of the Bergstrom Paper Co. The six month sales figure was $6,757,224 in comparison with $7,034,953 a year ago.

Net earnings amounted to 78 cents per share for the period of 1963, compared to 84 cents reported a year earlier. However, amounts reported for 1962 in the company's quarterly statement do not reflect new guideline depreciation rates adopted in September and retroactive to the beginning of 1962. Had such rates been in effect, earnings for 1962 would have been reduced from 84 cents to 76 cents per share, 2 cents less than the reported 1963 first half earnings figure.

According to the message to stockholders from H. R. Moore, president, and N. H. Bergstrom, chairman of the board, "The corporation's first half, all things considered, was a good one. While price competition the second quarter was particularly severe, our continued attention to internal cost factors — production, sales and administration — made the difference."

The message also commented on the company's recently announced building program: "With expansion we have as our purpose a better service to our developing markets. Of equal importance, we feel, is increasing the equity and earnings of our shareholders' investment."

The report showed gross earnings of $1,608,520 for the first six months of 1963 and $1,633,099 for 1962. Net earnings were $425,340 for 1963 and $458,197 for the same period of 1962.

Totals for the 12 months ending June 30 were $13,103,450 net sales, gross earnings of $2,901,443, provisions for federal and Wisconsin income taxes of $884,000 and net earnings of $731,466. Net earnings for the year per share of stock were $1.34 and dividends paid were 65 cents per share.

Ease City Growth

Governor Expected to Sign Jurisdictional Bill

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—Problems of growth of Wisconsin cities and some villages won recognition from the state legislature this week when law-makers gave final approval to legislation to extend their extra-territorial zoning jurisdiction.

Gov. Reynolds is expected to sign the bill that has been approved by both legislative houses, was drafted by an interim legislative commission a year ago after extensive study of the expansion problem of municipalities, and had the ardent backing of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

The machinery for such zoning controls outside the corporate limits of cities and villages will involve a joint commission, with representatives of the city or village, on the one hand, and the adjoining town governments that are involved in such zoning restrictions.

In the case of a city - town commission, jurisdiction would extend for three miles beyond the corporate limits of the city. In the case of a village-town commission, authority would extend for one and one-half miles.

Majority Vote

The commission would consist of six members, three from the city or village, and three representing the town. A binding decision on an ordinance, or an amendment of an ordinance, would require a majority vote, or the consent of at least four members of the six. Thus all ordinances would require the consent of at least one member of the second party to the plan.

The measure was carefully drafted in deference to the historic reserve of town governments about encroachments by neighboring urban municipalities. At the same time, persuaded the legislature of their anxiety to assure planned land use in adjacent districts that may ultimately be proposed for annexation.

Park Shows No Trace of Elm Disease

NEW LONDON — There is no Dutch elm disease in any of the elm trees in the city's parks, Victor Kersten, park superintendent, said Thursday.

Last year an inspector from the State Department of Agriculture detected Dutch elm disease on one dead limb that had been removed from a tree. He recommended that the limb be destroyed immediately. No other diseased limbs were found at that time or since, Kersten said.

Kersten stated he had been told by the inspector that the disease first attacks the dead limbs of an elm and that any dead limbs should be removed and destroyed.

Although Hatten Park is heavily wooded there are only 20 to 25 elms in the park. There are no elms in any of the other city parks, Kersten said.

Chilton School Electors to Vote on Budget

Proposed Expense List of $454,321 Means Tax Increase

CHILTON — The electors of Chilton School District No. 1 will decide whether to accept a $454,321 budget that will mean an increase of $85,532 in taxes, at the district's budget hearing and annual meeting at 7 p. m. Monday.

The 1962-63 budget was $521,144, but there has been a drop in revenue of $52,097. Estimated revenue for 1963-64 is $93,766 compared to actual revenue of $145,863 last year.

Reason for the loss of revenue and consequent tax hike is that the district has completed its annexation process. Last year attached districts paid both tuition and taxes — taxes for last year and tuition for the year before. The newly attached districts paid both tuition and taxes — taxes for last year and tuition for the year before. The newly attached districts will pay only tax levies this year.

Comparative Figures

Comparative budget figures, with the 1962-63 figures stated first and the proposed figures for the 1963-64 year second, are as follows: general control, $13,977, $14,88; instruction, $211,980, $238,353; operation, $28,203, $31,320; maintenance, $14,119, $12,500; auxiliary services, $25,465, $30,000; other expenditures of operation, $3,262, $3,200.

Transportation, $37,575, $32,400; community service, $1,217, $1,000; capital outlay, $110,093, $36,780; debt service, $75,249, $53,910. Grand total of expenditures for the 1962-63 school year was $521,144 compared with the proposed expenses of $454,321.

For receipts, state aid will be the largest single item, estimated at $34,400. Tuition shows a big drop, from $59,801 to $4,000. Total expected receipts for the 1963-64 term are $93,766 as compared to $145,863 for the past school year.

Local taxes for the 1962-63 term were $275,003 and in the proposed budget would be $360,555.

9 New London Girls to Attend Summer Camp

NEW LONDON—Nine girls will participate in activities at Catholic Girls Camp, Loon Lake, Shawano, this summer.

Rebecca McCrone and Kay Schmidt left Sunday for a one week's stay and Kristine Poepeke leaves next Sunday for a week at the camp. Others who have reservations are Jill Ott, Peggy Brown, Joan Schmidt, Cynthia Hirschboeck, Kathy Klatt and Lisbeth Wener.

The camp is operated by the Green Bay Diocesan Council of Catholic Women from June 23 to Aug. 17. A program of recreation, sports, crafts and drama is offered at the camp.

Sommer home, route 1, Larsen, for their annual reunion.

Members came from Appleton, Green Bay, Neenah, Menasha, Dale, Fremont, Larsen, Hortonville, Greenville, Michigan City, Ind., and Orland Park, Ill.

The Weyauwega Fire Department tried out its latest piece of fire fighting apparatus at a recent drill. The 8-foot long nozzle called a fire stick, has a sharp point and can penetrate walls and ceilings. In the event of a barn fire it can be shoved into a hat to spray water on an interior fire. Shown demonstrating the fire stick are Wilber Hintz assistant fire chief, in white coat, Don Doede and Dan Buchholtz, captain. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Group 'Starting Over' on Plan To Enlarge Courthouse Space

Engineer Refutes Advisability Of Expanding Present Facilities

Plans for a new Outagamie County courthouse building or an addition to the present 22-year-old structure are now in a state of "flux," George Narovec, an Appleton architect said today.

"We're starting all over again," Narovec said after a meeting with members of the county insurance and public property committee, the group saddled with the task of making more room in the cramped building.

Narovec appeared with a consulting engineer, John Davis of Davis and Watson, Appleton, to refute statements by Raymond LeVe, an Appleton architect and designer of the present courthouse building, that the present structure can stand additional weight on its outside walls.

Narovec has contended the footings of the building will not allow additional stress. He has suggested the addition to the courthouse be a separate wing off the main courthouse building.

LeVe several weeks ago suggested that the addition become a part of the main building and that new construction use walls of the old building, LeVe said the work could be done for one-half million dollars.

2nd Annual Free

"Customized" CAR SHOW

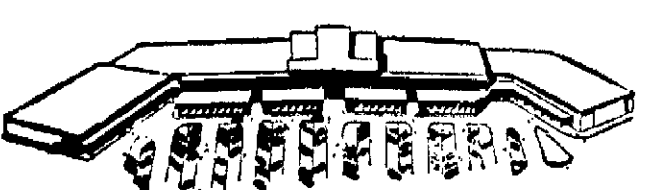

In the Mall at Valley Fair

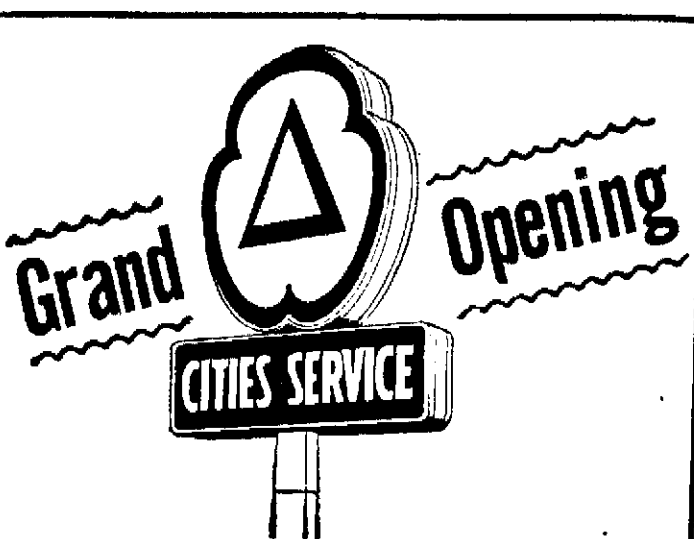

On display by the owners and club members of the Fox Valley Rod and Custom Association are approximately 25 "customized" cars (some old, some quite new) but all worked over, re-designed, rebuilt, restored, to suit the fancy and needs of the individual owners. Members are on hand to show and explain what they have done to create their "masterpieces." Appleton clubs in the association are Venturi Car Club, Road Deacons Car Club, Coachmen Car Club and one girls' group called the Gas-kets Car Club. Selected cars entered in the show were chosen by vote of the club members.

FREE MOVIES

Auto Safety films will be shown by club members throughout the show. Purpose of the Fox Valley Rod and Custom Association is to bring safety to our city and state.

Do Not Look at the Eclipse

There will be a wonderful spectacle in the heavens Saturday when the moon will eclipse the sun. About three-quarters of the sun's surface will be blotted out in this area.

The natural thing is for people to watch this spectacle. It's the first such eclipse in this country since 1954 and many children have never seen one before.

But there is great danger in doing so. Permanent damage can be done to unprotected eyes by looking directly at the sun, even during the eclipse.

And even more important, normal protection is not nearly enough.

The American Medical Association warns that dark glasses are no protection. This includes sooted glasses that people once thought to be safe. Even most welder's glasses do not protect. And the AMA warns that telescopes and binoculars focused on the sun are particularly dangerous. Even looking into the viewfinder of a camera to photograph the eclipse can burn the eyes.

Several safe methods of viewing the eclipse have been outlined by experts.

You can expose photographic film in soft light and then develop it so that it comes out dark. Then use three thicknesses of this exposed film as a filter.

An even better method is to construct an indirect viewer by taking a cardboard carton, cutting a hole for your head, making the rest of the box light tight except for a tiny pin hole at the top behind your head, and then lining the bottom of the box with white paper. Face away from the sun, aim the box until the sun's rays pass through the pinhole to be reflected on the white paper. The eclipse will be plainly visible.

But the AMA warns that the really only guaranteed safe way to view the eclipse is on television or through photographs in newspapers.

Jolly St. Nik

Nikita Khrushchev's jolly face and happy jokes may be just sort of a reaction to the week he spent with the inscrutable Chinese who didn't give him anything at all to laugh about.

But no one in the West should be surprised about his most recent approach to the test ban talks. Let's sign a blank piece of paper, Mr. K. suggested, and then let's worm out the language.

That's just exactly the line the Russians have been taking all along on disarmament and nuclear test bans. Sign a treaty, tell the world not to worry and then figure out what the fine print says and how to get around it.

Utilities and Taxes

One of the causes of the desperate maneuvering on the floor of the legislature during the last fortnight on the new state tax bill has been the effort by members of both parties to take away from the public service corporations, alone of all the property taxpayers of the state, some of the property tax concessions achieved through the enactment of a sales tax program by the 1961 legislature.

The public utilities, asserting that they are as much entitled to tax relief when tax relief benefits are being passed around as are other larger taxpayers such as Allis-Chalmers or American Motors or Kimberly-Clark, thus far have appeared to be successful in resisting such demands.

We believe they are right, and that the politicians at Madison who extended this property tax relief two years ago are what would be called "Indian givers" in the old bucolic parlance.

The only reason we have heard why the utilities should be singled out for a deprivation of something which they were granted with all other property taxpayers is the theoretical assumption that they can "pass it on" to the rate-payers. There are two fallacies here. The public service commission must rule on whether it can be "passed on." There is no assurance that it will permit such a transaction.

But more pertinent, especially since this argument comes from some of the Democratic members of the legislature, is the cynicism that is involved. Some of these Democrats were in the vanguard of the critics when Gov. Reynolds recently suggested a tax on electricity and gas and other utility services, as a part of the compromise tax bill. Assemblyman Huber, the elected leader of the Democrats in the assembly, promptly bolted the party caucus and announced that he would never take part in any legislation that would tax such necessities of the poor family. But what is the proposal to "pass on" the $10,000,000 subtraction of utility property tax relief except to impose a sales tax in effect on utility service bills?

The 1961 legislature sugared the first substantial sales tax in Wisconsin history with an act returning most of the proceeds to localities for property and personal property tax relief. To say that such relief should be extended to one corporate enterprise and not to another is the equivalent of granting it to a homeowner on one side of the street and denying it to his neighbor on the other side. This is the sheerest kind of expediency, cloaked in the knowledge that this is a subject not easy for the man on the street to comprehend, and hidden in a complex package of tax proposals that doubtless has confused everybody outside the legislative chambers.

Nice Places to Visit

Once again the Federal Bureau of Investigation has released statistics which bear out the fact that the greatest share of crime is committed in the gaudy show places of the nation.

Reno, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Chicago and Miami, Fla. are picked by FBI statisticians as the Top Five crime communities of the country.

The same statistics show the area around Green Bay (and stretching that broadly, we can come to call that the entire Fox River Valley) is listed among the lowest areas in the nation for crime.

New Pitfall in Martinis

Another danger is ahead for the martini drinker.

Two United States government men in a Washington bistro ordered martinis. The waiter duly brought them but placed a third drink on a shelf near them. When the first round was finished, the men were unable to attract the attention of the waiter. So one discovered the extra drink and proceeded to quaff it down. To his horror he found that the olive had inside it a tiny microphone beamed to pick up any classified information they might be discussing! It isn't enough that martini drinkers

We as citizens of the United States are proud of the achievements of cities such as Reno, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Chicago and Miami, and like every average American tourist and vacationer, give up our hard-earned wages to visit these areas and marvel in the sights there.

But, like the man at the next desk says, "They're nice places to visit, but you wouldn't want to live there."

No sir. The FBI gives strong support to our feeling that the Fox River Valley makes a pretty good place to live.

must risk finding an anchovy instead of a pimiento filling in the olive or even an onion sneaked in unannounced. It isn't even enough that they must be on their guard against a martini on-the-rocks, the new martini stones briefly dipped in vermouth, substitutions of sherry for vermouth or vodka for gin. Even the dangerous 20 to 1 fanatic has a rival in the hidden microphone.

There are no limits to the skulduggery of Red spies. The real aim of the microphone is most likely to panic martini drinkers with the last straw.

Looking Backward

Cheers for Jeff; Groans for Abe

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Motor for July 23, 1863.

The New York Evening Post in an article on the late draft riot in that City says the following:

"The question whether the mob was composed of loyal men or of a considerable proportion of rebels at heart has been much discussed.

A fact which bears directly on this point is that the original crowd which stormed the enrolling (draft) office at the corner of Third Avenue and 46th Street, while a block of buildings of which it formed a part was enveloped in flames, responded to a call for cheers for Jeff Davis. Although the first cheer was weak, the subsequent ones were given with a will and the chorus was joined in almost unanimously.

Immediately afterwards, groans for Lincoln were called for and the response was loud and universal.

In other crowds, cheers for Davis and Lee were called for; some were sometimes given, although not always. And this fact deserves mention, that whenever the cheers for the rebels were not given, or were given faintly as was generally the case, the men who asked them invariably called for cheers for McClellan and these were always forthcoming.

'Let's Shoot at It Together'

Henry Taylor Writes

President Kennedy Has Turned Our Gold Problem Into Crisis

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

Down goes our gold again—down and out.

America's reserve at Ft. Knox, not one nickel of which we now own, has sunk to still another new 23-year low.

President Kennedy stated in October, 1960: "Our balance of payments will be strong and we can cease to worry about the outflow of gold."

In truth, Mr. Kennedy changed a gold problem that he inherited into a gold crisis. And he still absolutely refuses to tackle this crisis except within the limits of his political desires.

Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon turned completely political the day he took over and has been doing nothing more substantial than yes-yes the boss ever since. There's no more chance of saving the American dollar through C. Douglas Dillon than through a pearl diver off the coast of Shikoku.

Under Secretary of the Treasury Robert V. Roosa, formerly an outstanding technician at the New York Federal Reserve Bank, where their fine respect for him remains, is the able man who really concocted the complex stopgaps with our foreign creditors — borrowing from Peter to pay Paul.

Moreover, Federal Reserve Board Chairman William MacC.

Marlin Jr. has been a behind-the-scenes hero in all this, trying to hold the fort for our country with his long-time friends in central banks abroad.

But the U.S. Treasury is merely a cash register. It merely puts our vast taxes into its till ($102 billion from us last year) while Administration overspenders exceed these and paper the American people and the world with I.O.U.s. Yet, hey! That's our money.

Nonpolitical experts with no ax to grind discover themselves utterly defeated in serious discussions with Mr. Kennedy on this subject. He will talk about improving exports and the balance of payments. But this is only half the story.

It is Mr. Kennedy's overspending and the conviction that the only way the New Frontier can keep going is to spend more and to borrow and borrow more that profoundly alarms our creditors. Accordingly, they exercise their option to withdraw our gold (as some depositors draw money out of what they suspect is a badly managed bank) because they mistrust the up-upping of the debt limit, the irresponsibility, the alibi and—most importantly — the misinformation and pretense about "myths" that accompany the handling of this nation's money.

President Kennedy talks all "round and 'round this point but refuses to face up to that fact. But it is evident that Mr. Kennedy refuses to see this only because he does not want to see it. For although his policies have always paid off in politics they have never paid off in the security of any nation.

CHAOS WOULD RESULT

In addition, it is undeniable that free world chaos would result from dollar devaluation or a gold embargo. Even back in November, 1961, when our gold reserve first sunk to a new low under this Administration, Mr. Dillon stated: "Maintenance of the fixed dollar price of gold and the free convertibility of gold and the dollar are the cornerstones not only of our monetary policy but of the entire international financial system. President Kennedy has pledged that they will remain so. That pledge will be kept."

But no man on earth can make a pledge like that stick unless it is supported by the required performances. And Mr. Kennedy has committed the New Frontier to unlimited red-ink spending.

As a result, our nation faces global and epidemic forces from the outside that have now taken the crisis out of the President's control.

Is it too late for Mr. Kennedy to retrench? The decisive factor is this: Mr. Kennedy's own self-discipline. Without that, and without a great awakening of our President to the need for self-discipline, there is no possible solution for this great threat to our country and the entire Western world.

Whiskey Bottles Give Trash Clues

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Despite a lack of silver-plated trash bins it's possible to pick out high class garbage.

City Manager Arthur Owens claims just by looking at garbage you can tell if it comes from a better neighborhood.

The first test, according to Owens, is to look at the discarded magazines. Second, see if the canned and frozen food containers are the high priced kind.

But the real secret, Owens confides, is the brand on the whiskey bottles.

Wisconsin Report

Tax the Weak Basic Philosophy Behind Hodge-Podge Plan

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — It is unlikely that anyone can recall a major proposition in the Wisconsin legislature in modern times that has had less support or more opposition than the so-called budget-tax compromise now being bounced around there.

Probably there isn't a single person in either house who truly wants to vote for what is by any reasonable definition an inconsistent hodge-podge of evasions, bargains and temporizing.

The only thing that may save the compromise in the end, and even that cannot be foretold with certainty, is the realization that some kind of a revenue act must be adopted and that in the uneasy division of power and responsibility a generally acceptable solution to the stickiest financial crisis in Wisconsin history cannot be had.

In any other context, some of the proposals and declarations put into the record today would be ludicrous.

For example, as this is dispatched there is serious consideration being given to the taxation of children's soda pop by a group of politicians that only last week by a resounding vote declined to tax dad's beer.

TAX THE FRIENDLESS?

The state evidently cannot enact a general tax program of sufficient productivity to meet the revenue demands of the treasury. There are many students of state finance who had concluded during the last few years that the time has come to balance the fiscal system with a general sales tax to maintain some semblance of stability in the already high income and property tax levies. But a Democratic governor won't go all the way on a sales tax.

There are many liberals surviving who feel, as does the governor, that the only decent way to support modern government is through an income tax, even though they are willing to concede higher low bracket rates that make the tax really indistinguishable from the sales tax for a majority of voters. But the Republicans have decided that they must resist substantial increases in income taxes, especially since the Wisconsin income tax reputation is already conspicuous around the country in financial and economic circles.

In such an ideological stalemate, a grab-bag of compromise involving both sales and income taxes, plus a bundle of miscellaneous levies was about the only thing that could be contrived. Yet the very selectivity of the sales taxes now before the legislature, and the discriminatory nature of the other special excises and adjustments, rendered inevitable also a howl of angry protest from the aggrieved group interests.

What is likely to happen in the end is that the legislature will tax where the resistance is least organized or least articulate.

The art of taxation, as the ancient sage put it, is the art of extracting the largest volume of leathers from the goose with the least volume of squawk.

TEMPORIZING

The soda pop dealers are probably less prepared for such a fight than is the superbly organized beer industry. There is no laundry and dry cleaning lobby that anyone has perceived; hence the proposal to extend the sales tax to laundry and dry cleaning services. The farm machinery dealers are not regularly represented in these hurried legislative sessions. So they become vulnerable.

Perhaps nobody is to be blamed for these strange proceedings, except the body politic which arranged for a 50-50 division in power in policy-making in the elections last fall. What sometimes makes the steady decline of the state somewhat gloomy, however, is the realization that the next legislature will face the financial crisis all over again.

Strictly Personal

The Better the Novel, The Poorer the Movie

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the ironies of the film as an art medium is that it seems to do much better with the second-rate than with the first-rate. Greatness in a novel or in a play does not transcribe itself well onto the screen.

Two recent movies, "No Exit," adapted from Sartre's play, and "The Trial," adapted from Kafka's novel, are depressing examples of this truth. Each was excellent in its own medium; both fail dismally as films.

The best movies I have seen — from a cinematographic point of view — have been second-rate works, like "Rebecca" or "Gone With the Wind." And "David Copperfield," which is not one of Dickens' superior novels, made an absolutely stunning movie.

Yet the great Shakespearean plays, such as "Hamlet" or "Macbeth" have never been done well on the screen. Laurence Olivier's film version of "Hamlet" was a disaster; and Orson Welles' "Macbeth" was even worse. The more profound a novel or play, the less successfully it seems to land itself to film treatment.

Perhaps this is because the greatness of a play or a novel consists, to a large degree, in disclosing the inner life of its characters, in placing a micro-scape close to the secret springs of their motivations.

The film, on the other hand, is an enormous magnifying glass, fit for showing us the craters on the moon. Its very scope may defeat the purpose of art; it calls for so many people, so many scenes, so much activity on the surface that the symbolic meaning becomes obscured and lost.

When a movie does not try to do very much, it succeeds admirably, for it can depict the appearances of things in large, broad commanding strokes. When, however, it tries to capture the inner feelings of the protagonist in "The Trial," or the three people trapped without exit in Sartre's personal hell — then it falters and fails, tripped by its own cumbersome size.

Each art form has its own peculiar limitations, which may be organic; nor are they easily interchangeable. The novels of Henry James simply do not make good plays or movies; what is lost is the "interior movement" within the author's mind — and no external action can substitute for this. It is significant that when James himself wrote for the stage, his productions were hoisted down after a few performances.

I think that a survey of great film adaptations of the last 30 years would show that they have invariably been taken from minor works, and have been improved in the screen version. Perhaps one of the measures of the greatness of a novel or a play is its refractory resistance to being changed into another medium.

Trial Date Not Set for Battery Charge of 1962

County Judge Dohr Feels Delay May be Through Summer

Trial date for a man charged with battery against a former Appleton man over eight months ago has not been set as yet, County Judge Raymond P. Dohr has confirmed.

Judge Dohr said today the trial of Douglas Meyer, 30, Darboy, charged with beating and injuring Frank Oskey, 50, formerly of Appleton and now believed living in Milwaukee, probably will not come to court this summer.

Meyer, arrested by Appleton police after the beating Oct. 28 in an Appleton tavern, has been free on bond of $100. Oskey signed a complaint against Meyer after Oskey was released from St. Elizabeth Hospital early in November and Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer issued a warrant charging Meyer with the violation.

On Vacations Judge Dohr said the case is to be put on his calendar for a hearing when the "two attorneys contact me and set the date." Meyer is represented by Mark Catlin who is out of state on vacation. Schaefer is on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

Meyer's trial has been delayed four times, each on a motion by Catlin. He was scheduled for trial Dec. 20, Jan. 24, Feb. 26 and April 5. No date was set after the April 5 delay.

On Nov. 7, 1962, Meyer filed an affidavit of prejudice against County Judge Gustave Keller. Judge Dohr was selected to hear the case.

Meyer allegedly struck and battered Oskey in an Appleton tavern when Oskey would not leave the premises when Meyer asked him to. Oskey is married to a Milwaukee woman, and according to relatives, now is living with his wife in Milwaukee.

According to the district attorney's office, Oskey was taken to the hospital by an Appleton police squad car after the alleged beating. Oskey received head and arm injuries.

Xavier Band, Vocal Ensemble Schedule Concert

A concert of light summer music will be presented by the Xavier High School summer band, vocal and vocal ensemble at 7:30 p.m. today in the outdoor court at Xavier. In case of rain the free concert will be moved to the school gymnasium.

About 40 new freshmen will make their debut with the band. Experienced band members have spent the summer teaching the freshmen and summer band members at St. Joseph Catholic Grade School.

Francis Scholtz, director of both bands, said the teaching, started this summer on an experimental basis, has proved beneficial both to the young teachers and to their pupils.

The concert program will include:

Mental Tests Ordered for Laborer in Support Charge

An unemployed laborer who has been on city relief for more than three years, was charged Tuesday with failure to support his family after he refused to participate in Appleton's work relief program.

County Judge Gustave Keller ordered David C. Tolley, 21, 339 E. Commercial St., confined to Central State Hospital for a mental test after examination. Tolley pleaded guilty, would get would be applied to a preliminary hearing in Outagamie County Court, Branch 2.

Merton Ehrhke, city relief director, told the court Tolley had been offered a work assignment at $1.25 per hour. Tolley refused days per week and was obligated the assignment and was taken to, to use the extra day seeking a job in the office of Asst. Dist. Atty. elsewhere.

James Bayorgone where charges; Tolley told the court he had been looking for work for several weeks and was not able to find. The couple has two children, one 2 years and one 8-months-old. Tolley testified her husband

Chilton's AFS Drive Ended

$150 Donation From Fond du Lac Man Brings Total to $832

CHILTON — A Fond du Lac man, Wilbur Pfeiffer, completed the American Field Service's drive for funds in Chilton this week when he sent a check for $150 to Mrs. William Engler Jr., president of the local chapter.

Chilton High School will have a foreign student for the first time this fall. The local chapter was not organized until early spring and it was doubtful whether the $800 could be raised in time. Pfeiffer's donation brought the total to $832.03. Pfeiffer, president of the Wilbur Pfeiffer Transportation Co., Inc., heard of the Chilton chapter's need for funds and decided that "because Chilton has always been good to his truckers" he would make the donation.

Chilton's 1963-64 student, Chert-sak Choonmoon, from Thailand, will arrive in New York Sept. 9 and will arrive in Chilton soon after. Chert-sak will be living with the Leo R. Heine family of Chilton during the school year.

While the AFS is glad to have students speak to clubs and other groups, he will not be available as a speaker until January, 1964. Mrs. John Freilburger of Chilton will serve as the speaker's bureau today in the outdoor court at Xavier. In case of rain the free concert will be moved to the school gymnasium.

About 40 new freshmen will make their debut with the band. Experienced band members have spent the summer teaching the freshmen and summer band members at St. Joseph Catholic Grade School.

Three Fined for Bad Conduct

Deerfield Man Pays Two $100 Levies At Waupaca Court

WAUPACA — Three young men pleaded guilty and were fined on disorderly counts Thursday when they were arraigned before Municipal Justice George Whalen.

M. J. Bakke, 21, Deerfield, pleaded guilty to two separate charges of disorderly conduct and was fined $100 on each count. He was sent to the county jail for 45 days or until the fines are paid.

Allen Smith, 21, and his brother, Edward Smith, 19, both of route 4, Waupaca, were fined $50 each when they pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct.

Tool Oil

The Smith brothers were with Bakke about 9:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Clark Service Station on Fulton Street, when Bakke took four quarts of motor oil from the display on the station platform. The Smiths said they did not know Bakke took the oil until they started driving away from the filling station.

Bakke also was charged and pleaded guilty of taking a bowling ball from Radtke Recreation at Weyauwega. One of the employees saw Bakke take the ball to his car, followed him and told him to return it, which he did.

The car was stopped and the three were arrested at 1:30 a. m. Thursday by County Policeman John Bonnell when it was being driven out of the Casino dance hall parking lot. Bonnell searched the car and found the oil under the front seat.

Bakke was held at the county jail and the Smiths were released to their parents.

Chinese Hear Blunt Challenge From Nikita

chev insisted "a concrete possibility of preventing world war has appeared. And this is not merely a possibility, but a vital necessity for the peoples of the world."

Khrushchev said all the peoples of the world would break with capitalism sooner or later but "the victory of socialism in every given country is decided by the people of that country. This question cannot be solved by unleashing a world thermonuclear war."

Slap at Chinese

This was a direct slap at Chinese views.

Obviously referring to the split with China, Khrushchev also said bitterly that those who disunite world communism are "playing into the hands of imperialism."

He repeated his pledge that "the Soviet Union will never be the first to use thermonuclear arms or to unleash a world war."

Khrushchev also accused the Chinese, in a long departure from his text, of attempting to revive "the cult of the personality" of Stalin.

"Some people want to return to those times when a worker went out to work and never knew whether he would return to his wife and children," he continued.

Under the Law

"We are arresting people and we will continue to arrest those who should be arrested," he said. But he said that his regime was not arresting people without good reason under the law.

The talks, which began July 5, have been chalked off as a failure and all that reportedly remains is issuance of a communique ending the conference.

The two sides were reported still sharply divided on wording of the communique.

The Soviets were said to be insisting on a statement blaming the Chinese for the discord in the Communist camp. The Chinese reportedly were urging a noncommittal statement leaving the door open for further talks.

Nixon Departs For Vienna

Nixon, who came to Hungary on a three-day private visit, at times found himself battling enthusiastic crowds.

Thursday when he toured Budapest's 13th City District, whose tens of thousands of workers helped spark the 1956 revolt, he was surrounded by hundreds of autograph seekers and others who just wanted to shake his hand.

Pilot Guides X-15 at Speed of 3,818 mph

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—For about four minutes Air Force Maj. Robert Rushworth guided the X15 rocket plane as it streaked at 3,818 miles an hour with the electronic controls turned off.

The test Thursday was the longest the sleek black craft has ever slipped without its autopilot. The highest ever attempted even test showed how the X15 and its electronic controls, Engi-similar future spacecraft would handle if their automatic control systems should fail during re-entry.

$1.4 Million in Bonds Placed Against Negroes in South

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—A sentence, said the NAACP-sponsor Bonds totaling nearly $1.4 million sored Charleston Movement is in have been placed against Negro demonstrators arrested during nearly six weeks of anti-segregation activity here. Negro leaders viewed the bond assessments as an attempt to break the demonstrations which have occurred almost daily since June 9.

Magistrate George T. Runey added to the total Thursday when he set bonds totaling $890,000 for 68 Negroes arrested on riot charges.

The 68 were arrested Tuesday night, when six policemen and a fireman were injured, some by bricks thrown by Negroes demonstrating in front of the Charleston News and Courier Building.

Runey ordered the Rev. I. DeQuincy Newman, state held secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and James Blake, an NAACP youth director, to post bail of $15,000 each. The other 66 were held under $10,000 bonds.

Negro protest leaders had pledged property to cover bonds of more than $700,000 placed against some 600 arrested in previous demonstrations.

Nikita Calls for End To All Nuclear Tests

phere, cosmic space and under water, there will be an important and useful step forward."

Bidding for easing of East-West tensions at a time when the Soviet Union remains heavily involved in a Communist family dispute with Red China, Khrushchev spoke at a friendship rally for visiting Hungarian Communist leader Janos Kadar.

In quick succession he:

- Revives Offer
- Revived a Russian offer of 1958 to permit foreign inspectors to take up station at Soviet airfields, railroad stations, highways and ports to prevent secret concentrations of troops for surprise attacks.
- Proposed an exchange of inspection teams between Western troops in West Germany and Soviet troops in East Germany, adding that the Russians were ready to negotiate a reciprocal reduction in the number of those troops on both sides.
- Insisted again on the signing of a peace treaty with Germany that would settle the status of West Berlin, but set no deadline.
- Declared a new world war is not necessary to build communism or speed up revolution.
- Challenging Peking's hard line views, he said a nuclear war could destroy mankind and even those who survive might "envy the dead."
- All the peoples of the world will break with capitalism sooner or later, Khrushchev declared but "the victory of socialism (communism) in every given country is decided by the people of that country. This question can not be solved by unleashing a world thermonuclear war."
- Limited Agreement
- Khrushchev said the limited nuclear test-ban agreement being hammered out by Harman, Lord Hailsham of Britain and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko will put an end to the radioactive contamination of the atmosphere.
- "This means it would prevent the dangerous consequences which the continuation of nuclear tests might have on the health of present and future generations," he said.
- The conference, which Khrushchev opened Monday with a warm welcome for the Western envoys, came to the end of its first week today with diplomats still reporting progress toward agreement on a test ban treaty.
- The task of treaty drafting has been largely turned over to a sub-committee.

Reuther Asks Strong Civil Rights Plan

"who will make the right to vote an American reality."

3. Broad authorization for the attorney general to "protect all constitutional rights of Negroes"; and

4. An immediate start in all school districts on desegregation.

The Judiciary subcommittee hearings, which began shortly after Kennedy submitted his program June 19, marked the only congressional action on the civil rights front today. The Senate Commerce and Judiciary committees are in recess until next week.

Vigorous Backing

In his vigorous backing of the public accommodations proposal, which would outlaw discrimination in privately owned businesses serving the public, Reuther stressed the need for "a strong bill (that) will let those who open their facilities to everyone, do so with confidence that others will have to do likewise."

"Toward this end, we would urge that the committee consider in addition to the sanctions now in the bill, providing that anyone who has been wrongfully excluded from a public facility be entitled to recover a flat sum in damages."

"Discrimination in public facilities has been a national disgrace for far too long," Reuther said. "By ending it now, by protecting every human being from Maine to California against the colossal indignity of a refusal of service, the 88th Congress will only be catching up at long last with the racial relations committee of the 44th Congress."

Similar Law

That Congress passed a similar law in 1875, but it was declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1883.

Noting congressional debate over whether the public accommodations proposal should have its legal basis on the Constitution's commerce clause or the 14th Amendment, Reuther said: "I am sure the Negro and his family who have been travelling all day don't care much for the legal quibble whether the right to a night's lodging is based on one or the other."

Attacking the argument that the bill interferes with property rights, Reuther said property rights, while important, "must never be permitted to overshadow human rights and human dignity."

He urged the committee to reject any amendment that might limit the size or type of establishment covered.

Desegregation in Mobile Set Back

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday delayed court-ordered desegregation of public schools in Mobile, Ala., until 1964.

The action came in the court's modification of its July 9 decision which directed the Mobile City County School Board to submit a desegregation plan, starting with Nov. 14, thus putting off the effective date for any plan to belatedly put into operation until next year.

such in Damascus to follow a coup or attempted coup in more than 16 years. Syria's eight post-war revolutions have been almost bloodless.

Shortly after the curfew was lifted for daylight hours early this morning, it was reimposed. Hafez reminded Syrians of the ban against demonstrations or the carrying of arms. International telephone lines were cut again. Syria's borders remained closed.

No Direct News

In the absence of direct news from the sealed-off country, the warning indicated that street disturbances may have erupted when the curfew was relaxed.

The Syrian National Revolutionary Command, which has run the country since the Ba'Athist coup last March 8, accused "groups and individuals... both inside and outside the country" of plotting Thursday's attempt to overthrow the government.

It did not pin the blame specifically on supporters of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. But a Damascus Radio commentary mentioned Nasser's former top aide in Syria, Abdel Hamid Serraj, as a plotter.

NEW YORK — American fashion is traveling. Even if we're not part of the common market, we have plenty to show and many firsts.

Pauline Trigere is taking plum to Paris. "This is the first time I haven't taken black," she revealed. Everything in her wardrobe was in the new fall plum shade.

Bill Blass will take his boots and 1963 sportive signature to Brazil next month. The award-winning design is one of two designers in the world invited to show their fashions in South America (the other is Yves St. Laurent of Paris).

Bright Shades

In the Blass collection there'll be the double breasted suit in pink and one in yellow (Bill likes light shades for fall and winter days) with high boots that shift from daytime casualness to evening elegance—such as his dinner suit with long sleeves in brown velvet with white beaded blouse and satin sash among others.

Eleanor Lambert, director of the American design series, is packing her bag with Blass, Norrell and Zuckerman originals. Before the week is out she'll be off to Paris as guest of one of the world's most elegantly dressed women, Mrs. Lodi Guinness. Later will come sojourns in the south of France, Ireland and Italy.

Billie Gould will bring foot notes to Paris. Her destination is the "Semaine De cuir" (Leather Week, Sept. 7-12). "The government is sending me," says the leather industries expert. "It is represented with such a large display. 'I will give fashion shows twice a day.'"

Taking Kangaroo

Kangaroo is going to Paris with Lilly Dache. That is the fur this ingenious French-born designer dreamed up (and sheared, of course) to include in her first fur collection for Wells-Treister, which she showed along with hats, fabulous coiffures, clothes and cosmetics.

A double take that may be seen all over the world arrived from California with the Jean Louis

Menacing Scowl Has Results

People talk a lot about the winning smile, but don't be taken by that sort of mild malarkey. A scowl full of menace will often win more tricks than a winsome smile.

South ruffed the second club, led a spade to dummy and returned the nine of hearts. East looked up in surprise and saw a look of pure menace on declarer's face.

This was a bit odd, since South was Bob Hamman, a normally placid Los Angeles expert. East considered dyspepsia but discarded this explanation as he considered Hamman's bulk. The expert was clearly a man who enjoyed his food.

A bit cowed by the scowl, East covered the nine of hearts with the ten. Declarer won with the ace, dropping West's jack. Then he smiled and remarked sympathetically: "I have a feeling you'll regret that cover."

Makes Sure
Just to make sure of the trump situation, Hamman cashed the king of hearts. If he hadn't been sure of the trump coup he could have reached dummy first to take a finesse through East's eight of hearts.

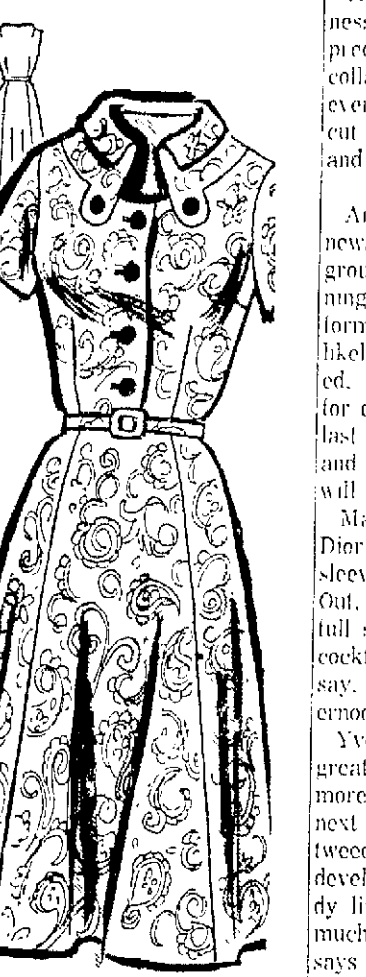

The coup was fancier. Hamman entered dummy with a diamond to ruff another club, and then ran off all of dummy's top cards in spades and diamonds. This left the lead in dummy at the twelfth trick so that any lead from dummy put East's last two trumps in the middle.

Give Hamman credit for playing the cards very well, but don't forget about that scowl. You might practice it in front of the mirror: a few minutes a day should do wonders for your game. After all, who needs friends?

Answer: Bid one diamond. If partner responds in a new suit, you can show the spades next. If partner responds one no-trump, you can pass; you don't want to be in game at no-trump if partner cannot bid hearts or show real strength.

Flower League Ladies Use Bonnets to Brighten Up Game

A rash of gay flowers suddenly appeared on the Reid Municipal Golf Course Tuesday morning when ladies of the Flower Golf League competed in millinery as well as golf skill.

Winners of golfing events were Mrs. William Bartmann, flight A; Mrs. Theodore Jansen, flight B; Mrs. Herbert Harwood, flight C, and Mrs. Leroy Borchardt, flight D.

Mrs. Gregory Schulte scored low putts and Mrs. Robert Knapp won the mystery hole event.

Mark Paris Fashions With Influence of Space Flights

PARIS — The big inspiration everywhere behind the coming fall and winter collections in Paris is the theme of cosmonauts and outer space, capsules and rockets. The result is a look that's lithic and fluid, very plain but also very sophisticated. Those in the know speak of helmet hats and huge leather boots.

Hints from all the big fashion houses add up to the same story. Lines are to be long and straight but subtle. Shoulders will be larger and comfortable, waists molded but unbelted. And skirts will be longer.

A stronger feeling of "far outness and icy space" lies in the prediction of huge face-hugging collars, great scarves and fur everywhere, hidden in linings or cut in new ways to make shirts and chemise dresses.

Necklines Plunge
Another trend expected to make news next fall and winter is ground-length dresses for all evening occasions. In contrast to the formality of their length, they are likely to be straight and unadorned, relying on cut and material for effect. The low, low backs of last year are reported to be out and the front plunging neckline will be back again.

Marc Bohan and his team from Dior are strongly in favor of long sleeves with these long dresses. Out, they say, with bare arms, full skirts, and the boring "little cocktail dress." Big dresses, they say, are in for next season's afternoons and evenings.

Yves St. Laurent, another great trend setter, will show much more color in his daytime wear next season with bright gay tweeds, he'll also show further development of his favorite "midy line" and topcoats, fitted but much larger in the shoulder. Out, says St. Laurent, to costume jewelry and any suggestion at any time of being "dressed up."

Deep, Vivid Colors
Color will play an important part for Maggy Rouff too. The wrapped-up look for daytime is to be shown in beautiful vivid violets and rich deep reds. Here again there will be no full or pleated skirts and no fussy detail.

Nice!, in contrast to most of the others, will show large hats but they will be in soft felts almost draping the face. Long jackets, wide skirts, belted waists are all out of this collection and there'll be no more orange color, which was seen this summer to the point of becoming tedious.

Guy Laroche is expected to favor the long line in the form of floor-length evening suits, very decollete in front.

Color will be much in evidence in solid splashes of dark red, violet, green and royal blue or combined in soft tweeds and mohair mixtures made to order.

Combinations of Fur
Chanel has had her own designs in cloth, many of which are variations on the furian woven special in Scotland. Cardin has ordered Irish fabrics for his "cosmos suits and dresses."

Furs will appear both singly and mixed. You'll see high close-fitting Mongolian style mats in astrakhan or fox, spencers of panther or leopard skin and tunics cut from shaved lamb or seal skin. Mink too, of course, will be seen though it's pretty old hat unless it's made up into some "throw away style."

Newest idea of all comes from Robert Vivier, the shoe designer, who started with Dior some 10 years ago. He is making low heeled brightly colored shoes from kangaroo skin.

Valley Golfers Stress Putts In Day's Event

KAUKAUNA — The most number of one-putts was the Ladies Day Event when the Fox Valley Golf Club met Wednesday at the Fox Valley Golf Club course. Winners were Mrs. Emil Koglin, A flight; Miss Mildred Maley, B flight; Mrs. Kenneth Romesko, Appleton, C flight; Mrs. Jack Hermens, Little Chute, D flight; Mrs. Richard Quella, Appleton, guest member, and Mrs. Ray Bongers, Little Chute, E flight.

Committee members for Ladies Day July 24 are Mrs. Lewis Cattanch, Kimberly chairman; Mrs. Walter Vanden Boom, Kimberly; Mrs. Ray Schwanke, Kimberly; Mrs. Harold DeBruin, Kimberly; Mrs. Edward Poppe, Little Chute, and Mrs. Eugene VandeHey, Little Chute.

Members were reminded that the second round of the July tournament should be played before July 24.

Today's Etiquette

ENORMOUS FAMILY POSES PROBLEM

Dear Louise: We are members of a very large family. I have 12 brothers and sisters and so does my husband. Many of them, also cousins, nieces and nephews live here but there are also many who live far away. Our oldest child, a daughter, is to be married in October and my cousin wants to give a shower. Knowing that most of the out of town relatives live too far away to attend, should shower invitations be sent to them anyway? Wouldn't that mean that they will have to send shower gifts? I do know that most of them plan to come here for the wedding.

Louise Davis Answers:
I suggest that no invitations be sent to those out of town relatives or friends who you are sure will not be making the trip for the shower. Yes, they would feel obligated to send gifts and I'm sure you want to avoid that. If this is to be the first wedding in the family of your daughter's generation, you would be establishing a precedent for others, based on thoughtfulness and consideration.

Isadore Marx, Sylvester Jonen and Mrs. Henry Renn will serve on the committee. Games and music are scheduled and refreshments will be served at the event.

Mrs. Phillip Dietzen, Diocesan is to be the first wedding in the family of your daughter's generation, you would be establishing a precedent for others, based on thoughtfulness and consideration.

A trophy room containing mementos of a three-year around-the-world adventure on their 65-foot luxury schooner highlights the Sturgeon Bay residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Peterson. Next to their home is the family fallout shelter and recreational building which, along with a swimming pool, offers the ultimate in indoor facilities.

Ticket holders are reminded that cameras and smoking will not be allowed on the premises of the tour homes. It is requested that only low-heeled shoes be worn and that no children be taken on the tour.

Auxiliary members will serve as hostesses at each stop. Heading the hostess committees are Mrs. Clyde Casperson at Ackermann's; Mrs. D. E. Dorchester at Davis'; Mrs. John Bunda at Haberly's; Mrs. Howard Bosman at Peterson's; Mrs. Edward Olson at Thulin's; and Mrs. Emil Luedike at Warner's Japanese Garden.

Tailored Look Tops Collection

BY LOUISE HICKMAN

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — A tailored look from Lancellotti brought down the house at the opening session of the Florence couture shows.

With his collection Lancellotti arrived. It's strange how a designer can often show great promise but never quite hit. In Lancellotti's case, it was always too many ideas. But today's collection was a well controlled masterpiece.

His line was a straight one, with flat yoked back and soft kimono sleeves.

Opening the show were coats and suits in light reversible wools or unlined meltons. These were detailed with well-seamed bands that held the silhouette close to the body in front. They were straight in back. Everything buttoned up to the neck. Collars were small and pointed.

Marathon Start
The so-called "little" collections last night ended an all-day marathon of boutique showings that got the Florence fall and winter collections underway, setting the stage for such big designers as Forquet and Lancellotti.

Jeweled silk pants always have been the boutique specialty at Gallitzine. They used to be in heavy silk shantungs. Now they are in sumptuous double-waist crepes.

The general idea is a cowl-collared, short-sleeved shirt worn under a sleeveless jewelled jerkin that goes over the slim pants.

After Ski Wear
For after ski, Gallitzine did bulky pullovers in black and white. One, in black, had sleeves in thick, circling black and white stripes. This went with knickers and matching black-and-white striped long socks. There was also a big black and white circle-striped fox sweater.

DeBarentzen showed semi-fitted dresses with kimono sleeves that should have been double breasted but closed with only one row of buttons down the left side.

Really double-breasted suits had shirt sleeves and scarf collars. DeBarentzen also showed knits, mostly black. A slim sheath was rimmed with giant fishtail sequins, and a silk-knit tube came with fishnet sleeves in jet-dotted silk ribbon knit.

Enzo's Fashions

Enzo's boutique clothes were all in cotton, velvet and corduroy. Everything was shown with black or colored leotard stockings and little flat patent pumps. His giant - checked velvet harem bloomers, knee-length, were a delightful riot. These were worn with jersey pullovers that were hemmed in a band of the same velvet.

In the present trend toward dimensional units, Antonelli showed two-color honeycomb patterns in red and blue, coral and beige, pink and white for belted suits with knit linings. He had big smock-sweater tops in wide vertical stripes and zizzags.

There were ponchos in oilcloth from Antonelli and in black, white and russet seal from Veneziani. Reversible cire and wool coats in the Venetian show drew big applause.

The textured units from Venetian were in porcorn stitches. She also did a series of flat-knit coats and suits, very simple, in candy pastels.

Boy's Open Eyes During Kiss Curtains to Girl's Dreamy Mood

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This may sound pretty silly but I'm dead serious and I need an outside opinion. My boy friend kisses me with his eyes open. Several times I have pecked and there he is—staring. It just spoils everything for me. I can't understand why he does this.

What can he be looking at? At such close range I should think his eyes would cross.

Maybe I'm silly but I've always believed that a kiss should be soulful and dreamy. It seems that he wouldn't be looking around unless he were bored.

I have never mentioned this to him because I don't know what to say. Can you help.—Puckered but Unhappy

Dear Unhappy: Your boy friend probably has no idea that this bothers you, and after 50 years he still won't know—unless you clue him.

Tell him exactly how you feel. As with most problems, the simple, direct approach is the most effective.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 13-year-old girl who would like your frank opinion on whether or not I am normal.

For years on the last day of camp when all my bunkmates were weeping hysterically at saying farewell, I was never able to join them in this display of emotion. I just can't throw my arms Mr. Durkee is the son of Mr. and around people and sob. I have strong feelings for people but I've never been able to show them.

Even in a sad movie when everyone else is crying buckets I can't squeeze out a tear. I feel Appleton Vocational and Adult School, where she is employed.

Last night I went to a very depressing play with two girl friends. They were bawling their eyes out, and me—nothing, as usual. One of the girls said later, "I think there must be something wrong with you. Anyone who can sit dry-eyed through a performance like that has got to be abnormal."

Is she right?—No Weeping Willow
Dear Willow: Some people

Her fiancé is a private in the U.S. Army.

No wedding date has been set.

can turn the tears on and off like a faucet. It doesn't mean they feel any worse or that they are more deeply grieved than the person who shows nothing.

Weeping can be a healthy emotional catharsis, but if you can't wring out a tear it's really nothing to cry about.

DEAR ANN: My husband's father is very sick. He has an incurable illness and the doctors say he can't live more than a few more months.

Our six-year-old son knows that grandpa is not going to get well. We've told Freddie that grandpa will soon be going to his heavenly home where he will have rest and peace and be free of pain.

Now Freddie talks about nothing but the funeral. He has asked dozens of questions. He just assumes he will be present. The question is, should he be? My husband says, "Yes." I'm not so sure.

I remember the first funeral I attended when I was seven. I had terrible nightmares for years. It left me with fears from which I've never completely recovered.

I'm afraid of subjecting our son to the same hazard. What do you say?—W. D. T.

Dear W. D. T.: A six-year-old is too young to attend a funeral, particularly if the casket is open for viewing. Although you didn't spell it out, I feel reasonably certain that this is what caused your nightmares.

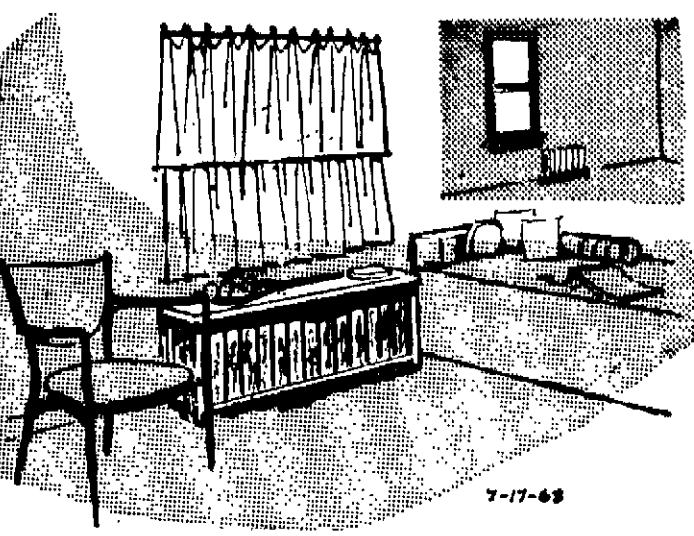

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Handsome Radiator Cover

Disguise for a radiator can be as good looking as a piece of furniture, built of furniture wood, handsomely furniture-finished—without sacrifice of practicality.

To solve Mrs. H. W.'s problem, it might be walnut to match her furniture, and its width should match the width of curtaining above it. Mrs. W. is converting a small upstairs room to sitting room-guest-room use, and an unsightly, misplaced radiator interferes with her plans.

A radiator cover like this one, with its long, table-like top, is a useful furnishing. Mrs. W. The radiator's unfortunate appearance and location are quite forgotten as it disappears within an enclosure stretched across the width of the window. Continue curtains on the wall to the far side of the cover. But make sure that the cover structure is carefully built and positioned to permit heat to circulate, and to prevent deterioration of the wood.

Wood slats set apart provide sufficient opening on the front and sides, but the structure including the top must be set forward several inches from the wall, and the lower edges must be several inches above the floor. Heat then flows upward from the back, and outward from below. Face the under side of the top with asbestos.

comfortable than the feeling that using the room is an intrusion, since it seems to be intended solely for display. For the cotton floral, white or sage green would be effective background. Pattern on white should include green, and on green, should include white. Add brown to either one plus any of these contrasts: shades of yellow and orange; pinks to near-red; blue, medium or with a green or violet cast; blue and violet; blue and persimmon. You might like one of the new densely patterned florals with the room colors and other on predominating brown.

Mrs. K. C.: "My teen-age daughter spilled nail polish on the light-colored tile floor in her room, and faint red stains remain after she wiped it up and used remover. The red area is also rough. Can anything be done to repair this damage?"

The floor is probably on asbestos composition, which polish remover dissolves. Try strong bleach, then wax the floor, using wax recommended on the label for asbestos, as some liquid waxes also dissolve asbestos composition surfaces. Next time, wait until the polish is partly dry, and it can be peeled off.

Engagement Of Daughter Revealed

The engagement of Miss Ruth Mader to Paul J. Stumpf has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mader, route 1, Menasha. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stumpf, route 4, Appleton.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Kaukauna High School, Kaukauna, is employed at Scolding Locks Corp. Her fiancé was graduated from St. John High School, Little Chute, and is engaged in farming. No date has been set for the wedding.

Desserts Too Can be Grilled

As long as you have a fire for outdoor cooking why not use it for dessert, too. You can have make-your-own combinations or prepare some baked fruits for the crowd.

Apples and pears bake well on the grill or over coals. You may control the heat better on the grill but it usually takes longer for baking. Core the fruit and fill the center with sugar, cinnamon and butter. You must want to use some raisins, nuts, marshmallows or cinnamon candies, too. Wrap the fruit in foil twisting it lightly at the top. Bake on the hot coals about 45 minutes.

Spiced bananas are unusual and you can make them as individual servings or in a baking dish. Place a peeled banana in a square of foil. Split the banana in half and brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. You may prefer mixing the seasonings and sugar into the melted butter to make a paste.

Wrap each banana in foil and barbecue on the grill about 10 minutes. Have them ready to put on the coals when you start eating your first course. You can put these in a baking dish and do them in the oven, too.

Fruit kabobs are another tasty dessert. Have your guests make their own fruit combinations or at least have them roast their own kabob. String chunks of banana, pineapple, orange sections, apple wedges and marshmallows on a skewer. Squeeze a little lemon over the fruit and roast over the coals.

Blind Piano Tuner Who Works In Black World Has No Fears

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Getting lost in one's own home town is no new adventure to Green Bay's Donald Wolter, a 31-year-old blind man whose forte is piano tuning and whose fears are virtually none at all.

In his economic pursuits, the intrepid fellow whose world is black enough to be frightening to you and to me accepts no boundaries as he tackles his jobs. He ranges as far south as Appleton and Oshkosh and as far north as Sturgeon Bay.

Does he consider himself brave? He didn't think so.

"I may have a better sense of direction than other blind people," he said, "and maybe I do get lost from time to time, but Green Bay is such a wonderful city that I never hesitate to ask for directions or for guidance when I need it. Every body is willing to help."

Mishaps come with more frequency than they do to sighted people, Wolter admitted. His scant perception of lightness once plummeted him into a seven foot excavation from which he had to be rescued with the help of a ladder.

On a snowy, wintry day, Wolter had been out searching for an address for a piano tuning job. Feeling for the curbing to step off into the street, he realized there was no whiteness at what appeared to be a corner. He fell into the deep hole. A neighbor who saw the accident fished him out, unhurt.

On another occasion, a snowy day when the sidewalks had not yet been cleared, he finished a tuning job and decided to take a taxi home. The driver let him out at the right number but the wrong street.

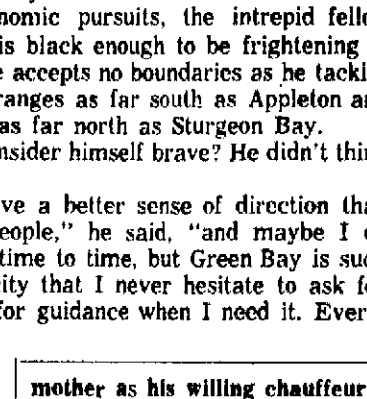

Wolter bumped into a parking meter and realized he was lost, with no idea of where he was. But he realized it was the downtown area and walked until he heard footfalls. When he asked for directions, the passerby steered him all the way home.

Listens to Sounds

"Green Bay is too big to be completely familiar with," Wolter said, "but around home I can tell generally where I am by the bumps or irregularities in the sidewalk, or by the 'sound' that buildings make when I pass them. 'Filling stations foul me up,' he added. "There is so much area that is concrete and it is hard to tell if I'm on a sidewalk or a road."

"But if I'm in trouble people are quick to help. In Green Bay, drivers often stop their cars and get out to give me a hand. Sometimes I don't need it, but I always accept the help because sometime the day will come when I do need it."

Wolter lives with his mother, Hilda, 67, who learned to drive a car three years ago to aid her accomplished son. In many cases these days, Wolter goes on his tuning jobs with his mother as his willing chauffeur. A recent automobile accident has landed both Mrs. Wolter and her son in the hospital — he with a badly fractured arm and she with cuts, abrasions and contusions. They are in adjoining rooms at Bell Memorial Hospital where he, at least, will be required to remain for at least another week.

Wolter attended the school for blind at Janesville. When he was six his parents presented him with an accordion which he quickly learned to play without lessons. When he was in second grade he started piano lessons at the school for the blind, and continued them for 12 years. He later turned to the organ which he plays with proficiency as he does the violin, too.

'Gets Around'

Though his principle occupation now is piano tuning, he is sought after as baritone for weddings, and he leads his own combo for dances.

Wolter "gets around," sometimes with his mother or members of his combo, and sometimes via public transportation in Green Bay. He tried a "seeing eye dog" for a period and he found the animal good and useful, but after much thought decided to return it.

"There isn't much traffic in Green Bay to keep the dog alert," he said. "In Chicago, he was wonderful because of the heavy traffic, but here in Green Bay the dog's attention tended to wander, and he would busy himself with squirrels. Besides, when I took him on a bus, I had to worry constantly about his tail; people stepped on it."

Wolter gets along fine these days. The number of pianos in the region and the high humidity of the area that keeps them in need of tuning keeps him busy.

"Most people," he said, "don't realize that a piano in this section of the country should be tuned about twice a year. I suppose most of them have it done about every two years."

Wolter has found many foreign objects amid the piano wires — money, mice, moths.

"In a church piano that was only two years old," he said, "I found mice nests, and it isn't at all unusual. And a lot of people think they have no moths in their homes, but I find that most of them do. I can tell because the fells are eaten from under the keys, and the keys are out of level. I find cocoons, too," he added.

Small Treasure

Once he found what seemed to his sensitive fingers to be a small treasure in coins, but they turned out to be foreign money that the family children had stored there. The average piano tuning job requires the gifted blind man about the same as the sighted — from one and a half to two hours.

"It might take me a little longer to glue something," he said "but generally blindness is not a terrible handicap in my job."

He has been a piano tuner since 1957 and has been associated with the Don Poh Piano Co. since 1958. A bachelor, he lives with his mother at 1144 14th Ave., and, as he says, he can "see" a lot of good things in the world.

'Host With the Most' Strives For Novelty, Fun at Party

Whether you are having a big party with oodles of guests, or entertaining a solitary friend who's just arrived in town, you can heighten your guests' enjoyment tremendously simply by making a few mental notes beforehand—on what you should do and what you shouldn't do.

The host with the most—you've met him once or twice—doesn't abide by a strict formula for success.

He doesn't insist that everyone enjoy himself by laughing uproariously or by dancing on tables. He doesn't insist that a restrained "big think" discussion is the acme of social enjoyment. Instead, he acts as a mere catalyst; he sees to it that his guests enjoy themselves in the way they want to enjoy themselves. He doesn't suggest that everyone play charades when the party is quietly enjoyable and he doesn't cut off the drinks when the party gets the tiniest bit boisterous.

Identifying Marks

Here are some of the other identifying characteristics of the host with the most:

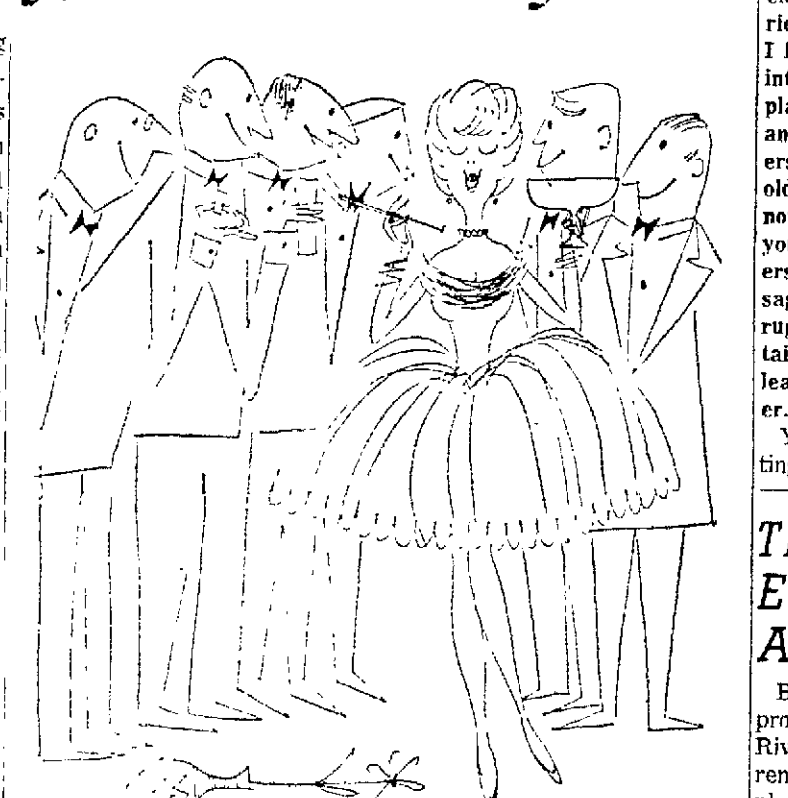

He introduces guests properly. Whenever a new guest arrives, the HWTM (host with the most) steers him to those other guests with whom he will be most compatible. (At a small gathering, he can introduce a new arrival to everyone; at a large gathering, he should let some guests introduce themselves.)

The HWTM doesn't just say, "Mary, this is John." He says, "Mary, this is John. Mary's a math teacher nearby. John, didn't you say that math was your worst subject in school?" And he continues to steer the conversation along for a few minutes, then takes the new arrival to meet the others. (Unless, of course, John and Mary have obviously fallen in love at first sight.)

No Concern For Trivia

He isn't a perfectionist. If there's a little tarnish on the silver, or if the ice cubes give out too soon, the HWTM doesn't fall apart. The first trivial; the second can be remedied by a telephone call or a visit to an obliging neighbor.

Some hosts are such would-be perfectionists that they refuse to serve certain wines with certain foods, little knowing that Bristol cream and other sherries can go with all kinds of food. In everything they insist that all be as formal as at one of Madame de Stael's legendary soirees. Such propriety will only make a few guests feel ill at ease. Don't be too informal, but don't be too formal either. Strive for a golden mean.

Seeks Novelty

He seeks novelty. What makes a party memorable is the unusual, and the HWTM goes out of his way to make things just a little bit different.

An unusual side dish, an exotic dessert, can add fun to the evening and stimulus to the conversation. An unusual recording — one from the 1920's or a freakish one that consists simply of sound-effects . . . a professional funnyman disguised as a house guest . . . an unusual party game, a lesson in some current dance rage — all can add spice and entertainment.

Prepare For Worst

He is prepared for the worst. If the Joneses start having another of their fights in front of all the guests, the host intervenes gracefully. He doesn't try to drown them out. He distracts them. For example, he might ask children in school or the condition if he serves sherry in beer mugs, or if he's cooked the food himself instead of importing someone with real cooking talent.

No relax . . . and be the host with the most.

prano sings "Un bel di", the host knows what to do. He is considerate of the feelings of those involved, but he makes sure no one has to suffer through a recital of what Miss Greene never learned in music school.

Expect Breakage

The HWTM also knows that a little breakage is to be expected. He keeps a clean mop and paper towels ready just in case. A wet newspaper will safely pick up any pieces of broken glass after one has gingerly removed the bones by hand.

Don't be surprised if, shortly after one of your guests has a mishap, you have one of your own. This happens often, and the reason is a mystery — some say it's an unconscious desire to put your guest at ease by making a similar gaff.

The HWTM enjoys his own parties. A host who is glad to see his guests and overjoyed to entertain them, who thinks that his friends are the greatest, who thinks he himself is privileged that they decided to drop in — he's 100 per cent certain to be known as a good host. And this holds true even if he lives in a one of the Joneses about their dank shack by a polluted river, or children in school or the condition if he serves sherry in beer mugs, or if he's cooked the food himself instead of importing someone with real cooking talent.

No relax . . . and be the host with the most.

Construction of $600,000 Apartment Area Begins

School Budget of Over $1 Million Asked for Kimberly

Proposed Figure Represents $111,805 Hike Over Last Year

KIMBERLY — The board of education Monday night will submit to voters a proposed budget of $1,076,265, an increase of $111,805 over the 1962-63 figure.

The budget will be aired in a public hearing at 7 p. m. in the junior high school auditorium. The new budget calls for a total tax levy of $906,008, an increase of $166,683 over last year's levy of $739,325.

Main increases in the budget include instruction, $510,375, from $417,675 to $528,410; operations, up $44,050, from $75,400 to $119,450; and food service, up $5,000, from $15,500 to $20,500. These hikes, however, are offset by decreases in some expenditures, including debt service, $51,230 less; and maintenance, $7,000 less.

Supl. of Schools Ray Hamann said the hike in instruction costs was due mainly to $55,535 in teacher salaries and the hiring of 12 additional teachers at approximately $70,000 more.

New School Hamann attributed the boost in operations expenses to the new high school. He said four additional janitors are being hired, at total salaries of $21,050. Hamann said the board underestimated the cost of the hot lunch program last year and was forced to increase it for 1963-64.

The proposed budget calls for a tax levy of $557,685 in the Village of Kimberly, an increase of $71,814 over last year's levy of $485,871.

Other Levies Combined Locks' levy will be $249,624, an increase of $80,007 over the last year's levy of $169,617. The Town of Buchanan's levy will be $39,625, an increase of $7,613 over last year's levy of $32,012.

The levy for the Town of Harrison will be $59,073, an increase of $7,248 over last year's levy of $51,825.

Kimberly will pay 61.5541 per cent of the levy, compared to 65.7182 per cent last year. Combined Locks will pay 27.5521 per cent, compared to 22.9422 per cent last year. Buchanan will pay 4.3736 per cent, compared to 4.3290 per cent last year. Harrison will pay 6.5202 per cent, compared to 7.0097 per cent last year.

Equalized Portion Kimberly's equalized tax portion will be $30,397,400, compared to $28,832,000 last year. Combined Locks' portion will be $13,606,100, compared to $10,414,400 last year. Buchanan's portion will be $2,159,800, compared to $1,965,520 last year. Harrison portion will be $3,219,900, compared to $3,182,000 last year.

Other expenditures in the proposed 1963-64 budget include administration, $24,150, compared to $21,500 adopted and $23,004 actual last year; transportation, $19,000, compared to $14,500 adopted and $16,799 actual last year; fixed charges, $15,950, compared to $12,750 adopted and $3,240 actual last year.

Student activities, $12,300, compared to $10,400 adopted and $10,429 actual last year; recreation, $13,700, compared to $13,200 adopted and $11,567 actual last year; and capital outlay, $30,500, compared to $30,250, adopted and $29,919 actual last year.

Receipts Listed Receipts in the 1963-64 budget include balances of $5,506, remaining from the 1962-63 receipts to total of $919,164 and expenditures of $913,658; county aid, $12,500, compared to $10,650 adopted and $11,113 actual last year; state aid, $73,000, compared to $61,860 adopted and $67,844 actual last year; and $67,844 actual last year.

Six Frame, Brick Buildings in Sunny Acres Subdivision Will Have 56 2-Story Family Units

Construction has been started on a $600,000 to $800,000 apartment building complex in southeast Appleton.

The development, being built by Fox Valley Builders Inc., will include 56 family units in six buildings in the 1400 block of E. Coolidge Avenue.

The location in the Sunny Acres subdivision, is near the site for the proposed southeast senior high school, planned for completion by 1966.

Work has been started on the first eight-unit apartment building. A spokesman for the contractor said the other buildings will be started soon. Completion date has not been announced.

The contractor has taken out a $75,000 building permit for the first eight-unit building, which will have 40 rooms, 12,239 square feet of floor space, and 100-foot frontage.

The buildings will be colonial style, of frame and part brick construction. The architect is Arthur J. Algaier, Milwaukee.

The three-bedroom unfurnished apartments will be on two stories, with three bedrooms and a bathroom on the second floor and a living room, kitchen-dinette and half-bathroom on the first floor.

An open stairway will connect the two floors. Each apartment will have a separate basement and heating plant.

Off-street parking space will be provided.

The council approved the reports of the finance committee and plan commission in full. These included approval of the preliminary plat of the L. M. Long subdivision consisting of 19 lots northwest of the curve of U.S. 41.

The council denied approval of the preliminary plat of the Harold farm, located at the southwest corner of Midway Road and Oneida Street. The plan commission objected to the plat because no one who can answer questions on it has been present at three subsequent meetings on the plat.

McMahon Engineering Co. of Menasha, who prepared the plat, was advised of these meetings, the commission said.

The council also approved the preliminary plans and specifications for the new No. 1 Fire Station right-of-ways.

Accepted the low bid of Emptor Mutual of Wausau for further, comprehensive general liability insurance, including fleet insurance, for the proposed Albert Einstein Junior High School, prepared by Sauter and Seaborn, Architects.

The architects were authorized to proceed with the final plans and specifications.

Recommend Approval Approval of the plans for both projects was recommended by the board of public works. The city planning commission recommended approval of the site and building locations and architectural appearances of the two buildings.

In other action on board of public works recommendations, the council:

—Authorized a contract with Gresh Construction Co., Appleton, to construct a sewage lift station at the intersection of Badger Avenue and Summer Street at a cost of $14,300.

—Authorized members of the board of public works to attend at city expense the American Public Works Association conference in Detroit Sept. 29 through Oct. 2.

—Refused the offer from Mr. Pratt and Whitney Wasp engines was flown at one time by 15 of the world's airlines.

Restoration of the Tri-Motor is being accomplished by American Airlines in three phases, two of which have been completed. First, an intensive airworthiness program prepared it for its airport visits. During the past winter, experts at the airline's Jet Maintenance Base at Tulsa re-equipped the Ford with exact replicas of 1929 seats, landing lights, and other vintage items.

As the final phase, the Tri-Motor will be returned to its original configuration for presentation to Smithsonian with engines less powerful than it now has, with fixed instead of variable propellers, fewer instruments, and an absence of modern radio equipment.

Seven Injured in Two-Car Accident

Two Listed in Serious Condition After Collision on County Trunk A

Seven persons were injured and at least two are in serious condition at Appleton Memorial Hospital where they were taken after a two-car accident on County Trunk A about a quarter-mile north of the overpass with U.S. 41 shortly before noon today.

Taken immediately to surgery for treatment of injuries was Michael Whisockis, about 28, Chicago. Also injured seriously was Miss Pat Christie, 18, Park Ridge, Ill., driver of one of the cars.

The car driven by Miss Christie was traveling north on A and apparently attempted to pass another vehicle and went into the opposite lane. Miss Christie apparently saw a car being driven south by James Tucker, 23, Shawano, and attempted to stop her car.

The car spun around and the Tucker vehicle collided with the rear of the Christie vehicle.

Also injured in the Christie car were Whisockis, Miss June Bowman, 18, and Miss Marilyn Olson, 19, both of Townsends, Wis.

Injured in the other vehicle were Tucker and his brothers, Lawrence and Raymond.

All were taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by Larry's Ambulance.

Lester Balliet, chairman of the county party unit, said Hanson will speak on party membership and plans for the coming year.

Balliet said Hanson's meeting is a part of a series Hanson is conducting with county units throughout the state to acquaint the membership with his views.

Douglas Coenen, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Coenen, route 1, Appleton, died at 9:58 p. m. Thursday of burns received in an accident at his home Tuesday.

Douglas was burned by hot grease from a deep fat fryer that turned over. The burns covered more than 50 per cent of his body.

He was treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital and taken to St. Marys Burn Center in Milwaukee where he died.

Funeral services will be at 10 a. m. Monday at St. Pius X Catholic Church. Burial will be in St. Joseph Cemetery.

Firemen Delay Burning House LITTLE CHUTE — Lester Sanders, chief of the volunteer fire department, said the burning of a house at the corner of Monroe and McKinley streets, scheduled for July 28 as part of a training program, has been postponed until Aug. 18.

Sanders said Fox Cities fire departments had intended to set the building afire and practice extinguishing the blaze. The house was donated to the fire department by the Little Chute American Legion.

Kuehl said the mock-up will become a display in the training room at the fire department's proposed fire station on E. Atlantic Street.

Kuehl said the system at the Konz warehouse had been in use on several fires and was in good working order. The valves in the system were set to "pop" at about 160 degrees. The department was called to the warehouse on several occasions when the system "popped" due to the heat of the boilers near the rear of the building because the system was connected to a fire alarm system which sounded at the fire station when the valves popped.

Try Connection During the fire July 8, the firemen attempted to connect their hose to the system's indicator water hydrant near the elevator shaft outside the building. Kuehl said at the time it was not known the water was disconnected.

Firemen were not successful in hooking onto the system because the building exploded in flames as they approached with the hoses.

Continue Work At Park Site

Circuit Judge Fails to Appear At Chilton Court

Appleton City Atty. Fred Froelich said this morning he will advise the city to go ahead with construction of the comfort station at Hoover Park since no judge appeared at a court hearing in Chilton today to rule on a temporary restraining order halting the work.

The city had been ordered to show cause why the construction should not be stopped at the circuit court hearing.

Circuit Court Judge Arnold Cane, who signed the restraining order, is on vacation for three weeks, and apparently did not order Calumet County Judge D. H. Sehora to conduct the hearing.

Clifford Sweet, 613 E. Roeland Ave., asked for the restraining order. The comfort station would be located across the street from his home.

James Bayorgone, Sweet's attorney, said he will not further protest the matter.

$173,143 Allocation to be Raised in 1963 Fund Drive

The board of directors of United back on some expenditures for Community Services Thursday several years. This year they approved the budget committee were allowed.

report, allocating $169,143 to the 10 Red Feather agencies.

This amount will be included in the 1963 United Red Feather Campaign. The board also approved a $4,000 shrinkage and contingency fund for a total budget of $173,143.

The UCS board deferred action on setting the campaign goal and reported a realistic goal will be determined at the August meeting. Melvern Hemmen, budget committee chairman, told the board that agency budgets have been pared to the minimum; and in addition to regular budget hearings, several extra meetings were held with agency executives and boards in order to further analyze income and expenses to hold down budget requests.

Expenditures Allowed Hemmen said that by going over agency budgets in more detail the budget committee was able to suggest other sources of income to one agency and the use of more volunteer help to another.

Firm Suggests More Wells At School Site

Dewatering Units Helping Slippage Problem at Appleton

The Warzyn Engineering and Service Co., Madison, has recommended installation of additional dewatering wells as a solution to the hill slippage problem at the Appleton Vocational and Adult School site. The work would cost an estimated $15,000.

Director of Public Works Robert Bues said the recommendation will be referred to the Board of Public Works.

A letter from Warzyn said studies indicate the first well, installed this spring, is effective, and said additional wells to dewater the ground and stabilize the soil, possibly supplemented with horizontal drains, would be effective to solve the problem permanently.

Warzyn also suggested resurfacing and sealing of the paved area on top of the hill to keep water from the soil, and rebuilding of the west end of the retaining wall at the top of the slope. The whole project would cost an estimated $15,000, in addition to about $2,000 for engineering and other services.

The well installed this spring is 30 feet deep and three feet in diameter. It is filled with coarse crushed stone, with a shaft down the center for pumping, and acts as a dry well or collecting point for water in the ground.

Warzyn reported last February on its study of hill slippage in Appleton, and continued research on possible corrective measures. The slippage has been a serious problem for the last two years.

Appleton Safety Report Slated for Public Meeting

The National Safety Council's analysis of Appleton's report in the 1962 Annual Traffic Inventory will be presented at a special meeting at 7:30 p. m. July 29 at city hall.

Carl Zutz of the safety division of the Wisconsin Motor Vehicle Department will present the report to city officials and interested citizens.

Zutz asked that "citizen leaders important to the city traffic safety program" be invited to the meeting. Officials who have been invited include the public safety committee of the common council, Police Chief Earl Wolff, Lt. John Gosch, City Planner-Traffic Engineer Walter Rasmussen and County Judge Gustave Keller.

The meeting is open to the public.

Konz Box Co. Sprinkler System To be Used in Training Program

Mass of Brass Fixtures Being Cleaned, Identified for Teaching New Firemen

A fire sprinkler system which had been installed in the burned out Konz Box Co. in 1915 will be used again—this time to instruct new firefighters in the inspection and installation of industrial sprinkler systems.

Fire Chief Roland Kuehl said today that although the system in the Konz building was designed in 1881 and then installed in the two-story building in 1915, the system is principally the same as those in use today.

Ironically, the system was not hooked up when fire broke out in the wooden warehouse July 8. Water which fed into the system was disconnected when the building was vacated last December.

Mass of Fixtures Now a mass of brass fixtures, iron and metal piping, the system has been dismantled and is lying in pieces at Fire Station No. 1.

Firemen searched the ruins of the building and came up with several boxes of small fixtures which are part of the sprinkler system. Fire department authorities, along with engineers from a local plumbing firm which installs the system in industries, will begin the job of putting the sprinkler system together.

The pipes will be mounted on a training board. Each part will be identified and its function spelled out. New firefighters whose duties it may be one day to inspect the systems in use in various industries will learn the parts while in training.

Cleaning Brass Included in the training mock-up will be the heavy rust-encrusted valve which was built for the Konz sprinkler system in 1881. Firemen will be busy cleaning and shining all the brass and metal, painting the parts and mounting them on the display board.

Work on the H. C. Prange Co. parking ramp on N. Oneida Street in Appleton "is right on schedule," according to store officials. Workmen presently are erecting steel beams for the five-level structure. The ramp is scheduled to be ready for use by 200 cars on Oct. 1. When 100 per cent completed about Dec. 1, there will be space for 466 autos. (Post-Crescent Photo)
